JUNE, 1922

NO. 4

From Our Grand President

MY Dear Sisters:

Just a greeting now, but a real handshake at Ithaca, New York, June 19-24, 1922.

No doubt you have been looking forward to this Convention and waiting for the final announcement. Sorry the details of arranging Convention have been so tedious but the real Convention will be the culmination of your expectancy—much work to be done! Yes, but not such a burden as Denver with four years of accumulated work. Problems to be solved! Yes, but a great Delta Zeta spirit equal to the task.

Ithaca, campus, and scenery about Ithaca will be worth a cross-continental journey—and the inspiration of the Convention cannot be over-estimated. Let us work for the largest and best convention in our fraternity history.

We want every Founder present as well as every Delta Zeta. You cannot afford to miss this opportunity to meet some of the finest women of our land and we need your suggestions and your thoughts for the great plan of this organization.

Yours in Delta Zeta,

RENNIE SEBRING SMITH.

The History of Cornell University

IDA RAFFLOER, Beta '19

CORNELL University owes its existence to the genius, enthusiasm, and labor of two men, Ezra Cornell and Andrew D. White, and in almost equal measure to each of them. These two men were in the New York Senate at the same time and on February 4, 1865, Mr. White introduced a bill to establish the Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y. Mr. Cornell immediately after the university was assured gave the trustees of the institution his farm of two hundred acres, after it had been agreed that this was by far the best site for the campus, in the neighborhood of Ithaca.

Mr. Cornell is quoted as saying, "I would found an institution where any person can find instruction in any study." Co-education was implied, and it was specifically stated that the institution was to be non-sectarian, and therefore for many years the university was denounced as irreligious and godless. The Cornell idea of great liberality in choice of study and combination of classical and practical courses also provoked a great deal of criticism.

The university opened October 7, 1868, and at that time but little material possessions were visible. The only building for instruction, Morrill Hall, was unfinished and aside from this the only other university structure was a temporary wooden campanile in which hung a chime of nine bells, the gift of Miss Jennie McGraw. One interesting thing, however, was the fact that a larger number of students pressed forward for admission to the new institution on its inaugural day than had ever entered any college in the country, as a single class. The need for buildings became acute and in 1870 two buildings were erected. When President White took office in 1868 he had associated with him in the faculty seventeen professors, whereas President Farrand now has more than nine hundred under him in the faculty. These figures give evidence of the rapid growth of Cornell.

During the fifty years of Cornell's existence there have been four administrations, those of Presidents White, Adams, Schurman, and Farrand. The student body as well as the faculty has increased rapidly in the last fifty years. From five hundred students half a century ago the number has swelled to nearly six thousand. There are nine separate colleges, Agriculture, with the greatest enrollment, Arts, Law, Medicine, Mechanical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Architecture, Electrical Engineering, and Veterinary.

Set off by herself among romantic hills and lakes, Cornell has developed her own life uninfluenced by the sordid city environment. Cornell is an entity; she is in this respect unique among the greater eastern universities in that she is not adjunct to some large city, as Harvard to Boston, Yale to New Haven, Columbia to New York, and Pennsylvania to Philadelphia. Compared to these older universities of the East, Cornell is new and was founded under different circumstances and other ideals. But the fact that her alumni, as well as the ever-increasing number of students, are rallying to her standard is most heartening and seemingly puts a final stamp of approval on the novel ideas under which the university was founded and developed.

The Land of the Finger Lakes

Extracts from "Concerning Cornell"

BY PROF. O. D. VON ENGELN, Patron of Beta Chapter

THE great panorama of nature that is spread before the newcomer's eyes from the vantage point of the Cornell campus is only a formal and distant introduction to the scenic charm of the environment. The grandeur of the initial prospect, with its wide expanses of hillslope, its restful valley aspect and the blue lure of the lake waters, only suggests the infinite variety of scenic interest that remains concealed. There are gorges and waterfalls almost without number to be sought out, rambles by purling brooks slipping from field into forest, and unexpected glimpses of shimmering lakes and peaceful country villages to be had from lonely hilltops. It is not a region of rugged and awe-inspiring mountain splendor but of the kind that pleases and soothes, yet holds enough of the wilderness aspect in its remoter places to gratify the discovering instinct of the tramp.

It is not claimed that this scenic attractiveness is a resource peculiar to the immediate environment of the university, whose campus is universally recognized as the most beautiful in the United States. It is shared by all the Finger Lakes country of central New York. It would be difficult to conceive a district holding in store more of quiet beauty and romantic wildness than this.

With past experience as guide, there is at once a great temptation to go far afield, to strike out, immediately, away from the beaten track. That would be a mistake for the newcomer at Ithaca and Cornell. Within a few blocks of the principal hotels one can descend into a rock-walled chasm, and, following along paths that lead through clumps of woodland, into open glades, to the foot of foaming falls, and along steep ledges, find enough of sylvan beauty to while away an afternoon most agreeably.

Near the summit of its winding ascent, from the valley bottom to the campus plateau, the trolley route along a considerable distance affords the passenger an outlook directly down on the city and for miles up the lake. This makes an especially pleasing prospect, one of which even the old inhabitant does not tire.

Immediately adjacent to the campus, at its south entrance from College Avenue, there is a pretty path among the hemlocks bordering the upper length of Cascadilla Gorge. On the far side of the campus, along Beebe Lake and Fall Creek Gorge, is a similar path leading to Forest Home village. Both of these walks are of romantic aspect, the first affording glimpses of rushing water in a narrow rock gorge; the latter opening out wider views over the placid waters of the little lake with its forest-covered slope opposite.

From the upper bridge across Fall Creek, on the north side of the campus, one can look down into the tremendously deep lower gorge. Just at this point, so the story runs, as told by Griffis in his Pathfinders of the Revolution, a white maiden, made captive by the Seneca Indians at the Cherry Valley massacre, was found and rescued by her lover, a member of General Sullivan's Expedition. The great waterfall is now identified by the quite unromantic name of Triphammer Falls.

Just below the bridge, on the south side, is a path by which one may descend to the bottom of the gorge and, if the water is not too high, follow its course, to another large falls just above the suspension bridge. Below this falls is a great pool that in recent years has been a favorite swimming place for the students.

Farther down the gorge the Ithaca Falls is visible, as is also the entrance of the famous tunnel constructed by Ezra Cornell. From the brink of the rock wall, Cayuga Lake is once more visible and invites a voyage on its waters.

The main objective of a trip down Cayuga is the Taughannock Gorge and Falls. The beginning of the gorge, down stream, is marked by a pretty, though low, waterfall over the Tully limestone. Just above this point the black cliffs of the Genesee shale begin to rise on each side and shortly attain really grand aspects. Most of the gorge sides are forested but, at its head, the site of the falls is marked by a great open pit, where overhanging rock walls rise on either hand, bare and black, to the plateau level some three hundred feet above. Into this plateau level a smaller, upper gorge has been cut by the stream, and from the end of this upper gorge the waters plunge in a vertical fall of some two hundred and fifteen feet, or about forty-five feet higher than Niagara.

Three other gorges, and their included waterfalls, deserve special mention, Buttermilk, Enfield, and Watkins. Buttermilk can be explored in the course of an afternoon's tramp from Ithaca, it is sylvan-dell like in its several reaches and contains many interesting pot-hole cauldrons. Enfield is the wildest of the gorges in the region, its pristine conditions are practically untouched. It, no doubt, will best please the romantic nature lover. The exceedingly straight shutes, with sides determined by joints in the bed-rock, of the upper gorge, are a very unusual feature in gorge scenery; and the view from the great Lucifer Falls is of exceptionally impressive sweep. Watkins Glen, with its concrete walks and iron railings, gives opportunity to view typical gorge scenery of the Finger Lake country. The peculiar feature of the Watkins Glen is that the water channel, in characteristic stretches, is confined to narrow spiral grooves, and these in turn are quite uniquely fluted.

Practically every stream of the region, in descending to any one of the lake levels, flows through one or more rock glens. Merely as a suggestion along this line Lick Brook, Coy Glen and the head waters of Six Mile Creek may be named. It may also be hinted that some of these streams yield fine catches of trout to competent fishermen.

For those who do not wish to indulge in cross-country tramping, there are smooth walks. Perhaps the finest is the walk across Cornell Heights suburb and the Cayuga Heights Village residence section. It is a walk to take in the late afternoon for then one is almost sure to surprise a fine sunset, for these come frequently and are famous for their display of color.

In fact, a tour of the whole Finger Lakes district will be found interesting, and varying so, every mile of the route.

Convention Clothes

TODAY, when Americans go to Europe, they wear practically the same clothes which graced the streets of their home towns. It is a favorite remark of modern writers that the little girl from the country has exactly the same wardrobe as her city cousin. Clothes are always—just clothes, and what girls wear in California, or Ohio, or Illinois, at teas and formal banquets and informal affairs, they will wear in Ithaca.

But one thing about Ithaca might well be kept in mind. It frequently rains there, even in such a delightful month as June. So no matter what else you bring, oh delegates, be sure to have a trusty umbrella and a pair of rubbers, if you still wear 'em.

Not to dampen your spirits, but merely apropos, we whisper that those who are aquatically inclined might tuck a bathing suit away in a corner of their suitcases, for after a typical hot Ithaca June day, a plunge in our gorge pool feels mighty good.

At Last

HERE is the Convention information. Yes, we agree with you that it has been long forthcoming but your Editor could not give it out until she had it herself. As we send this material to our printer we are praying that he will get it out with all speed so you will get it at the earliest possible date. I did not receive all the information until May 12 and now the evening of May 13 I am mailing the copy for this bulletin to the printer. You should get it by May 26. Here's hoping. Now, all aboard for Ithaca where we will work and play together.

A Note from Beta

DEAR Delta Zetas:

Beta is at present in a state of somewhat excited preparation for the Convention in June when we are to have the pleasure of entertaining you all. We are very anxious to show you Cornell and Ithaca at their best, and to make your stay with us one that will always be a pleasant memory. The campus and city are always beautiful and will be especially so in June. We hope a great many of you will come. We'll do our best to give you a wonderful time.

Did you read the program? Doesn't it look interesting?

Three cheers for Marita Oelkers Littauer (Beta), Convention chairman!!!

Be sure to clip the last sheet out and send in your reservation to Helen Marsh, 200 Highland Ave., Ithaca, N. Y. No, it isn't too late. Pack your suitcase and come on. If you don't you will be sorry. Come on!

Epsilon Alumnae, New York City

EPSILON's Christmas work this year was to try to bring a little cheer to the children in the city hospital at Randall's Island. After we had sent our gifts to the children we still had some money left which we have placed in a fund for future social service activities.

On March 4 Epsilon entertained the mothers of Delta Zetas in this vicinity, at the home of Margaret Low in Brooklyn. This is the first attempt we have made at the formation of a Mother's Club, and the tea was so very successful that Mrs. Brace, the mother of one of our Beta juniors, has planned to duplicate the affair at her house in Richmond Hill, Long Island, on April 7. At this time the Beta girls will be home for their spring vacation, and as many of them live around New York we are hoping to have a real reunion and to make the acquaintance of many Delta Zeta mothers we have not yet had the opportunity of meeting.

We hold our regular Epsilon meetings on the first Saturday of every month, and we would like once more to remind all Delta Zetas in the vicinity of New York City that they are more than welcome at these meetings. There must be many Delta Zetas from other chapters now living in New York, who have not affiliated with Epsilon, and we wish once more through the pages of the LAMP to urge them to do so at once. If you are living in New York Epsilon is your chapter, your Delta Zeta home, and we hope that you will give us a chance to welcome you by letting us know that you are here and communicating with our president, Mrs. F. J. Littauer, 700 Riverside Drive, New York.

At the present time our greatest enthusiasm is for the Convention, and Beta reports to us her wonderful plans for the coming event. We are all looking forward to next June with great anticipation, and expect an unusually successful and interesting Convention.

Yours in Delta Zeta,

VIOLET IRONMONGER.

ALPHA

FLORENCE WILLEY

We are sending three and perhaps four of our girls: Florence Willey, Leah Rose, Martha Murphy, and Rachel Sparling. Florence Willey will be the official delegate from Alpha Chapter.

Florence has been our president this year. She is little, pretty and, true to her type, vivacious. Her four years at Miami have been very full from her freshman year when she was president of the freshmen girls till her senior year when she was elected president of Y. W. C. A. She has, as a recognition for her activities, been elected to Pleiade, the senior honorary society. As the president of Delta Zeta at Miami, she has been most efficient, unselfish, and faithful, and under her leadership, we have made unusual progress. We who know Florence find it difficult to describe her to those who do not know her, but perhaps the two words which do it best are—charm and personality.

BETA

MADELINE HICKEY

We are going to tell you a secret about Beta's delegate—Madeline Hickey. She is a Phi Beta Kappa. However, Madeline's modesty demands that that remain in the dark. You would never suspect it because she is always ready for all the good times that are coming her way. Swimming in the summer and skating in the winter seem to appeal to her most of all. I know you will prize her splendid qualities as much as we do, and readily agree with the old saying, "Good goods come in small packages." In spite of her size she has an unusual capacity for chocolate cake.

DELTA

VIDA WELTINER

Vida is our newly-elected president. She is a most charming girl, tall of stature, with light brown hair. Vida is beloved by everyone on the campus, and is just the one to lead our happy group. She is also very prominent in all forms of activities, especially athletics, which one may judge from her wonderful physique. Recently she has been elected vice-president of N. A. A. She is also serving on W. S. G. A. Board.

PHYLLIS VAN ATTA

It is with pleasure and pride that we introduce you to Phyllis Van Atta, our president. Phyllis is one of those rare combinations, being both an efficient and fun-loving girl. Our own little Sadie Strosnider will accompany Phyllis.

IOTA

JEAN SPEIRS

Jean Speirs, our representative, is one of the most representative girls on Iowa University campus as shown by the fact that last spring she was elected president of Staff and Circle, an organization composed of twelve most representative senior women and corresponding to Mortar Board. As well as being very interested in the future of Iota chapter, she has constructive suggestions to offer at the Convention.

KAPPA

VERA BOYER

To tell you of the things Vera Boyer has done since she has been in college would require more paper than we have been allotted. Vera is a member of Tolo Club, upperclass women's honorary, which means that she has been of service to her university and that our university world has recognized her worth.

Sara Sisler will accompany Vera. Her sweet charm will captivate all who meet her just as it captivated our hearts at our first rushing date with her.

MU

MARY ANDERSON

Mary has just completed her junior year. Although Mary has done considerable work on the campus committees we think of her more as a good house girl. She's just the sort of person who always seems to know just what to do on every occasion and makes a most charming hostess. She is very artistic and upon her devolves much of the planning of decoration schemes. She is clever in dramatics and is ever ready with a clever stunt during rushing season. Mary is universally popular among her sisters and is so truly representative of our opinions and ideals that we are sure Convention will be brought to us even though we can not all attend.

RHO

AMY PALMER

Amy has, in her three years at Denver University, become a well-known student, and an active participant in campus activity. Her bold Irish ways—I haven't any real authority for that word Irish—and her giggle are an effective combination. Although dances and parties are very much in her line, she has other specialties. The Gymnasium Department has her for an assistant, while the honorary women's athletic club includes her in its members. She has worked on the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, the annual board, and belongs to Quill, national literary club. We are glad to send Amy to represent us.

MARGARET GLADNEY

Margaret has been elected president of our chapter for the coming year. She has been our treasurer for the past two years and has taken an active interest in all campus activities. She is a member of an honorary historical fraternity and has been a member of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet for three years. She was recently elected president of Y. W. C. A. She has also been a member of W. A. A. for three years and has held several important offices, including those of president and secretary. She was the W. A. A. delegate to the national convention at Bloomington, Indiana, last year and was also the Y. W. C. A. delegate to the conference at Blue Ridge, Virginia.

Margaret possesses splendid executive ability and she is a girl who can be relied upon to perform her duties efficiently and conscientiously. She has a most winning and lovable disposition along with her other splendid qualities.

The other girls who expect to attend Convention are: Beth Jolly, Eleanor Ott, Grace Sheets, Lucile Wilkinson.

TAU

MARION C. BARBER

Flashing dark eyes, vivid coloring, a smile that somehow warms your heart—these are some of the things which distinguish Marion, our Convention delegate and newly-elected president. Marion's home is in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and she will be graduated in June, 1923, from the College of Letters and Science. During her three years here, she has shown an interest in athletics, was a member of Δ Z bowling team, of Outing Club, and of the 1923 Badger staff. As rushing chairman this year, Marion planned and executed the most successful parties Tau has ever given. Her vivacity and charm always add interest to any of our social affairs. She also acted as Panhellenic representative. We want you all to know Marion, for we like to think of her as representing the highest ideals for which Tau chapter stands.

UPSILON

(NAME OMITTED !)

Thought you never would guess from her picture clear,
She's "as thin as the paper on the wall," pretty near,
Her full length picture was so tall
We cut it just to match "you-all."
Her hair is dark, her large eyes blue,
And she's Delta Zeta through and through.
If you can't find her by length, eyes, and hair
Just "Yoo-Hoo, Skinny," and she'll be right there.

PHI

IRENE GRIEVE

Irene is one of our capable juniors who will be with us next year as our social chairman. She is an excellent student and is majoring in bacteriology with the ambition of becoming a doctor. Irene is one of the most lovable girls in the house, due partly to her wonderful disposition, willingness to help, and her true Delta spirit. She takes a great interest in college activities and has proven herself a capable manager in many undertakings.

The girls of Phi are glad that Irene will be with you at the Convention for we feel that she will bring back to us anxious ones at home all the new and worthy suggestions and the true messages of the Convention.

CHI

IRENE SHELTON

Irene is a commercial student who has just finished her second year. She is a good student, active and interested in chapter affairs. For the past year she has been our treasurer, and proved herself a very responsible girl. To those of us who know her best she has a very pleasing personality, makes friends easily, and is altogether a very lovable and capable girl.

PSI

FLORENCE ROLF

Florence has exceedingly splendid executive ability and has held several responsible positions on the campus. We could send no finer representative, nor one more worthy of the opportunity of going to Convention. We of Psi are mighty proud of her and love her dearly.

OMEGA

DORCAS CONKLIN

One of the good things which the fall of 1922 brought to the University of Oregon campus was Dorcas Conklin (though we just call her Dork). She entered as a junior from the Oregon Normal School from where we had been hearing such splendid reports concerning her.

Needless to say, these all looked good to us; we looked her up and she pledged Delta Zeta along the first of October, 1921. Since that time her record has by no means waned, making both teams in basketball and tennis, belonging to an honorary physical education fraternity, being a prominent worker in Y. W. C. A. and Woman's League, and winning highest honors in the Physical Education Department.

In representing us with her true fraternity spirit and ability, we feel that she will be able not only to get much from the Convention but also to give.

Expenses

FOR several weeks we have been working over estimates on the various proposals of entertainment for the Convention and have done our very best to plan a program that will please everybody at a very moderate cost. The one obstacle has been that we have to leave time for "Business" for we have so many things at Ithaca we should love to have you enjoy, and we are able to insert only a few in this entertainment part of the program.

We shall all be together in Sage Dormitory on the campus and the price for room and board will be only three (3) dollars per day, making a total of fifteen (15) dollars for the five days of the Convention. The fee for entertainment will be seven (7) dollars, two (2) dollars of which should accompany the following registration cards and the remaining five (5) dollars payable upon arrival at Ithaca. These expenses are really not high and we are hoping a great many Delta Zetas will fill out this card, detach and mail at once.
