Sorority Life Becomes Community Purpose

feature

Every day in Denver Colorado, day laborers wait on street corners or in day-labor centers, hoping that even in this troubled economy someone will give them a job for a day or longer. Often, these laborers go for long hours without food as they wait and hope.

Student volunteers, including Delta Zeta's Rho Chapter, at the University of Denver work to solve the problem at PB&J Night, where, as the initials imply, there is a lot of peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwich making. The group makes sack lunches every Tuesday night and distributes them the following morning at El Centro Humanitario day-labor center in downtown Denver.

The majority of the supplies are paid for by the group's sponsor, Foundation Campus Ministry. Students also supply some of the peanut butter and jelly through a donation box. There is usually an apple or fruit leather added to the lunch. In one session, the group made 77 lunches. They fed all the workers at El Centro for a day.<sup>1</sup>

Delta Zeta women dedicate themselves to the greater good – to making a difference – to improving and changing the world.

No matter what our generation, the challenges of today can become the opportunities to enrich tomorrow. As members of Delta Zeta, we view societal, economic, intellectual challenges, and even warfare, as the chance to “develop plans for guidance and unity in action” – to change the world for the better.

In her 107-year history, Delta Zeta has seen change on an unimaginable scale. The members of Delta Zeta have persevered, guided by that “unity in action” that our Founders set forth in 1902. We ascribe to follow our values, which translate to community purpose. That purpose, “objects worthy of the highest aim and purpose,” or, the greater good of a community, works to effect change for the benefit of everyone. We stand together in the resolve that not only does our united effort enhance the Sorority that we love, but that this cohesive force does much to enrich the world in which we live.

“I believe that Delta Zeta will find a work worthy of her united effort, perhaps something different than has ever been done before. I believe we should all be searching out this thing ... because we want to play the game of life right and give back to college, fraternity, state, home and country more than we have received. Organized effort, all working together is what helps the world along faster.”

Elizabeth Coulter Stephenson A
Past National President, 1912-1916

Philanthropic Ideals From the Very Beginning

During the 1920s and 1930s, Delta Zeta established a fully-accredited school in a remote area of Appalachian Kentucky. The Sorority also built a community center called Vest and furnished a clinic in the area.

While philanthropy is an important part of what we do, there is much more occurring every day in every place a Delta Zeta lives. She knows that as a citizen of the world community, she has a civic responsibility to do what she can to improve the lives of others and to enrich her community and the Earth we call home. She does this by embodying the Delta Zeta purpose in every phase of her life.

Members care about, and for, the world they live in. They improve the environment and educate those around them about how they can do the same.

She is passionate about rescuing injured and abused exotic and native animals and enjoys educating the public about the importance of wildlife conservation.

Michelle Bolon-Daubon ΘΦ '87 is a teacher in Maryland using field experiences to teach elementary school students about the natural world and the impact that we have on it. She also coordinates green efforts at 24 other schools.

Love of Country

Delta Zetas, American and Canadian, carry a strong love of country in their hearts. If it were not for the freedoms we, as Americans, enjoy today, Delta Zeta would not have been founded. Our Founders came together to create an organization that would not only provide untold opportunities for its members, but would effect real and positive change in the world.

Georgia Lee Chandler Hornung

E '15, two-time National Vice President, served with the National War Work Council for Women and the Red Cross overseas during World War I.

Vivian Shriver Thompson X '27, an Angel of Bataan (members of the United States Army and Navy Nurse Corps) in World War II, survived three years as a prisoner of war, continuing to serve as a nurse throughout her imprisonment. When she was released in 1945, she was decorated with the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star and a Presidential Citation with Oak Leaf Clusters.

Ruth Simering E '17, who established the Caryatides Award and designed the Delta Zeta flag, served in World War II in Australia and New Guinea with a Red Cross Hospital unit.

Gail Patrick AΠ '29, Delta Zeta's 1962 Woman of the Year, received a citation from the Canadian government for the many Red Cross tours she undertook, often flying into inaccessible areas of Canada to visit troops and promote the sale of war bonds.

who served in Vietnam as Donut Dollies, women who joined the Red Cross Supplemental Recreation Activities Overseas program. In 2008, Barbara received an award from the Vietnam Women's Memorial Foundation for her volunteer work on the Vietnam Women's Memorial.

Delta Zeta's Woman of the Year for 2000, Brigadier General Barbara Campbell Fast EF '72, (retired), was the National Security Agency (NSA)

Associate Deputy Director of Operations, Military Support (ADDO(MS)), a key position in preserving the security of American troops and ultimately all Americans.

In the current wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, Delta Zetas leave their families and sacrifice their safety to fight for the freedom "to crusade for justice, to seek the truth and defend it always." Members serve in all branches of the military and in every rank. They are brigadier generals, pilots, engineers, doctors, nurses and soldiers.

Those Delta Zeta members who are not in the military are supporting our troops with care packages, cards and letters and moral support. The Lambda Psi Chapter (Columbus State University) in Georgia regularly visits the troops at Fort Benning with care packages and thanks for their service to our country. Suzanne Cowley Agnew ΔΓ '82, read in The LAMP about Lieutenant Colonel Stacey Griffin Garmon II '83, who was stationed in Iraq, and reached out to contact Stacey to show her support. Today they are good friends.

No matter what time in history, Delta Zetas are there. As national and world events unfold, the women of Delta Zeta are on the forefront, making an impact however they can. We see a need. We find a solution. We uphold our civic duty to help others. And that help translates to action – the associated purpose that defines our mission to endeavor to attain that highest aim – to improve and strengthen a person, a family, a community, the environment, and ultimately, to enrich the world.

Delta Zeta remains relevant in the lives of our members. Our principles provide direction for a woman's personal and professional life, but also influence the areas she touches with her life: schools, places of worship, communities and the broader world arena. The sorority experience enriches and serves the community purpose, unwavering in the face of any challenge, steadfast in any era.

*Delta Zeta Sorority Honors
Marcia Wallace ΔN,
Parsons College (Iowa), as
Woman of the Year for 2009*

Marcia Wallace ΔN '61 Emmy-award winning actress and comedienne, uses her fame as a platform to help women. With each life experience, she has found a way to communicate what she has learned to inspire others and champion women.

As a 22-year breast cancer survivor, Marcia speaks around the country to promote early detection and low cost mammography. In 2007, she won the Gilda Radner Courage Award from Roswell Park Cancer Institute for helping educate Americans about the importance of early cancer detection. She has worked closely with the Susan G. Komen Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

Marcia's autobiography, "Don't Look Back, We're Not Going That Way," chronicles her life, fame, family, tragedy, and why she can "still manage to count my lucky chickens." Told with humor and poignancy, Marcia's story is inspirational to women everywhere. She has dealt with mental illness, which she discusses candidly. At the height of her success as the quick-witted receptionist on the Emmy-nominated "The Bob Newhart Show," she found herself checking into a mental hospital after suffering a nervous breakdown.

The experience taught Marcia an important lesson. "When I knew the show was a success, I found out that you can't look outside yourself for real happiness," she says.

She was born to an unloving mother and an abusive father. Yet Marcia, gifted with talent, tenacity, resilience and a big heart, had an inability to feel sorry for herself. She also experienced forgiveness and reconciliation with her parents before their deaths.

She knows the challenges of single motherhood, after losing her beloved husband of six years, Dennis Hawley, to cancer. Today her son, Mikey, is starting his senior year in the theater program at UCLA.

Among many awards, Marcia received the Honorary Doctorate of Public Service Award from Luzerne Community College in Wilkes Barre, Pennsylvania in 2008 and the Spirit of Life Woman of the Year Award from the City of Hope Medical Center in Duarte, California.

As a collegian, Marcia was president of the Delta Nu Chapter at Parsons College and says of that experience, "I loved college and my sorority experience, and I value and treasure the friends that I made there. My life is better for it—no question about it." Today she continues to attend the Delta Nu Chapter reunions held in Fairfield, Iowa.

Marcia's acting and producing credits include "The Bob Newhart Show," which received the TV Land Icon Award in 2007. In the 1980s, she made guest appearances on TV shows such as "Taxi," "Magnum P.I.," "Alf," "Murder, She Wrote" and later, as Murphy Brown's efficient secretary in the television series of that same name, a role for which she received an Emmy nomination.

Marcia became the voice of Edna Krabappel on the animated series "The Simpsons," for which she won an Emmy for Outstanding Voice-Over Performance in 1992. She also appeared as Maggie the housekeeper on "That's My Bush," an irreverent sitcom, and had recurring roles on "Seventh Heaven," "Full House" and "Charles in Charge."

To add to her many stage credits, this past summer she played the Mother Superior in "Nunsense 2" and Faye in "The Sugar Bean Sisters" before originating the role of Leona in the new play "Rest, In Pieces." She also made her soap opera debut for several weeks as bumbling kidnapper Annie Wilkes on "The Young and the Restless." Last month she was elected to the national board of the Screen Actors Guild.

The 2009 Norma Minch Andrisek Leadership Conference

Inspiring Enlightened Leaders

Today's leaders may find inspiration in different ways than our Founders did, using today's technology to connect to others through social media or texting or discovering a song downloaded from the Internet or a video posted on YouTube that energizes them. But there is no substitute for the one-on-one, face-to-face connection, which was, outside of letter writing, the only way that Delta Zeta's Founders could connect with those who would help them in building their dream of a national sorority.

The Norma Minch Andrisek Leadership Conference has been connecting with collegians for 29 years by providing interactive learning sessions which remain relevant to the issues facing students on today's campuses. "Leading Conversations for Change" was the theme of the 2009 Conference, held for the first time in the place of Delta Zeta's founding, at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio.

The conference allowed participants to become fully involved in active conversation circles, led by Delta Zeta alumnae or interfraternal friends/facilitators, as they explored their leadership journey and how they became the leaders they are today. Moreover, collegians learned how to engage in conversations to create change. They then committed to bring that change back to their worlds.

"Legacy Tours" took participants to notable locations on Miami's campus and through the National Historical Museum and Headquarters to learn more about the Sorority's history and the extraordinary six women who not only founded a national sorority at Miami University, but also laid the groundwork to influence lives and cultivate leaders for the next 107 years.

One of the most memorable events of this year's conference was the program "Delta Zetas Who Have Changed the World." A panel of influential and inspirational alumnae included Michelle Albrecht Smith AX, National President of Delta Zeta Sorority; Cindy Tinney Kozil TB '81, Vice President, Student Development and Retention at Dean College in Franklin, Massachusetts; Tina Prather McIntosh, TX '91, Founder of Joy's House, an adult daycare facility in Indianapolis, Indiana; and Barbara Poremba TB, Vice President of Sales for the Coca Cola Company and Delta Zeta Foundation Trustee.

Each woman spoke about how Delta Zeta has influenced her life both personally and professionally and each credited the Sorority with helping her to become a woman of strong values and conviction. Beyond that, each alumna also spoke about how Delta Zeta has helped her to help the world around her.

The Norma Minch Andrisek Leadership Conference and other Delta Zeta leadership and educational programs, supported in part by gifts to the Delta Zeta Foundation, are truly, to paraphrase Gandhi, the "change that we want to see in the world." These experiences are expanding Delta Zeta's reach to educate and support Sorority leaders who are the agents of change in the world today.

In Tribute

Florence Hood Miner AB '27, 1909-2009

The National Council of Delta Zeta announced with deep sadness the passing of Florence Hood Miner AB '27 (University of Illinois), of Castle Rock, Colorado, Delta Zeta's National Historian Emeritus and Past National Officer, on August 23, 2009 at the age of 100. "Delta Zeta has lost our 'Living Legend,' Florence Hood Miner, whose own history was as fascinating as that of our Sorority, and who truly dedicated her life to Delta Zeta," Michelle Albrecht Smith AX, National President, said. "The loss of such a unique and treasured individual is a void that cannot be filled, and we will mourn her passing for a long time to come."

Mrs. Miner, affectionately and fittingly nicknamed the "Living Legend," witnessed Delta Zeta's progress and metamorphosis over an impressive span of some 80 years. Through her involvement with Delta Zeta, the Sorority gained an invaluable sense of history, benefited from her professional talents, and through her generosity and wisdom reinforced its future.

She became the Sorority's National Historian in 1981, and wrote a history book celebrating Delta Zeta's 80-year anniversary entitled "Delta Zeta Sorority, 1902-1982." Mrs. Miner was also Editor of The LAMP, Delta Zeta's national magazine, from 1936-1940 and again from 1969-1981. Readers enjoyed Mrs. Miner's own column, "The Lampost," a regular feature that always provided entertainment and interesting facts about Delta Zeta, its members and its history. In addition, she served for many years as the Editor of the Delta Zeta National Convention newsletter, "The Lamkin." She was a well-known figure at Delta Zeta conventions and proudly held the record for the most conventions (34) ever attended, where she was known for her "Fireside Chats," stories about the Sorority told in the presence of rapt collegians and alumnae alike with Mrs. Miner's own inimitable sense of humor.

Mrs. Miner was not only an important figure in Delta Zeta's past, but was an inspiring contributor to its future. With the Florence Hood Miner Standards Programming Fund, she established an endowment to embellish and upgrade continuing educational programs and develop new programs for collegians. She was also the namesake of the Florence Hood Miner Award, given annually to Delta Zeta members who are in their junior year and have made significant contributions to their college chapter and Delta Zeta through outstanding leadership on campus, while maintaining a good academic record. Her generosity reflected her commitment to advancing Delta Zeta's values and furthering its purpose.

Westcott AA, Treasurer; Gertrude Houk Fariss O, Secretary; Mildred Bullock Keezel AS; Florence Hood AB, Alumnae Vice President and Bernice Hutchison Gale M, Membership Vice President.*

Mrs. Miner was initiated into the Alpha Beta Chapter at the University of Illinois in 1927. She worked on the staff of the school newspaper, the Daily Illini, developing a passion for journalism that would serve her well in her career endeavors and in her service to Delta Zeta Sorority. After earning her Bachelor of Science degree in journalism, Mrs. Miner began her long and successful professional career. She followed her love of fashion and worked as a fashion coordinator and buyer at Saks Fifth Avenue in Detroit. She also taught fashion classes at Wayne State University in Detroit and spent more than 30 years writing for the Nevada, Iowa Evening Journal.

Mrs. Miner leaves behind her daughter, Juliet Miner I (University of Iowa) and her son, John. She was proud of her granddaughters, Stephanie Miner, an alumna of the Beta Kappa Chapter (Iowa State University) and a Past Collegiate Chapter President, and Danielle Miner, an alumna of the Delta Xi Chapter (University of Northern Colorado). She would have been especially pleased to know that her great niece, Carly Quina, had just pledged the Beta Xi Chapter at Auburn University.

Mrs. Miner's generosity and countless contributions to the Sorority stand as testimony to her devotion to Delta Zeta. The Sorority will not forget her remarkable and incomparable spirit.

Tributes to Florence Hood Miner AB '27 1909-2009

With the passing of Delta Zeta's beloved Florence Hood Miner AB '27, National Historian Emeritus and Past National Officer, Mrs. Miner's family has requested that anyone wishing to make a contribution in memory of Mrs. Miner may do so by donating to the Florence Hood Miner Standards Programming Fund through the Delta Zeta Foundation, either online at <https://www.deltazeta.org/Content/NavigationMenu/Foundation/HowYouCanHelp1/OnlineContributionForm2/default.htm> or by using the downloadable form at <https://www.deltazeta.org/Content/NavigationMenu/Foundation/HowYouCanHelp1/DZFoundationContributionForm.doc>. Mrs. Miner established this endowment to enhance and upgrade continuing educational programs and develop new programs for collegians.

In addition, Delta Zeta Sorority will be planning a tribute to Mrs. Miner at the 2010 National Convention at the JW Marriott Starr Pass Resort and Spa in Tucson, Arizona on June 30 - July 3, 2010. We are pleased that Mrs. Miner's family will be joining us for this special event.

A Life's Calling Fulfilled

"I went to Africa thinking I was going to change it, but Africa changed me!" says Julie Senn OM '98 (University of South Carolina/Upstate), who worked in Tanzania, Africa with Full Dimensions Ministries to help operate a medical clinic and build churches.

Julie, a native of South Carolina, worked side by side with doctors, dental hygienists and evangelistic teams. "Africans from various tribes walk long distances and wait all day to be seen by one of the doctors we provided," says Julie. "Sometimes, we traveled 12 hours a day going from town to town. We drove two hours every morning in a safari Jeep to the clinic."

She is no stranger to the hardship of others. In 2006, Julie volunteered for six months to help victims of Hurricane Katrina rebuild their lives. "It was total devastation everywhere," she says. "I worked hanging and finishing dry wall and counseled pregnant women who, after the storm hit and they lost everything, couldn't see how they were going to support their unborn babies. We taught classes on baby care and had a store where they could earn points and get free baby supplies. The residents of Biloxi, Mississippi were so grateful! They wanted to repay us in some way, so they would cook food like jambalaya and seafood gumbo for us."

As Julie lived and worked with the tribal people in the villages and cities of Arusha, Singida, Morogoro and Dar es Salaam, she found many rewarding moments in giving of herself to help others. "Some of the children had never seen a white person before. They were very timid at first because we looked different, but as I stretched out my hand and they felt my skin, they realized that it was only on the surface ... I was still just like them. It was amazing to hear them speaking in their tribal languages. I didn't speak the language, but I felt as if I knew what they were saying. They spoke with such expression and laughter, and we really communicated through body language and love ... which is the universal language."

She learned, too, that sisterhood is the universal element that connects all women. "When you see a mother holding her sick child in her arms with tears rolling down her face, you don't have to speak her language to understand her pain and extend love, provide care, and the hope of faith in God. I learned that it doesn't matter how different a culture you live in, a woman's heart is a woman's heart! If they live in an L.A. mansion or a grass hut in the bush of Tanzania, the need for love, companionship, and a sisterhood is the same."

Julie's selflessness and compassion are well known to her friends and family. In an article in the Spartanburg Herald Journal, Julie's friend Jodi said, "Julie has the heart to make a good difference in the world. If everybody lived life like Julie, then this world would be a much better place."

Find Julie on Facebook at <http://www.facebook.com/people/Julie-Marie-Senn/558220139> and follow her on Twitter at <http://twitter.com/JulieMarieSenn> to learn more about her missions.

Spotlight Iowa City: International Student Finds Home in a University of Iowa Sorority by Molly Burke

A show called “Sweet Valley” inspired Bridgar Nayiga to pledge a sorority. Except there are a few crucial differences: Nayiga is not a blond twin from California like her favorite TV characters. She is a UI [University of Iowa] freshman who arrived from Uganda a little more than two weeks ago.

Relaxing in a local coffeehouse and sipping an iced lemonade, Nayiga said moving to Iowa City is not her first foray into the United States. After several visits to extended family scattered across the country, a cousin in Minnesota recommended the UI for its actuarial-science program.

Upon her arrival in Iowa, Nayiga realized a sorority may be the best reminder of home. She comes from Kampala, Uganda’s capital city, which is packed with around 2 million residents. She grew up with 11 siblings and attended a boarding school of about 50 girls.

“Maybe I want to re-create or repeat what I had,” the 19-year-old said.

At Orientation, Nayiga met members of the UI Panhellenic Council, and her interest grew. After the application process, she was able to participate in traditional Greek festivities, including rush [recruitment].

Wearing her red “All Eyes on ΔZ” bid-day shirt, she said her favorite part of rush [recruitment] was dressing up and meeting her future sisters. Although she said all sorority sisters were welcoming, she chose to pledge Delta Zeta because she felt comfortable with the members and everything “clicked.” “The girls just made me feel like I shouldn’t look at any other option,” she said.

As the only international student to pledge Delta Zeta this year, Nayiga said joining the sorority in some ways helped her transition into university life.

“It helps her get more involved on campus and get to know a diverse group of people and enrich her college life,” said Kristen Bogusz, the vice president of new member education at Delta Zeta. And Nayiga said the women always offer to pick her up when she gets lost, in spite of spending a fair share of her time staring at a campus map.

“I’ve gotten lost like five times now,” she said.

She’s even enjoying the food here, especially anything spicy — these meals are a big change from the relatively bland dishes in Uganda, including “matoke,” a mashed up vegetable inside a banana leaf. Home for Nayiga is almost 8,000 miles away, which makes everything from travel to daily communication difficult. She said she has no immediate plans to head home for the holidays but must return every summer to renew her visa. She is able to talk to her family about twice a week, but that costs $20 for three hours.

Fortunately, a scholarship from Steel and Tube Industries in Uganda covers her tuition. She also receives a monthly allowance from her parents, which she is saving to pay for her sorority dues.

She said her mother and father support her joining a sorority, but they have plenty of questions about the unfamiliar concept. “They were most surprised that the girls actually lived together in a house,” she said.

For now, Nayiga said, she will focus on finding a job and recovering from cultural shock, such as the sight of short skirts on campus. And she looks forward to another new experience: American football.

Chelsea Ingram Inspires Others to Volunteer

Chelsea Ingram, a member of the Omicron Lambda Chapter (North Carolina State University) received the President's Volunteer Service Award. The President's Council on Service and Civic Participation created the award program as a way to honor and thank Americans who, by their demonstrated commitment and example, inspire others to engage in volunteer service.

Chelsea holds the title of Miss Garner 2009, which provides scholarships and awards to deserving young women in North Carolina. Chelsea says, "In 2007, I won the first ever Miss America/Children's Miracle Network Miracle Maker Award for the state of North Carolina. I was selected to be on the prestigious North Carolina Azalea Queen's Court in April of 2009 in Wilmington, North Carolina. I am one of only six women in North Carolina chosen for this honor."

Chelsea also works tirelessly with the American Heart Association. "I did not choose my platform; it chose me," she says, "because heart disease is prevalent on both sides of my family." Due to the many heart and vascular related illnesses many family members have suffered, Chelsea is very passionate about her platform "Love your Heart, Love Yourself." She is a spokesperson for the Triangle Chapter of the American Heart Association, and has helped raise thousands of dollars over the course of her six years volunteering.

She makes weekly appearances to civic organizations and children's groups, educating and advocating heart disease awareness and prevention. She took part in an educational internship under the leadership of Dr. Richard Daw with Wake Heart and Vascular Associates, an opportunity that has taught her so much about heart disease and what needs to be done to diagnose and prevent it. Chelsea speaks frequently to many civic organizations and has been recognized by both the Wake and Johnston County School Boards for her outstanding community service and work promoting her platform. She has used guest appearances on various local radio stations to reach hundreds of people with her Heart Healthy Lifestyle message. Chelsea has also published articles in local wellness magazines telling her "stories of the heart," and advocating heart healthy lifestyles.

A senior honor student majoring in meteorology at North Carolina State University, Chelsea has a minor in music. She has been a student of voice for 15 years and is an accomplished pianist, flutist and piccoloist. Her career ambition is to receive her doctorate in meteorology and to become a meteorologist in a top-ten media market.

With the distinct honor of being named the very first winner of the Miss America/Children's Miracle Network Miracle Maker Award, Chelsea has raised the most funds in North Carolina for the Children's Miracle Network than any local or state titleholder.

She represented the Miss Garner pageant in the 2009 Miss North Carolina Pageant in June of 2009. Her ultimate goal is to foster support and growth in the community, state and nation for the Miss Garner, Miss North Carolina and Miss America Scholarship Pageants while utilizing her platform "Love your Heart, Love Yourself," Heart Disease Prevention and Education and the Miss America Organization's partnership with the Children's Miracle Network.

Kathleen Horenstein and Amanda Quach attended the 2009 Norma Minch Andrisek Leadership Conference, held in Oxford, Ohio, in July. Kathleen gives us her reflections on that event.

Kathleen's "Top 5 Things That I Went Away With"

1. Reconnecting with members from other chapters that I had met from the Presidents Academy in January and Region Weekend in April.
2. Having several beneficial workshops – this is the best conference I have attended.
3. Seeing National Headquarters and being in Oxford was an inspirational experience in understanding our history.
4. Being conscious of others and yourself to be an effective leader – you need to have multiple perspectives to make effective changes.
5. The need to change yourself in order to change the world – you have to change your thinking and your behavior to change things on a bigger scale.

You make these experiences possible with your financial support of Delta Zeta. You enrich their lives and provide them with the experiences that make their wonderful collegiate years the foundation for changing the world.

Your gift to the Delta Zeta Foundation does just that.

Thank You!
