A Fish Story for Seniors

By Catherine McFarlane, Beta Beta

THIS is a story of a mountain trout who lived, as some of us do, in an exciting, turbulent stream crowded with game fish. This trout, waxing stronger and more sly as he grew to adult trout-hood, finally became the chief splash in his stream. He it was who knew the best hiding places under snarly logs in deep pools; he it was who could best distinguish a natural fly from an artificial one; he it was who knew the surest ways to shake out a hook from one's mouth; and he it was who led the way up rapids and who gave counsel to all the others in time of flood.

Often on pleasant days he delivered bits of his wisdom to the younger school of trout, lecturing to them on the ways and wiles of fishermen. Awed, the younger fry clustered near to hear him. He was a veteran of many struggles, therefore to them he was venerable.

Likewise his contemporaries, those who had survived with him the sportsmen, regarded him with respect. His dignity and importance in the eyes of others made him almost immune to attack, and his strength enabled him to secure and to hold the choice lurking places. He was sought out and deferred to. All in all, he was a leader of trout and a fish of considerable weight in his community.

One day, however, in a careless mood, he snapped a fly that concealed a cruel hook and found himself, to his great surprise, about to be drawn from his familiar and well-loved stream. Then how he fought! He leaped, he dodged, he struggled; he tried to reach one refuge after another. But his efforts were in vain; all his most cunning tricks failed him. Finally, exhausted, yielding to the insistent pull of the line, he thought of what his going would mean to the stream and to his fellow trout.

"All of my old familiar haunts will be empty of me; my friends will seek me in vain for counsel! And who will instruct the younger fry? Who will drill them in the ascent of rapids and advise them when floods roil the water? Who will govern the stream in the way it should go? Oh, what will they do without me? Surely there will be a vacant space left in the very water where I have lived so long!"

But as he was drawn from the stream, casting a despairing glance of farewell upon it, lo, he saw the waters close together and flow on.

What the A.W.A. Survey Reports as to the Economic Value of Advanced Education

PARENTS who every year debate the question, "Shall I send my daughter to college or give her something else?" are going to have light from a new source. It has been turned on by a survey of its members recently published by the American Woman's Association of New York City, a club of more than 4000 business and professional women. The study, undertaken in connection with the President's Emergency Committee on Employment, is based on 2000 detailed questionnaires. Very definitely it declares, "A college education does pay." Moreover it tells why.

Perhaps you imagine such a conclusion has all the timeliness of a report on who discovered America? You think the issue is closed because more than 100,000 sweet girl graduates step every year from the collegiate platform. But this number represents only a little over 1 per cent of the school population and thousands of parents, because of limited means, social ambitions, or conflicting ideals, continue to cherish a disbelief in the value of higher education for women.

Only recently a worried father writing in the Forum said in effect, "A well endowed marriage arrangement at an early age is far more important for girls than four years of college. Let's give our daughters dowries instead of a college education." The article is typical of the diverse conceptions still set up in opposition to the worth of an education. Now comes the American Woman's Association to prove that no matter how much needed by girls are such advantages as foreign travel or marriage dowries, no other plan for a young woman's best adjustment to life can take the place of sound training. Nowadays a girl, whether or not she marries, is more than likely to work and if she works she will make money in direct proportion to her advanced education.

The unit surveyed by this metropolitan club represents a cross section of wage-earners on a level far above average. Their great diversity of interests is indicated by their 150 different vocations. Their median salary of $3030 is nearly twice as large as that of similar economic groups heretofore studied—for example the business and professional women whose experience was published last year by the Michigan Business Studies. Fifty per cent of the membership have had from 16 to 22 years of employment and therefore typify the tested and mature element in self-supporting groups.

As to education, here is no exclusively university aggregation, but one which represents every stage of preparation from less than high school graduation to a brilliant collection of advanced degrees. Because of the basis of comparison thus afforded within an exceptionally successful group, the findings of the survey on the economic value of general and specialized training are of great significance.

Of these 2000 women, 30 per cent are college graduates and 11.5 per cent have post graduate degrees. The latter group are concentrated in teaching, medicine, law, research and personnel work, but are represented in all but three of the vocations listed. Typical yearly earnings of women with masters' degrees and doctors' degrees in philosophy and law or their equivalent amount to $4105. In clear contrast is the median salary of $2655 earned by those who did not complete the high school course.

Naturally, the A.W.A. survey figures reveal the fact that the exceptionally able individual can overcome the lack of education. Many such persons were found within the group earning $7000 a year. Moreover, the schedules also proved that a degree is no guarantee of higher salaries. Nevertheless, the typical earnings show a consistent increase which indicates that length of formal education is one of the factors responsible for high earnings. The chances are even that a woman with a graduate degree will earn 55 per cent more than a woman with no degree and 51 per cent more than those holding a mere bachelor of arts. Finally, among the small number of women whose income is $10,000 and over, 62.2 per cent have at least a college degree.

Much the same relationship between education and economic advantage appears in the tables of unemployment. Women who held their positions during the present period of depression are largely those who have education beyond the high school, those with post-graduate degrees and those with some form of technical or special training. Here again the fact is that the mere possession of a B.A. degree does not render the holder immune from unemployment. But the tendency is for permanence and stability to increase as education increases. Indeed, only 1.9 per cent of those with graduate degrees are out of positions. These facts are the more impressive because the entire group of 2000 shows 6.2 per cent of unemployment and, considering the advanced character of these earners, that rate is surprising. It shows that manual workers are by no means the only ones suffering from the present business depression and that the so-called protected economic group is bearing a relatively large share of distress.

Further analysis of these collected schedules indicates that the woman with specialized training is the one best protected. Those in the profession of law, for example, showed unemployment only to the extent of 2.2 per cent and almost four-fifths of the group reported no reduction in earnings. Women who teach in college and in normal and professional schools were all employed and 94.4 per cent of them reported no cut in salary. Compare these figures with those in the commercial field, 11.5 per cent of whom are unemployed and 40.8 per cent have had salary cuts. In the manufacturing field which of course involves those employees only in clerical, executive, and special work, 12.2 per cent were unemployed and 39.4 per cent had salary cuts.

It is true that the causes of unemployment are complex. The type of organization for which the individual works, the type of work she does, her length of employment all enter into the situation together with factors of personal ability. It is also true that women performing unusual tasks are more apt to be thrown out of work than those engaged in traditional occupations. For GREETINGS, Delta Zeta, and don't take in any leaden advice. I have a warm spot, in what I think is my heart, for Delta Zeta, because you represent youth, which is beauty. Being older, I might be jealous of beauty, or suspicious of it, or afraid, or resentful, like a faculty.

But I was young once, myself, and beautiful, and I can remember the pitfalls that confronted me, even as they leer at you now. There they are, all the old entrapments, in the form of hideous advices. "Be wise." "Be sane." "Be careful." "Be thoughtful." But if the truth had been in them, it would have come out, and I should have seen, as you should now, that they all resolve themselves into one gruesome plea: "Be old!"

Don't you be any such doddblasted thing. You stick to your youth, and beauty, as hard and fast as you can, and by so doing you'll be old plenty quick enough. Laugh, as I did, at aged youth, though it be ugly and misshapen. If you'll just do that, you can laugh, as I do now, at youthful age, which is the only thing I have found that is uglier and more grotesque than sage immaturity.

Scorn age, which bids you join it; just as I scorn youth and age alike that bid me be young. That is my message and advice to you, Delta Zeta, with my greetings. But I'd feel badly, ever so, if I thought you were foolish enough to take it! Go right ahead, with your youth, and your beauty. But don't ask for a second helping, for it would disagree with you. And me.

example, only 3.9 per cent of the librarians as compared with 30.8 per cent of the sales analysts and experts are unemployed. Nevertheless, a detailed study of these records plainly indicates that it is generally true that the woman who has in addition to general college education some special technical training is apt both to earn more than those less well prepared and to continue at work even during hard times.

Unlike the industrial wage-earner who is always subject to close inspection on the part of investigators, the high grade business and professional women seldom submits to a study of this sort. Indeed, the survey made by the American Woman's Association is the first of its kind undertaken in New York City. What the report has to say is of great significance to parents, educators and to young women facing the future. Its findings make a new contribution to knowledge of the modern woman and at no point are they more suggestive than in the proof they offer that education is an investment which enriches the economic life quite as definitely as it does the mind and spirit.

A Music Student in Germany

THE old Marktplatz was filled with tiny open stands, each displaying toys, cookies, fancy-work, cutlery—and down at one end was a constantly diminishing pile of fir trees, each buyer carrying his purchase home over his shoulder. Very quickly the night had fallen, and the crowds were dispersing, homeward bound. Suddenly came a clarion call from the old Rathaus balcony. The scurrying people halted, all eyes turned toward the balcony, the entire Marktplatz at attention, and then—"Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht." Another Christmas was being ushered in by six costumed trumpeters in the same way as it has been done since 1556. One more Weinachtslied, "O Tannenbaum," and the rite was finished.

Such was Christmas Eve in Leipzig. There is so much more of the spiritual than of the material shown in this, the original Christmas land. The festival is chiefly for the children, and the toy and doll shops are perfect wonders. I remember a delightful Sunday afternoon whiled away in a doll store—merely looking. The shop windows are laden with gingerbread houses and very real-looking Hänsel and Gretel gingerbread children, and there are the traditional marzipan confections to tempt the eye. The Christmas trees here would be a joy to the fastidious American who loves simplicity. They have only icicles, pine cones, faint tracings of silver, and white wax candles. Quite different from our gaily decorated trees!

Vacation in southern Germany? It sounded very interesting, so mother and I went to Nürnberg directly after Christmas. It is a fascinating old city with real walls and towers and tiny streets, and every inch picturesque. The Neupert Museum here, showing the development of the piano, was of great interest to me, especially so because Herr Neupert was kind enough to be my guide, and he allowed me to play all the old instruments. One of Mozart's was here, Beethoven's too, and the Empress Eugenie's, it was thrilling to run one's fingers over the keys. Nürnberg has fine old patrician houses, and a formidable looking castle. Inadvertently we found ourselves in the torture chambers and dungeon and every night since the last thought I have is how thankful I am not to have lived in the Middle Ages. Really, the German sense of ingenuity is marvelous, but when applied to that sort of thing it is appalling! We visited the home of Hans Sachs of Meistersinger fame (his tiny shoemaking shop is just as he left it in the fifteenth century) and also the home of Albrecht Dürer, the artist. The latter is filled with reproductions and prints, the originals, of course, are in the large museums.

Wandering about one evening we happened to get lost—this happened remarkably often—and found ourselves in a narrow little alley, quite dark, save for a red heart gleaming in the dusk. Walking up to it, we discovered it was the sign of the "Bratwurst Herzlein," a fascinating little restaurant in an old patrician house. We found its companion the next evening, the "Bratwurst Glöcklein," a tiny "room and a half" glued to the side of an old chapel. Walking in we expected to meet Hans Sachs or Albrecht Dürer, but whom should we meet instead but three charming Texans who enjoyed the quaintness of the place with us. Reluctant to leave Nürnberg, but with promise of more pleasure in store, we went to Rothenburg.

It is a very small walled city and is perhaps the most authentic picture of a medieval town that exists in Germany today. There had been a fresh snowfall and the whole scene looked just like an illustration in a fairy-tale book. It has not changed since 1650. Far below the city, which is on a hill, runs the Tauber River winding its way past small villages through the rolling footlands. Rothenburg has narrower streets than Nürnberg, and around every corner lies some surprise for the visitor. There is a fine new Rathaus here (1572!) with many reminders of feudal glory. Some of the walls are lined with the coats-of-arms of the nobility, dating from 1200 to 1850. The town clock, on the old Rathaus, 1240, has quite a story all its own. In 1631 the city was taken by an invader, Tilly by name, and the Bürgermeister and council were sentenced to death. Tilly, relenting a trifle, promised clemency if one of the city fathers would empty a three and one-half liter goblet of wine in one draught! The Bürgermeister did the deed, and the clock relives the scene at noon every day. On either side of the clock is a window, and precisely at the stroke of twelve each opens. In one is the Bürgermeister, slowly draining the goblet, in the other is Tilly, watching intently. All of the south German cities have old clocks. In Nürnberg, in front of the Frauen

Kirche quite a spectacle takes place. Just at noon, seven princes come out, bow to the Elector who raises his scepter in recognition of each bow, angels on either side of the throne lift trumpets, two angels high up clash cymbals, and two atop the turret strike out the hour on gongs. The princely procession passes three times, all the figures are life-size, and the whole is very interesting. Munich has its clock on the front of the Rathaus, and there are several costumed figures, dancing a Ländler to the accompaniment of the noonday chimes.

Munich was most interesting for its famous art galleries, the Deutsches Museum, and the magnificent royal Bavarian residence. The people in southern Germany are very friendly and courteous. We had self-imposed guides everywhere, people who offered themselves just to see us enjoy their city and appreciate its treasures. One little lad who spoke excellent English told us that it was his ambition to go to Texas and be a cowboy. Here one sees the genuine "Gemütlichkeit" for which Germany is so renowned. We found everywhere the same geniality and apparent "joie de vivre."

Garmisch is the famous winter resort in the Bavarian Alps, just a few hours from Munich, and there we spent New Year's Day. Not being equipped for winter sports, we hired a sleigh and drove through the narrow mountain paths. I shall never forget the thrill of riding in the crisp air, well bundled up, with the sleigh bells jingling, and the scenery growing lovelier every minute. Just at dusk we boarded the train for home. The sky was such a brilliant blue, the mountains deep violet in the shadows, the snow quite blue-white, and one star over the Zugspitz, really a "Götterdämmerung"—a twilight not of, but for, the gods.

Such scenes are not to be found in Leipzig, but there are countless other things to compensate for the lack of them. The educational facilities are not excelled anywhere in Germany. The university lies quite in the center of the city, minus any suggestion of "campus," such as we know it. There are no social activities sponsored by the school, and extra-curricular activities do not exist for German students. There are houses for men-students which bear a faint resemblance to our American fraternity houses, but there is nothing resembling a sorority house. The German girls to whom I have shown pictures of the Gamma chapter house seem interested in it and wish so heartily they could have something like it. The student here is left quite to himself, to study or not, as he sees fit. He is free to travel and to take courses in any other university in the country without any attendance-compulsion or registration necessary. Each student has his identification card, much like a miniature passport, which entitles him to reduced rates for train, concert, lecture, theater, even cinema tickets. Student life here does not seem to be the Student Prince or "Heidelberg" existence that we read and sing about at home. Formerly it must have been, but no more. It is a grim business, with teachers working for little or no salary, and students barely able to pay tuition.

A remarkable school has flourished here for several hundred years—the Thomas-Schule, whose most famous cantor was John Sebastian Bach. Very young boys from all parts of Germany are selected after auditions, and the entire expense of their education is assumed by the school. They receive a fine education in addition to all their musical training. They are known the world over as the Thomanerchor, and sing in the Thomas Kirche (where Bach was organist from 1732-1750) several times a week. Each Saturday, at noon, they give a program of motets, and their singing is of such unearthly delicacy that they attract large crowds—there is barely standing room in the huge church. The most satisfying moments of my year thus far in Leipzig have been spent in a remote dark corner of Thomas Kirche, listening to some fine old cantata. Thomas Kirche is the nucleus of musical interest here. It was built in 1482, and religious concerts have been given since the sixteenth century.

The Gewandhaus Orchestra has existed since 1743 and has done much to increase the fame of Leipzig as a music center. Among the directors have been Mendelssohn, Gade, Reinecke, Nikisch, Furtwängler, and, at present, Bruno Walther. As guest directors, the orchestra has had Mozart, Schumann, Berlioz, Grieg, Liszt, Brahms, Wagner, and von Bülow. What thoughts come to one during the performance of a symphony here in this historic building!

In 1843 the Konservatorium was founded by Mendelssohn, with Schumann and David as professors. It has enjoyed as fine a faculty and student-body as any music school ever has. The names of the great teachers of the last century are to be found engraved on its faculty-tablets. Richard Wagner was born here in Leipzig, and so the city is anxious to do him honor. There is a fine opera house where a great deal of Wagnerian opera is given. There are concerts every night, operas all the time, and more student recitals than one person can attend, and still find time to practice.

Leipzig is the center of the music and book publishing industry in Europe. The Deutsches Bücherei and University Library have a combined reserve of 1,300,000 volumes and 25,000 manuscripts.

My work here is at the Konservatorium where I have class lessons, and with Prof. Robert Teichmüller with whom I study privately. Six hours a day is my usual amount of practice, and the rest of my time is spent in hearing concerts. There is a quaint custom still in fashion at the Konservatorium. All girls up to the age of eighteen curtsy to their instructors when they enter the class rooms. Can't you just picture the sophisticated freshman girl in our colleges doing that?

Our recreation consists mostly in walking—I am loathe to ride a bicycle as the frauleins do! There are numerous canals, parks, castles, and lovely spots in the vicinity, and roaming around is quite a pleasure.

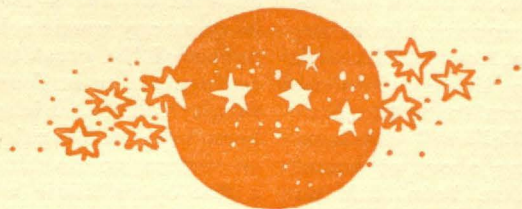

The general atmosphere here is conducive to study. Life does not move so quickly as at home, and time is taken to do things well. The Germans stress thoroughness, and when they pronounce a thing finished, you may rest assured it is just that.

My work is extremely interesting, and I have had some very fine contacts with teachers who knew, and worked with, Brahms, Reinecke, Frau Clara Schumann, and many other great artists. This helps, of course, to make every moment here most profitable and enjoyable.

My best greetings to all of you, and to my dear sisters in Gamma Chapter. How often I think of you and wish we could be together again. I don't believe I told you that I thought most poignantly of rushing when I saw the devices in the Nürnberg Castle which were used on people who talked about others!

Colorado All-State Luncheon

I LIKE to see a man proud of the place in which he lives: I like to see a man who lives in it so that his place will be proud of him," quoted Della Golden, president of the Denver Alumnae Chapter, at the Colorado Delta Zeta All-State Luncheon, November 27 in Denver. In other words she meant "Once a Delta Zeta, always a Delta Zeta, and that the highest duty of a sorority girl is to make her sorority the best there is."

This All-State luncheon is Colorado's first, 52 turning out for the affair. Rho of the University of Denver and Alpha Lambda of the University of Colorado turned out in good numbers. Margaret Bonney Horton played the rôle of toastmistress, Mrs. Lela Maul gave the address of welcome. Ruth Walker Fraser, president of Rho Chapter, and Verna Collins, president of Alpha Lambda, gave short talks on Delta Zeta problems and possible remedies. Helen Moe Ainsworth sang several lovely numbers and then led the sisters in some of the D.Z. songs. Mrs. Miriam McNerny and Bernadetta Daly were also present as speakers.

The last address was very interesting and inspiring, coming from a founder, Anne Simmons Friedline.

Mexico Seen from Cholula

*By Christine A. Schildwaster, Beta **

OUR car jogged and bounced over the street, which was no more than a mud hole, and finally stopped, being surrounded immediately by a number of brown, ragged children who stretched out their palms, begging for money.

"Un centavito, señorita, un centavito, por el amor de Dios."

For a beggar in Mexico always asks for alms in the name of God. And if he receives what he asks for, he always begs that you may "go with God." But for the most part, the visitor must harden his heart and pull tight his purse strings, or he would soon find himself in the ranks of those who are to be seen in every corner of the country, incredibly dirty, incredibly maimed, incredibly miserable—to us. But after the first shock of unbelief, we realize that they are not nearly so numerous or so wretched as their fellows in the Far East, and that begging has always been an honorable occupation among the Latins in Europe.

So we closed our ears and leaving the chauffeur to guard his car, for tires, radiator caps, and other removable parts mysteriously disappear in a moment, we started the climb up the Pyramid of Cholula. Steps hewn in the natural rock, now almost entirely overgrown with grass; cobblestones, over whose treacherous surfaces we slipped and stumbled; up these, religious penitents and supplicants make their way on their knees, to the flat summit, upon which the church stands.

And, at almost every foot of the way, we heard the same cry for alms. Here an old man, blind, singing in the hope of gaining a penny or two. There a ragged, black-eyed, tousled baby. And always boys, big and little, wanting to serve as guides.

At last, the top, all paved with stone, and surrounded with a masonry wall. Before the door of the church stand two cypress trees, the only vegetation amid all the stone; lonely, forlorn, depressing.

Within, the little church is not extraordinarily beautiful, in a land where so much richness and beauty have been lavished upon cathedrals and countless churches. Again appears, as usual, a painting of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the patron saint of Mexico. As we stand, thinking perhaps of the first appearance of Our Lady, a peon, old, bent, dressed like most of the Indian natives, in a dirty shirt and a pair of white trousers wrapped around his waist, the legs ending in a ragged line somewhere above his ankles; on his feet a pair of cumbersome "huaraches," the native, thicksoled sandals, which are held on by straps over the toes. He approaches the box holding the votive offerings to the Virgin, kneels, crosses himself, mutters a prayer and as he rises, drops a peso into the box. And perhaps he has earned two or three pesos in all that week!

Outside, the glory of sun and blue sky for a while, two things greatly appreciated in the rainy season, which lasts from May until September or October. But, as usual, during these months, even on clear days, banks of clouds veil the distant sky and the horizon, so that we are unable to see that glory of Mexico, Popocatepetl, the snow-covered majestic volcano, which with its sister mountain, Ixtlacihuatl, "Sleeping Lady," makes, on clear days, a picture of ineffable beauty from the environs of Mexico City, or from some roof top within the city.

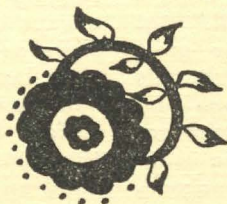

But from Cholula, in the valley below us, which stretches for miles and miles, appear the towers and domes of innumerable churches. Many of them seem to cluster around the pyramid, as if for protection against infidels. One church alone boasts sixty domes, truly a monument of architectural endeavor. All this richness and splendor in these tiny towns, with their mud and their poverty!

According to legend, three hundred and sixty-five churches are visible from the summit of the Pyramid of Cholula, one for every day of the year. The story is told of how once an Indian temple stood on every one of these spots where now a Christian church stands. Then came the Spanish conquerors, who demolished the pagan temples and erected in their places the churches of their own religion, filling them with the gold, silver, and jewels plundered from the natives.

And this, in short, is a story of Mexico, exploitation of its own people and its wonderful natural resources by bolder people from the outside, until now the real Mexicans, the Indian descendants of the glorious race of which Montezuma was the last, have been pushed into squalor and beggary, while the conquerors enjoy the beauty of their land.

Are Your

A Word of Advice from Beta

LUCKILY our corporation has an insurance policy protecting the clothes of our girls against fire. In our recent disaster two of our girls lost sleeves off dresses, straps off shoes, brims off hats and even all the hair off one side of a fur coat. Incidental with the destruction of desks and bookshelves was the loss of notes and texts, many of which are unreplaceable. Our policy was enough to cover completely the present emergency but if in the future the whole house were to be destroyed we would get practically nothing in return for our clothing. Therefore many of us are planning to take out individual insurance for our own protection. Are your clothes safe?

Beta Alpha Has New Home

By Elinor G. Streeter

WE BETA ALPHAS felt in coming back to college last fall that we were coming back to an altogether new college, for so many delightful changes had begun to take place on our campus. First of all we have a new college president, Raymond G. Bressler, of Pennsylvania. He is so young and energetic, so full of ambition and plans for the future welfare of Rhode Island State College, that last spring we of Beta Alpha jumped on him first thing, almost before he had had a chance to be settled, and asked him for a house of our very own. He readily gave us permission.

Then things began to happen and it wasn't long before we were enveloped in the atmosphere of architects, contractors, fireplaces, shingles, budgets, loans, and all those necessary details that go with house building.

Then last summer while some of us were stretched out on the warm sands of some beach or perhaps climbing a mountain or doing the things that Delta Zetas like to do in the summer we came out of our daze and found that ground had been broken for our house.

You who have had actual experience in house building know the thrill we all felt when we came back to college in September and saw the foundation for ourselves. About October, shingles covered the sides, the slate roof was in place, and windows filled the spaces that had been staring at us for several weeks. We all wanted to take a day off and watch the workmen build the fireplace, but they are such speedy people that they had it all finished before anyone realized it.

The house is colonial inside and out. It just fits in with the early American atmosphere of this college, Rhode Island, and all old New England as a whole. The house has white shingles, green blinds, and a green slate roof. The colonial doorway is supported by two Ionic columns and is resplendent with a quaint brass knocker and brass Delta Zeta above it.

There are three stories excluding the big cellar and the equally large attic. This attic is a double blessing. Not only can we use it to store crêpe paper decorations, trunks, "mem" books, golf clubs, tennis racquets, and hockey sticks, but also a few alumnae if they chance to drop in on us in large numbers.

Because our heat is piped from the central heating system of the campus we have a big, clean cellar in which we hope to have our chapter room and a dining room and kitchen. At present all sororities have to eat in the dormitories. Three walls of this basement room are covered with Delta Zeta banners, pictures of alumnae and patronesses, faculty adviser, etc. There is also in the cellar a laundry room containing two sets of tubs, ironing boards, and other laundry facilities.

The entire center portion of the first floor is given over to the social room. All the woodwork of this room is blue, the paneling, doors, and even the mantel. This has a motif of a lamp in the center and a Delta on one side and a Zeta on the other. Above the blue mantel there is an attractive picture echoing the blue tones of the color scheme. The walls are a soft grayed tan and the ceiling and beams are white. The hard wood floor is dark oak. The base boards are black and the chintz hangings have a black background to harmonize with them. The blue in the coverings of the furniture help to tie the whole room together. The lighting fixtures are colonial and the shades are of hurricane glass so popular in that period. We also have two odd little lamps the bases of which are an owl and a penguin. There are numerous coffee tables, small red colonial chairs, and candle stands, several maple chairs and tables, a piano, a radio, a darling love seat, a maroon divan and a blue one, too. Two blue overstuffed chairs, and the dearest Cape Cod chair of maple covered in blue and white linen. Then, of course, blue rugs and cushions and accessories.

The right wing of the first floor is occupied by the house mother. Her room contains beside the bed a colonial chest of drawers, a maple desk and easy chair, bookcases, and lamps. Her hangings are bright chintz. The black and white tile bath she shares with the guest room. In the guest room a maple chest of drawers, rose and green braided rugs, an easy chair covered with chintz, and a dear white Candlewick spread will do their share to make our guests comfortable. This room has white ruffled curtains. The side door hall and telephone booth are also in this right wing.

The left wing contains the library and the reception room. This room is quite formal, containing mahogany windsor chairs, gate leg table, victrola, love seat, and in one dark corner a bright red arm chair. A dark brown rug covers the hard oak floor and gold-colored brocaded curtains hang at the windows. Even now we can see a receiving line of patrons and patronesses greeting our guests at a tea! The library is a cozy room, with hangings of mulberry and cream. Here too the woodwork is blue, including the built-in book shelves. A tall maple secretary fills one corner, and near it a long tressle table carries a large glass jug lamp. Large, leather easy chairs and hooked rugs complete this room. The windows look out upon the rolling hills and cultivated fields of Rhode Island.

The second and third floors are taken up by studies, bedrooms, and closets—yes, with a capital “C” for they are large, and as nearly as we can figure there are six of them to every four girls. We invite you to visit us sometime and know the luxury of plenty of closet room.

The girls’ rooms have white ruffled curtains, maple desks, and chests of drawers. We are quite proud of our bath for it is black and white tile.

We have placed our home between the Sigma Kappa and Chi Omega houses. It is situated at the cross road of Sorority Row and one of the important roads of the campus. Our neighbors on the same road are Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Mu Delta, and Alpha Epsilon Pi.

We wish that all Delta Zetas could drop in on us in our new home on March 12, for in the afternoon we are having a reception and in the evening a grand formal dance. We would serve you tea, and Delta Zeta cakes. Wouldn’t you like to come?

The Old Order Changeth

By Beatrice H. Brown

FROM the standpoint of curiosity, if not from that of psychology, the story of the selection of fraternity membership from 1776 to the present day would certainly offer an appeal. Fraternities have gradually come from a period of great simplicity and deep secrecy to a time of considerable complexity, marked competitive pressure, and ambiguous emphasis. As times have changed so have our "systems" but there still remains unaltered the ideal that should motivate all—that fraternity membership be chosen on the basis of congeniality and friendship.

To help and not hinder those interested in fraternity membership is the purpose of the rushing contract, strictly speaking. The open rushing program which provides for honest and sincere discussion of one's own fraternity and which likewise gives the interested rushee a chance to find out the really important facts about an organization or chapter is an excellent premise. If the orientation week of the college comes before rushing, a knowledge of the Greek world with its obligations and opportunities as they pertain to the particular campus could be included in the administration's plan under the auspices of the Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. The all-Panhellenic initial tea, or the initial tea which every sorority holds on the opening day of rushing, to which all rushees are invited gives the observing girl a picture of the whole.

After introducing rushing with all groups as hostesses simultaneously to all girls, the days may be divided in various ways. The fundamental point is that the days be planned in a sane manner without overtaxing either rushee or sorority members. It can be done! On a medium sized campus in the East, the fraternities are permitted an hour and a half in the afternoon and an hour and a half in the evening with prospective members. The houses of residence are assigned to each group for certain days. After each fraternity has made the round of residences or "wings of the dormitories" as prescribed, three days of informal rushing are permitted with the same definite hours set aside. At no time during these days may a group spend any money on rushing! On the final evening of the rushing period each fraternity may entertain at dinner those rushees it may desire. After a brief silence period bids are sent. And all the time the regular college work and activities have been going on! On this campus the time of rushing is spent in cultivating friendships, discovering common interests, testing congeniality!

For the large universities, state and otherwise, a few more "mechanics" may be included. The little pamphlet called "Sororities and you" of Northwestern University and various printed statements and leaflets of other institutions are very helpful to the confused freshman. The system of the University of Illinois where the Dean of Women is accessible to any freshman during rushing for a heart to heart talk and where the Panhellenic meets every morning at nine o'clock is worth much consideration. The full time services of a secretary during August and the rushing period as used by the University of Washington Panhellenic helps solve many problems. The plan of one of the very large universities in the men's rushing might well be adopted by the women on the campuses where the number who accept all rushing entertainment and privilege with no intention of joining is growing: namely, a certain sum of money must be registered in the Dean's office on a stipulated date by each person expecting or desiring to go through the rushing season. This is proof of their good faith, and his financial ability to join a group!

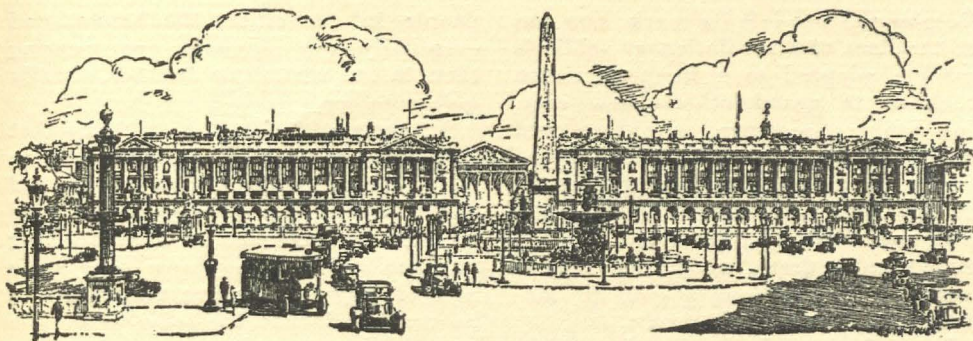

Few rules make for better rushing, more confidence, and more honor. As Dean Leonard urged at the National Panhellenic Congress, "Put your rushing rules in your hearts instead of on paper!" The secret to any successful rushing no matter the plan or time or place is the honor of each participant—her loyalty to her fraternity's honor, her consecration to its ideals, and her belief in the "sanctity of obligations."

Symphony of the Lake

[TO MARY LIB]

*Pulse of the waves on shore
Puff of the speeding boat
Chug of the sturdy tug
Wail of the warning buoy
Surge of the waters calm
Swish of receding sands
Roar of the mighty waves
Crash of the storm-swept trees
Howl of the stormy winds
Cry of plaintive piper
These are the echoing chords
Within the homesick heart.*

Tripping Through a Fashion Showing in Paris

. . . By Velma Lockridge, Lambda

A COUPLE of American "Greeks" trying to go Parisian is probably one of the funniest and at the same time saddest sights in Paris. But thanks to the international sign language and a French-American dictionary we were able to get entrance cards to Chanel's opening on the Champs Elysees in Paris.

We had always heard that all on-lookers at a Paris opening were expected to have almost unlimited foreign credit and were supposed to buy generously—or else. Disabuse your mind that we lived up to either requirement because the simplest gown shown by the couturiere on the Russian princesses who were her mannequins was priced at two hundred and sixty dollars, and of course, more money than we had between us and the home port. So we trembled and we thrilled and we got headaches and high blood pressure in rapid succession until it was over. Then we flew out like two people possessed to the nearest cable office where we sent our first cable to the waiting world on the other side. We flashed out the news that color contrasts in Paris were going subtle; chartreuse-and-burgundy, absinthe-and-cedar green, claret-and-pink were introduced; that the directoire influence was strong everywhere, that tiny furred capes and muffs appeared frequently, that new and wonderful woolen fabrics took form for afternoon and evening costumes, and that we would be home on the next ship.

It was only a few weeks later when we reached home that we saw these foreign influences of line and color creeping into the mode and we felt so worldly wise and so well informed about it all. But of course in a few weeks more there was a mid-season opening, then another season arrived and another opening in Paris ensued. Every season and between every season there is a brand new set of Parisian showings and because someone has to read all of the cables, women's stores have created what is known as a stylist.

This spring these Stylists are all talking military influence. They call your attention to the red, white, and blue, to the soldier silhouettes with high fitted waistlines, high necklines, broad shoulders and wide lapels, shoulder capes, metal buttons, and naval insignia. You can see that the Washington Bicentennial has left its mark. You can see the lines of a revolutionary soldier's costume adapted to a flapper's dance frock or to grandmother's new coat. You can see romance, adventure, and history in the directoire lines of the Napoleonic era. You can see the French artistry and ingenuity in Vionnet's satin and wool coat, in Chanel's cotton pique evening dress, in Lyolene's square necked coats and long scarfs, in Lanvin's dots, stripes, and checks.

In a few weeks after these very trends are announced to the world, the people in our cities, the towns, and eventually our hamlets are wearing them in one version or another, usually quite another.

It seems a bit frivolous to many that we talk so much about fashion, that we lay so much stress on skirt lengths and sleeve widths, but have you ever tried dressing like Gandhi or like the King of Siam and walking down your Main Street? Try it sometime and you will be convinced that the way to be the most inconspicuously dressed is to be fashionably dressed.

The Why

of It

By Miriam Landrum, Alpha Tau

THE way of a woman pianist is beset with difficulties. The idea that piano playing is a form of idle amusement continues in the public mind along with the dark villain, the fair heroine, and the over-worked rabbit's foot. The minute I sit down to the piano to practice, just that minute the neighbors and friends feel that an invitation to come gossip has been broadcast.

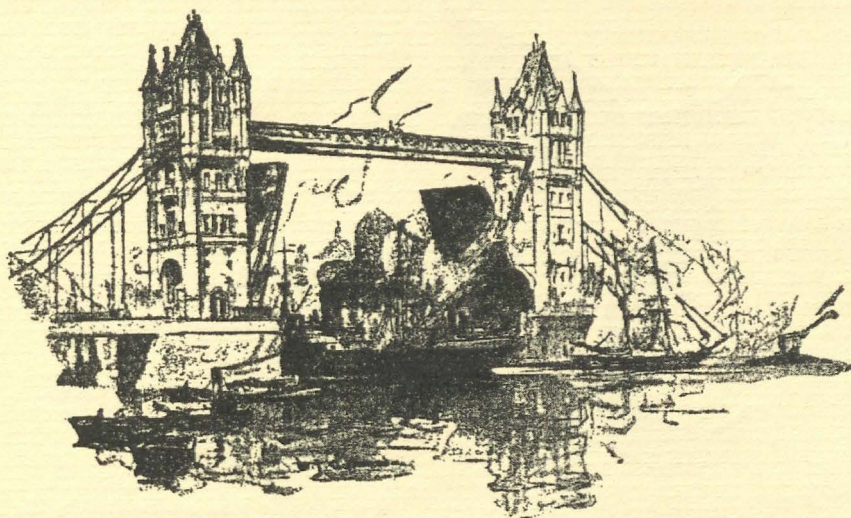

I would be the world's wealthiest woman if I had two cents for every time I had been interrupted by, "Oh, you are just practicing. I didn't want to bother you if you were teaching." Then follow hours of endless talk while my fingers are aching to get back to the keyboard. I have finally ceased trying to dislodge from the mind of the public the idea that playing the piano is merely a feeble-minded person's pastime.

Every serious pianist has experienced the heavenly joy of reaching a sublime climax in some great work of the masters and the fiendish torture of being dragged to earth by the continued ringing of the telephone. By strict count, the telephone has rung at every thrilling point in my music since the beginning of my humble career.

Now the strange part is that men don't have these maddening interruptions. They are shielded by some adoring female who speaks in hushed tones while the king of kings pounds away on the piano. The telephone is stifled and the neighbors are hastened on their ways. His piano playing is his profession, and the petty cares of the day are concealed from his noble mind. What woman was ever shielded in such a fashion? And yet we wonder why practically all the great pianists are men

Delta Zeta in the Desert

By Esther E. Dudley

Beta Eta

ONCE upon a time there were three little bears" and then someone mutters "Shush" for that's the Navajo word for bear. But instead of three little bears there are seventy-three little chunks of Navajo with shiny black eyes and coal black hair. Last September when they came in from the reservation most of them had never sat in chairs, washed with soap and water, combed their hair, eaten from plates with knives and forks, or slept in beds. My recollections of those days are somewhat submerged in an inevitable odor of mutton and camp fire smoke. To see the men with long hair, turquoise earrings, and moccasins buttoned up with a row of U. S. quarters or dimes was strange enough, but the women are more picturesque. The customary garb of the Navajo woman consists of a velvet jacket and a variable number of skirts, for when the lady gets a new one she merely puts it on top of the old ones! The velvet jacket is usually adorned with U. S. money—dimes if her sheep haven't turned out so well, quarters if they've done fairly well, and fifty cent pieces show that she is a clever herdsman. The children are dressed just like their parents so when they are brought into school, bathed, have their hair cut and cleaned, and are dressed in "American" clothes the transformation is great. For a while they are shy and awkward in their new shoes and dresses, their hair won't lie down straight, and the poor kindergarten teacher despairs of ever making them understand what "Sit down" and "Stand up" might possibly mean. But by Thanksgiving some of the strangeness has worn off and most of them know their names by then.

One day just before Christmas the minister came into our school room and the shyest of my shy little girls jumped up and said, "Good morning, Jesus!" Their idea of the divinity is somewhat queer and they tend to confuse the Jesus of the Christian religion with a rather shiftless and filthy Navajo who is called "Sleepy Jesus" and his little son in our room is nicknamed "Sleepy Jesus Begay."

Occasionally, an airplane flies over or even lands and then the excitement is tense. We all tear down to the landing field pell mell and stay until the last minute. Then for days afterward I find airplanes on every paper, airplanes made of clay when we are trying to stock the corral with clay animals, and airplanes on the blackboard. This past week army bombing planes have been dropping food over the reservation to Navajo out in the hogans who are snow-bound and the interest has been even greater.

The children's artistic ability easily surpasses that of white children. Even the beginners have deft fingers for modeling with the native adobe and they are truly happy when making tiny cows, sheep, hogans, dogs, horses, burros, and the girls like to make Navajo women resplendent in many, many clay coins. They learn quickly although the isolated environment from which they come and the necessity of learning English give them great obstacles to overcome. Most of them have never seen a train for we are eighty miles from a railroad and many of them live a hundred miles farther on in the desert. They still love their Navajo clothes, the mutton (which they preferred to turkey for Thanksgiving and Christmas), the weird, wild music of the squaw dance, for to them these things recall their crude life in the hogan, the only security of their early days. But it is fascinating to work with them as they try to come in a few years all the way from a primitive existence to the so-called civilized existence of the white men in the evolution of which he has spent thousands of years.

The chapter asked for something amusing and facetious. Just try to be that way after five months of the desert life where one sees life as a hand to mouth affair; gets snowbound; has mail three days a week at the best; sees few people but lots of sand; sees the air thick and red with sand during a storm; feels the sting against legs and face; cleans it up afterwards; speculates about the possibilities of getting through the washes which run over the roads; plows through the sand! But there is something restful in the desert, the San Francisco peaks eighty miles in the south, the Grand Canyon eighty miles in the west, the mesas between them. One begins to appreciate the pioneer spirit when he sees this primitive country and its people slowly evolving.

Hoosier Little Hoosier?

WHAT this story is about is how one hundred and sixty-eight Delta Zetas got together for the Sixteenth Delta Zeta Indiana State Luncheon at the Columbia Club in Indianapolis on April 23.

It was a lovely day and a lovely luncheon and the committee under the capable direction of Mrs. Noble Hiatt received many well deserved compliments. The tables were beautifully decorated by Mrs. Harry Kerr and her committee, and, since the theme for the day was Cinderella and her story book friends, there in the center of the speakers' table was Cinderella herself with her fairy godmother, her pumpkin and six little mice, all ready for the presto change in the midst of Delta Zeta roses and lighted tapers. The favors procured by Mrs. Alfred Shotwell and her committee, were tiny Dresden like figurines which brought forth squeals of delight from the recipients. After the toastmistress, Miss Hazel Funk had introduced the guests, Hester Miller former president of Indianapolis Alumnae Chapter and the writer (Pease is the name) and the chairman of the various committees and the chapter presidents, and after a very tempting luncheon, the four chapters each gave a stunt. Pearl Bartlett acted as fairy godmother and master of ceremonies and introduced the acts. Delta presented "Sleeping Beauty Awakens at DePauw," Epsilon "Red Riding Hood Attends Indiana," Psi told how "Beauty Meets the Beast at Franklin" and Alpha Nu "Aladdin Goes to Butler." They were all very clever and the judges had a most difficult time but finally awarded the prize, a five dollar gold piece, to Delta. After several songs the Sixteenth Annual State Luncheon passed into history. The programs for the affair were most attractive, with tiny fairy tale figures depicting the story of Cinderella. Mrs. Thomas Grinslade was responsible for this clever addition.

The Cinderella Ball that night, under the committee headed by Mrs. Robert Hill, was a most enjoyable one. In true Cinderella fashion just as the clock struck twelve there was a rush and a scurry and a scamper, but this time it was for a delicious supper and so far as we have heard, there were no slippers lost in the rush unless they were tiny silver ones which served as programs for the dance.

All in all Indianapolis Alumnae Chapter is to be congratulated upon this sixteenth Indiana Delta Zeta affair. It is a tradition infinitely worth upholding and the chapters in other states would do well to follow their excellent example.

The Big "C" Sirkus

By Lois Decker, Mu '33

ANOTHER Big "C" Sirkus at the University of California has passed into history, and fraternities and sororities have once more put away decorations for the floats that were entered in the huge parade. It, together with the Sirkus, happens once in a college generation for each student, and for one day studies are forgotten.

This Sirkus, which is sponsored by the Big "C" Society, is the biggest event in the whole four years of a college student at the university. It is given in the spring of every leap year, and when the time comes the very mention of the words causes a feeling of suppressed excitement in the heart of every Californian, for it means a whole day of merry-making, a whole day of rest from studies, amidst the hullabaloo of the carnival, an afternoon spent in watching the parade of fraternity and sorority floats, and an evening under the Big Tent, where hoarse barkers invite laughing students into side shows, and where the wheels of chance spin faster and faster. Fan frizzes, hot dogs, orange drinks, side shows and candy are the order of the day, and in the evening everyone dances in Hearst Gymnasium to the strains of a popular campus orchestra.

It all comes and goes suddenly, but it's great while it lasts.

N.B. Delta Zeta's Hoop Skirt girl took first honorable mention. There were sixty-four fraternities and thirty-six sororities competing.

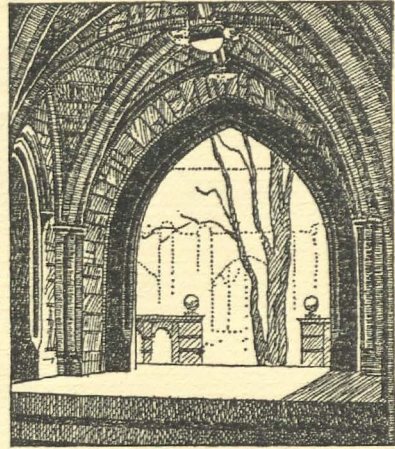

Parable of a College Girl

A GIRL who had recently passed her eighteenth birthday kissed her mother good-by. Marie was like every other young girl who starts off for her college career, she was full of hope and ambition.

The first few days flew by. Enrollment was over and Marie met many people. This was a friendly place, it seemed to her. There were lovely girls, handsome young men, and the faculty members seemed so very kind. Life was glorious. Marie felt as though she could do anything. The fall days were warm and sunshiny. Each one seemed so full and on Sunday mornings, Marie would painstakingly dress for church. It seemed to help her to hear the youthful minister give words of advice and the rest of the day was a little more quiet.

Marie passed her first year as one in a dream. Life was sweet. There were so many beautiful things: the trees, their shadows, the long paths, the dusk, the roses in spring and her many dear friends.

The second year Marie lived with her group of girls. Little by little there grew up a certain tense feeling. Each girl wished to be popular, each girl wished to be most beautiful. It was so hard to struggle on when Marie's kindly spirit was hedged in by all of these obstacles. She took walks in the warm sunshine and then tramped through rain and snow to be alone. She found this solitude a comfort. The oppression of duties and responsibilities weighed upon her heart. Why could she not escape and be free? This question was undercurrent in her mind constantly. The days slipped by, the weeks, the months, and school was over.

Marie felt anxious to begin her third year at school. During the summer months her ideals came back to her. She planned to carry these out. It came to be impossible as one disappointment followed another. To her, life was decidedly undesirable, yet there were the ideals of the group which increased in meaning. Marie saw that there must be something to live for, after all, but she must try to discover this thing. She read a great deal and learned more about the practical as well as the ideal possibilities for the group. A desire for these things became intense.

Marie began her last year with joy. She was now in a position to help and advise girls younger than herself. She asked herself many times whether she had knowledge enough. Perhaps she could help the others in small ways to be happy and to see the light ahead. She had been disillusioned but in the place of her old idealism there was something more practical, something deeper, and with a greater meaning. It was of a permanent character. Marie was happy in her love and care for others. She understood human nature. She knew that temporary escape from responsibilities would not bring happiness. It was glorious to have a place in the great human society and to live for those whom she held dear.

What College Means to Me . . . a Pledge

COLLEGE! To most people college presents a panoramic view of a gay existence—football games, sorority and fraternity dances, parties, and a bright and care-free life. But there is more to college than its mere social existence or aspect. A college education costs a considerable amount of money, and three or four years of valuable time. The main purpose should therefore be to secure a well-rounded education.

To me, college means a place of work and play. Without play my work would be dull and monotonous—"All work and no play makes Jill a dull girl." By mingling with others, I expect to broaden my viewpoint on life, to have an understanding of the purposes of life in itself, and to relate myself to it. Because of the increase in my resources of knowledge, I will know how to make myself happy. My college life is to be spent in increasing my mental faculties and capacities by study, discussion, lectures, good reading. My self-reliance and self-expression will naturally develop through contact with others. In associating with my college mates, I am endeavoring to bring about tolerance and consideration for others, and I am also trying to increase my capacity for friendship with members of both sexes. A high regard for health standards and systematic living, plus mental education will develop the resources for a bigger and fuller life. I want to foster the ability to quickly and accurately judge character, to appreciate the beautiful in art, literature, and nature.

But for all these opportunities, I must give of my own store of knowledge and friendship, freely and willingly; for we get out of college just what we put into it. My motto therefore is, "Give the best to my college, and the best will come back to me."

The Problem of Fresh- man English

By Ruth Odell, Zeta

IN NEARLY all colleges and universities there is no closed season for English Composition. The departments of science, history, mathematics, home economics, and even physical education train their guns upon the teachers of rhetoric and composition almost unceasingly, and whenever there is a faculty meeting for the revision of the curriculum some one is sure to state immediately that something must be done about the slovenly English written by students who have received credit in English I. (I remember a particularly acrimonious discussion which once arose because a physical education major confused "heel and heal.")

This is not the place to enter into the justice of such attacks. Most English teachers are willing to wager that, were it possible to determine what percentage of what he has learned in other courses a student retains, that percentage would not be overwhelmingly greater than what he can remember and apply of syntax and spelling. He may forget the date of the Norman Conquest, be hazy about logarithms, but let him ignore the rule that a noun or pronoun linked with the gerund is in the possessive case and the whole collegiate world is up and at him.

A general disposition on the part of instructors to deny responsibility for the existing state of affairs is evident. The colleges lay the blame upon the high schools, which, in turn, insist that they are too busy preparing students for college entrance to put time on "mechanics," which should have been mastered in the grades. Elementary teachers charge the fault to the home. I once coached a student whose father gravely assured me that the boy's inability to spell decently was inherited from his mother—of course.

Since no one is to blame, what is to be done about it? The University of Nebraska Department of Freshman English, in charge of Prof. R. D. Scott, is attempting to solve the problem by administering a series of placement tests to entering freshmen. The tests are designed to determine how much a student knows of spelling, punctuation, grammar, and vocabulary. They are not intended to test the student's knowledge of literature. On the basis of these, freshmen are assigned to one of three divisions: the highest one-fourth of the class enter a course in the history of English language and literature; the middle half receive intensive training in English grammar, spelling, and theme writing; the lowest one-fourth enter what is known as English Zero, a sub-freshman course, for which no credit is given.

For Every Child These Rights

By Helen L. Murray, Theta

"For every child spiritual and moral training to help him to stand firm under the pressure of life."

"For every child understanding and the guarding of his personality as his most precious right."

"For every child a home and that love and security which a home provides; and for that child who must receive foster care, the nearest substitute for his own home."

"For every child these rights, regardless of race or color or situation, wherever he may live under the protection of the American Flag."

THE above selections from the Children's Charter adopted by the 1930 White House conference immediately came to my mind when I was asked to tell you of my work with the State Welfare Department of Ohio in the field of dependent children's work.

Ohio's Welfare Department is interested in all types of care for dependent children; foster home care, through our child-care bureau whose twenty workers travel over the entire state fitting children into foster homes, giving them the best of all substitutes for their own homes; institutional care, through our Bureau of Children's Institutions whose six workers, of whom the writer is one, visit all institutions in the state caring for dependent and neglected children and try by encouragement and advice to secure for the children the very best care during their stay in the institution and during the fifteen years of such visitations many changes and improvements have occurred.

When Bobby Brown heard his father sadly say the children must go to the orphanage, he squared his shoulders, decided to grit his teeth and try to stand it and do his best to cheer his little sister and brother. He knew all about orphanages, for hadn't he been to the movies and seen long lines of boys and girls in overalls and stuffy starched dresses marching along before the long-nosed woman with the paddle? and hadn't his pal Jimmie told him about his uncle who lived in an orphanage forty years ago? But Bobby loved his Dad so he would not complain and make Dad feel sad.

But there is something wrong! The orphanage is several nice looking buildings among big trees, with grass and flowers all around, a playground in the back with slides and swings and a baseball diamond. And inside it's all bright and cheery, and the lady hasn't a long nose at all for she's young and smiling and wears a pretty flowery dress and even her hair is curly. She takes Bobby by the hand, she knows his name and best of all she puts her arm around little sister and she doesn't have a paddle. Why he can hardly wait to tell Jimmie there's some mistake about the story his uncle told him about the orphanage. After they had seen the doctor, who examined them from head to toe, stuck a needle in their arms, fixed their teeth and took out little sister's tonsils, they left the Receiving Cottage, little sister went to the girl's cottage and Bobby and little brother went together to the boy's cottage, where everything is much like home. You have good meals, even dessert every day and milk every meal, and you can eat at a little table with a white cloth and china and glass and you can talk all you want to, you sleep in your very own bed in a pretty room with four other boys, you wear your own clothes and not overalls, you play outdoors every day. You even go to school and church in the nearby town and no one ever calls you an "orphan," in fact Miss Marie, the governess with the smiling face, had told Bobby it wasn't an orphanage but a Children's Home, "up-to-date."

French Embassy at Austin, Texas

By Catherine McFarland, Beta Beta

THERE is an old white house in an old-fashioned garden on top of a small wooded hill in Austin, Texas, that is, so I am told, the only embassy in the United States outside of Washington, D.C. It is a fascinating place, inhabited now by a charming old gentlewoman who tells most interesting anecdotes about it. Her father, the first doctor in the region, bought it from the original owners when Texas became a state, and the family has lived there ever since.

During the time that Texas was a republic, back in 1836-1845, the French government had this house built as the home of its ambassador to the new nation. It is dignified in appearance, with a wide, slender columned veranda, and large, high-ceilinged rooms. In the central hall rises a narrow staircase with a slender balustrade whose rail is polished by the friction of generations of hands. The painted walls are of wide boards, and the ceiling is simply paneled. Tall double doors, thin, paneled, and high-knobbed lead from the hall. Their locks are about six inches square, and the keys are of heavy wrought-iron about ten inches long. The windows, also tall and double, are fastened with curious old latches. The hinges of both doors and windows are hand-wrought in iron in strap and curlicue-H designs. All the lumber of the house was sawed of native wood by hand in an old-fashioned saw-pit, but the hardware, the doors, and the windows were brought from France.

Among the interesting furniture in the house are three beds: a great, canopied four-poster of pre-Civil War days, a smaller, daintily spooled, uncanopied four-poster, and a high-headed, carved bed belonging to the era of marble-topped dressers and tables. There is also a chest of drawers with a dim, old mirror before which the belles of three generations have primped.

The ambassador's wine cellar is filled now with luscious looking preserves and jellies, but the gentle, dignified spirit of the house, unchanged by obtrusive improvements, remains undisturbed.

IS THAT attractive little girl next door going to college next fall? Are any of your sisters or your cousins or your aunts? Or your daughters or your nieces or any of the fine young maidens you happen to know?

If they are, wouldn't you like the Delta Zetas to get acquainted with them? Of course, you will be rushing them this summer if the rushing rules of the college do not forbid it, but, how about next fall?

Send in names and written recommendations to the chapter rush chairman. She will appreciate it, you will appreciate her courtesy to your sister, cousin, or what not, and, needless to say, the rushee will thank you both.

And Let There Be Light (But Use Discretion)

By Inez Caroline Wood, Gamma '30

WE SING about the Delta Zeta Lamp which is kept ever burning; but how much or rather how little do we know concerning the bulbs which light our floor lamps every day, or rather, night? Ever since Thomas Edison invented the first incandescent lamp we have been using it in our homes, but only recently have we been able to have any conception of just what it may do to us, such as how it may destroy the harmonious appearance of our homes, or tire our eyes if used wrongly, or how it may lend charm and restfulness to the furnishings of our homes when correctly used.

You have undoubtedly entered a home in the evening which has impressed you as being dreary and cold, lacking all the warmth and hospitality which one would naturally expect to find. This is caused in most cases by improper lighting. Perhaps the room was dimly lighted and the light that was there was cold and glaring in appearance; or, there may have been a small lamp in the hall which had a dark blue shade which tended to give off a very dreary light. With just a few simple pointers on good lighting this feeling could be completely changed.

Two elements are essential for good lighting: first, see that there is sufficient illumination for the purpose that the light is desired, secondly, all light bulbs should be shaded or concealed. The shading of lamps has much to do with lighting effects. Shades which are dark in color or of green, blue, lavender, rose, or red will give ghastly, unnatural light, therefore these colors should be used in very small amounts, such as in the borders or decoration of the shade. The all-over color of shades should be bordering on the tints of white, ivory, cream, tan or, yellow, thereby obtaining a most natural and warm appearance. Dark colors absorb the light, making it necessary for a larger bulb to be used in order to obtain the light needed; whereas light colors reflect the light, thus enabling the use of a smaller bulb and still obtaining as much and sometimes more light than from the lamp which has the darker shade and larger bulb.

The lamp that is used for study should be shaded so that the light will be spread over the reading or writing material, without allowing any of it to be shining up into the eyes.

'Tis a sad but true thing that the mirrors in our homes are usually very poorly lighted. This should not be so, since they are so essential in determining our appearance. By using a shaded light at the sides of the mirrors, we can obtain the most adequate illumination. For the dressing table mirror, two small dresser lamps which stand high enough so that we do not get the glare of the lighted bulbs in our eyes, will give a diffused lighting through the lamp shades, spreading evenly over both sides of the mirror. Note the difference in appearance resulting from this illumination, instead of the old incorrect way of the light over the mirror, which caused shadows below the eyes, nose, mouth, and chin.

If illumination is desired for the entire room, and no ceiling lights are available, the indirect floor lamp may be used, providing that the ceiling is not too dark in color, as the ceiling acts as the reflecting surface for the entire room. If you have difficulty in reading your cards at bridge parties, one of these indirect lamps might be tried. You will be pleasantly surprised at the ease with which both you and your guests will be able quickly to distinguish the hearts from the spades.

Give your lighting a chance by using it correctly and you will be pleased to find complete restfulness in your dwelling, be it the lodge, sorority house, or your very own home.

Panhellenic House Announces Reduced Rates

HELLO, Delta Zeta!

Okay! New York! . . . Will all other stations stand by for important announcement?

The Panhellenic Hotel is on the air—and broadcasting reduced rates—not only reduced rates but actual bargains for fraternity girls! Beginning with this issue, now, this minute! The Panhellenic has set aside two floors for the exclusive use of young fraternity girls out of college not more than two years. On these floors the girls may have a choice of any room at $10 weekly! Think of it! Rooms with bath; rooms with showers; rooms with a view (and such a view!); rooms with sun and southern exposure; large rooms; middle size rooms; small rooms! But all cozy and comfortable in the largest fraternity house in the world! The only requirement is that the applicant be a recent graduate! Applications will be filed in the order of their receipt and first come will be first served. So girls, get yours in early!

All rooms at the Panhellenic have been reduced from $1 to $5 dollars the week and there is a further reduction if taken on a monthly basis. So spread the news among your friends both college and non-college that the Panhellenic is the place to stay in New York if they want real values!

Transient rates, too, are lower at the Panhellenic than at any hotel of similar standards in New York. So won't you tell your friends who may be going to Europe and stopping in New York en route to try the Panhellenic for a day or two? They will always be sure of a welcome here and a homelike atmosphere.

● DELTA ZETA POEMS ●

To a Robin

*Last night Arcturus I beheld,
This morning you,
Today the sky was like a sea,
So deep a blue.
The clouds were piled-up cotton balls
And moved so slow,
As if they liked their pillowed rest
And loathed to go.
The breeze was light and had the feel
Of baby's breath;
And there was fragrance in the air
As faint as death.
Tonight the sun set proudly late,
A fairy ring,
And trailed long, dreamy shadows round,

JOSEPHINE READY

A Plea for Patience

*God give us strength of mind to live and wait;
And vision, Lord, to see Thy ways are Just.
And let us know our chequered plans are Fate Playing His inexorable Game with Hu-

Etching

*Aspens against the sky . . .
Soft lace upon the blue
Gray of the night,
And one star shining through.*
MARGUERITE HEYDWEILLER, Beta

Memorial Day

*I had a little brother, once,
We used to drill
Together in the meadows, once,
And on the hill
We built our sand fort every year,
And shot the foes,
Or lay there basking in the sun
And dug our toes
Into the soft hot sand, and played
At being spy,
When we were little children, William . . .
And I . . .
I had a little brother, once,
We little knew What drills and forts and spies were for,
Or what foes do . . .
They built real forts along the hills
Away in France,
And dirty narrow trenches filled
With rats and ants;
They took my little brother . . . now,
Memorial Day,
He's wandering alone out where We used to play.*

TO MARY LIB

*I steal to the silence of wooded glen Away from haunts of undreaming men.
There shadows play at hide-and-seek,
While hoary willows sway and weep.
The elves sail away in a lily boat
With petals as yellow as sailor's coat.
Happily round the sea they sail
Until they're foundered by mighty gale.
Then take to waters in oily cloak
While frogs in laughter lustily croak.*

KAY RICHARDS, Delta

To My Mother

*I will not write of star light
Or of the silver moon
I will not write about the sea
Or of a tall gray dune.
I will not write about the gull
That swooped low to the bay—
I only say I love you more
And more and more each day.*

EMMA GADE HUTAFF

Josephine College

*She rides to school in a stream-lined creation,
The fellows hail her with wild admiration,
She attracts the attention of the school's population,—
She's Josephine College.
Fickled-shaped hair and a blue beret,
A gay ascot scarf tied swankishly,
Her pepsodent smile is spontaneous and gay—
She's Josephine College.
At the game she cheers for "her" boys on the teams,
In class she fingers her pencil and dreams,
Gerunds and formulas worry her not it seems—She's Josephine College.*

Spring

A ragged robin on an emerald lawn,
The green foliage of a thousand trees,
The gay laughter of some sweet young thing,
Tiny buds and new born leaves . . .
Spring!*

To Every Man

*To every man who can within himself be bold,
Not for mortal achievement, or for burnished gold,
Not for the ruling of the tides, unleashed and spent,
Nor for strong empires, firm and never wholly rent,
But for the truth he dared not stir within his mind,
The true bare soul that never glows before mankind.
To such a man let peace be manifest, Bestow on him love, comfort, and the rest

Emphasis

*If in slow wonder you should say
"I love you, dear"—
I wouldn't blush pretending
Not to hear;
I wouldn't analyze your face
To find
If you were "swept away" or Knew your mind—
Ah, no! My whirling world would move one Step apart
Where wrapped in silence I might still my Beating heart.*

"Turning corners, sir," she said,
"I'm looking for prosperity."
"You needn't bother, Miss, he's dead."*

September Morning Glories

Fairy trumpets, did you blow
 At my window early?
 There's some sport afoot, I know,
 For I heard you clearly
 Through the mists at peep of day.
 'Twas no idle matter—
 Not a tricky breeze at play
 Nor the acorns' patter!
 Faint, but gay and debonair,
 Never note so taking Heralded to morning air
 Rout or merrymaking.
 Pearls and gossamer and lace—
 These are spread, 'tis certain,
 Some proud pageantry to grace;
 Ring up quick the curtain!
 Tumbled cabin, ragged field—
 Dullards, smug and blinded,
 Know not what delights these yield
 When the troupe is minded.
 Blow out, trumpets, with a will!
 Flaunt, you silken banners!
 My Lord Sun comes o'er the hill—
 Time for courtly manners!

IN MEMORIAM

THE SYMPATHY of the entire sorority is extended to our National President, Myrtle Graeter Malott, in the death of her mother late in April at her residence in Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

THE SYMPATHY of the sorority is extended to Founder Alfa Lloyd Hayes in the death of her father.

Nettie Wills Shugart, Zeta

It was with a feeling of intense personal loss that Delta Zetas learned of the death of Mrs. Shugart, early in May. Grand Secretary in 1914-1916, Chairman of Chapter Big Sisters, 1916-18 and again in 1918-1920, National Big Sister when this office was placed on the national council in 1920-1922, and again Chairman of Chapter Big Sisters the following two years, 1922-24, Mrs. Shugart gave to Delta Zeta her love, loyalty, and constant devotion.

Mrs. Shugart was a beloved teacher in the Lincoln, Nebraska, schools for many years, but the last few years of her life were filled with illness and suffering. But through all this she never lost her keen love and interest in Delta Zeta and until the last, painted the symphonies and love verses for the sorority. It was Mrs. Shugart who wrote the Loving Cup Service used by the sorority.

Her idealism and feeling of fraternity is best expressed in these words with which she closed a greeting in THE LAMP in 1922.

*If I could write one little word upon the hearts of all,
I'd dip into the founts of love and Write one little word, and only one,
And feel life's work on earth well done,
For every heart would speak to me
That one sweet word, Fraternity
No other need would be our creed
But true fraternity.*

*For love divine would clasp the hand
And lead us to the Promised Land "Love for our fellow men" would be Our passport to Eternity.*

Ethel Wilson Howe, Lambda

ETHEL WILSON was initiated by Lambda Chapter in 1923, and shortly thereafter moved to Colorado and became a member of the newly organized Alpha Lambda Chapter, assisting materially in its organization. She was graduated from the University of Colorado in 1927, and was married in 1929 to Norman Howe. At the time of her death, after a lingering illness, she was president of the Boulder Alumnae Club, which she helped organize.

Mrs. Howe was one of six Delta Zeta sisters, Edythe Wilson Thoesen, Lambda, Yvonne Wilson Toof, Lambda, Hazel Wilson Buster, Lambda, Irma Wilson Dalton Alpha Lambda, and Ella Wilson, Alpha Lambda.

Address communications to

Mrs. Frederick O. Toof, Director

835 Seward St., Evanston, Ill.

IT SEEMS a queer time to be talking about Christmas, but since we have not yet told of our Christmas at Vest, we know you want to hear something about it, even though stories about the Fourth of July might seem more timely.

It was one of the best we have ever had in certain ways, probably because the people of the community helped make it so. They were asked to bring molasses and popcorn for our home economics girls to make popcorn balls for them, and, since our people make their own molasses and grow their own corn they were only too anxious to assist. Each child received a toy and each person in the community received candy and nuts, and, of course, the popcorn balls. Of course, a Christmas tree took a major part in the celebration, and everyone enjoyed the program of Christmas carols, stories, and poems.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all the chapters and all Delta Zetas and their friends for the money and gifts which they sent. Needless to say they were sincerely appreciated. The money gifts sent by the chapters and received at National Headquarters were as follows:

As you know, some chapters have adopted certain rooms at the Center which they are furnishing. These chapters are: Chicago Alumnæ, Indianapolis Alumnæ, Twin Cities Alumnæ, Grand Rapids Alumnæ Club, Iowa City Alumnæ Club, Milwaukee Alumnæ Club, and the Ohio Alumnæ Chapters which have combined to furnish the science rooms. The college chapters of Ohio have supplied the clinic and supply medicines each year.

The Cincinnati Mothers' Club has been a faithful friend of the Center and has given the Center twenty-five dollars for Christmas for the past two years. We especially appreciate this interest shown our national philanthropy.

Columbus Alumnæ Chapter sent a large number of gifts to the Center this year, all beautifully wrapped and very Christmassy looking, and a joy to their recipients. Mrs. Kirven, chairman for this chapter, was the former Director of the Center.

Some of the letters of thanks were very interesting, quite naïve, so they are presented that you might see that your gifts were really appreciated.

DEAR MRS. TOOF,

I wish to thank you for what I got. I wish to thank you for the little doll. I wish to thank you for the little doll's dress. The doll's dress was green and around its neck was a little green collar. Around the doll's neck was a little red, blue, and gold ribbon that had my name on it. The doll I got had long black hair. The doll's hair was curly. The doll I got had glass legs, arms, and head. It had blue eyes and they were glass too. I liked my doll very much. It was very pretty. Did you like your doll?

Your friend,
FLOSSIE

DEAR MRS. KIRVEN,

I would like to see you. I thank you very much for your book. I like to read story books. The night I got the book I got mama to read it to me. Mrs. Toof sent me a little doll. Mrs. Toof sent Daniel a ball and Helen a little doll. I will close for this time.

Your friend,
POLLY MAUD

DEAR MRS. TOOF,

I am writing you to thank you for the french harp. It was a very good harp. But I had rather have a ball. If you would send me a ball next year I would like to have it very much.

Your friend,
SAM

DEAR MRS. KIRVEN,

I am writing you to thank you for what you sent me.

I wish to thank you for the gloves.

I thought they were such nice gloves that I hardly ever wear them any.

I have wore them to school 3 times.

I think they are very nice, don't you?

Your friend,

HEAVY RAINS CAUSE FLOOD

On Friday night, December 11, we had another flood just lacking two feet being as large as the one that came May 23, 1927. This last flood ran over our swinging bridge at Vest and was up in Mr. Martin's house. It washed off all of Mr. Sutton's fodder. It washed down many fences around the creek banks and washed away several footlogs. The mail boy could not get thru at all on Saturday.

VEST WINS SECOND GAME FROM DWARF

The Vest and Dwarf ball teams met at the Hindman gym December 6 to play the third game of basketball. The game was very interesting, the score being almost even throughout. The game ended 12 to 8 in favor of Vest.

THE WHITE ELEPHANT PARTY

December 5 Miss Buck invited all the girls from the Dormitory to the Log House to a White Elephant Party.

The first thing we did was to guess what was in a large box, the one that guessed right was to have what was in the box. Everyone guessed and guessed until finally Miss Ragsdale guessed a one cent stamp. The next thing we did was to make all the words we could out of the word elephant. Geneva made the most and received an all-day sucker, Lora made the least and was given half a stick of gum. There was hidden in the room a "white elephant" for everyone. After each girl found it she was

CHRISTMAS VACATION

School will be dismissed Wednesday afternoon, December 23, for the holidays. School will begin again Monday morning, January 4.

MISS DINGMAN'S VISIT POSTPONED

Miss Dingman of Berea College was expected at the Dormitory last Friday. Miss Buck received a telegram saying she would not come until after Christmas on account of the bad weather. We all enjoyed her visit some time ago very much and we were looking happily toward her coming. You can imagine how disappointed we were to hear she wasn't coming. We hope she will not disappoint us after Christmas.

PRIZES AWARDED FOR GOOD WORK

SCHOOL NEWS

The primary children are busy making Christmas presents for their family folks.

The Home Economics class has been dressing dolls and making toys and gifts for their families and friends.

Holly, mistletoe, and pine is being used to decorate. There are Christmas pictures in the Primary room and the English room.

Some member of the Freshman English class reads a Christmas story every morning in class.

Mrs. Toof has written asking us to postpone our Christmas program until after the vacation.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

At Christmas you should think of your friends before yourself. Try to give them a present even if it is only a small one. It is not what you give that counts, it is the way in which it is given.

SANTA CLAUS

I often wondered when I was a small boy why there was a man called Santa Claus, and why he filled each little girl's and boy's stocking full of toys. I have found out that he comes to make each little girl and boy happy, and to keep them from being bad boys and girls.

Santa is a jolly old man. He is about five feet high, and he is so old that his long board has grown white. Santa is a smart fellow. The night before Christmas he gets in his little sleigh and goes to the home of each little boy and girl and fills their stocking with toys.

DORMITORY NEWS

The teachers will spend their vacation at the Dormitory this year. They have been invited to have Christmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. John Martin.

The girls are all going home for Christmas.

George Moore is having a Christmas tree and a program by a few of his friends and family.

LOAFER'S DELIGHT

SID—Lillie Mae, what is Santa going to bring you for Christmas?

L.M.—Why, he won't bring me anything, but I'm expecting a nice present from you.

CURTIS—Ollie Mae, are you engaged to Jack?

OLLIE MAE—Yes, are you?

FRANCIS—Won't you come up and see me some time?

WOODROW—I'd be delighted, especially at Christmas.

FRANCIS—I won't be here, I'll be at home.

A TONGUE TWISTER

I saw Esau kissing Kate. In fact, we all three saw, for I saw Esau, and he saw me, and Kate saw I saw Esau.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Oh! what about these Christmas presents?

Up at the North Pole Santa Claus has a workshop. In his workshop he has three doors. One he goes in at, the other he comes out at, and the last is to keep out the burglars. Santa Claus has a man to help him. This man paints the toys and puts them on the Arctic Circle to dry. Mr. North Wind dries them for him. When the toys are dry he puts them in a big bag and then goes out to fill the stockings. He sends Mr. Sandman to put the boys and girls to sleep. The reason Santa Claus wants the children to go to sleep is because he does not want them to see him.

Santa Claus has a big book that he puts your name into. This is the first time my little brother has his name in the book. I can see Santa Claus at the school house, but I cannot see him at home. I always go to sleep at home before he comes. I do not know how he comes in, but I think he comes down the chimney. I am going to hang up my stocking by the fireplace. In the morning when I get up I would like to have a doll sticking in my stocking. I hope you have a Merry Christmas.

JEWEL SUTTON

DEAR SANTA,

I want a big doll and some candy. I want a box of handkerchiefs and I want a big doll and a little duck.

VONNIE PATRICK

SANTA CLAUS

I can see Santa Claus with my eyes shut. He is a jolly old fellow, and is short and plump. He is dressed in red from his head to his feet, and his clothes are trimmed in a little white wool that the children got when they went wool gathering. He has little weasel eyes, and every time he laughs he looks as though they would spill down his cheeks. He has a nose that looks like a cherry, and he has a long white beard. He carries a big bag of toys on his back. To people that are good he gives toys. I think he is a thousand years old but I have known him only nine years.

DEAR SANTA,

I will write to tell you what I want. I want a toy cap pistol, a toy car and some marbles. I want a checker board, a toy horse, a knife, and a toy Santa Claus.

HARM MESSER

MR. SANTA CLAUS
North Pole

Will you please bring me a little airgun and will you please bring me a little knife with a little chain and please bring me a little gold bank.

BUDDY

DEAR MR. SANTA CLAUS,

I want a doll and two bananas and a handkerchief and a little rat, a little toy-house. I want a little teddybear, a little dog and an apple.

CHRISTMAS NIGHT

*It was on a cold and snowy night
About the hour of eight;
The whip did crack, the bells did ring,
As Santa drove up to the gate.*

*I had just settled down in bed
And begun to snore;
When Santa came down the chimney
And jumped out onto the floor.*

*He had a little round face
And a big fat belly;
That shook when he laughed
Like a bowl full of jelly.*

*He put into my stocking
A big apple, that was red;
Which made me feel Like jumping out of bed.*

*He gave mother a tablet
And a pencil that would write;
He gave father a can of tobacco
And a big cob pipe.*

*He gave sister a dolly
That sleeps and cries;
He gave brother some toys
And a plane that flies.*

*Santa put his fingers
Up to his nose;
Then up the chimney
With his pack he rose.*

*He jumped in his sleigh
And shouted to his deers;
To all a Merry Christmas And many Happy New Years.*

LESLIE GRIGSBY

CHRISTMAS DAY

*Long ago in a manger,
Was born a little stranger,
They called him Jesus Christ,
Which I think was very nice.*

*This was a very great day
I've heard many people say,
It is the twenty-fifth day of December,
Which I think we'll all remember.*

*This is the day old Santa comes,
With so many toys for the little ones,
We all should feel very great,
To have such a day to celebrate.*

GENEVA CASEBOLT

CHRISTMAS

*Whenever hearts are happy
It's a simple thing to do,
To seek some other sad heart
And make it happy too.*

*The joy we share with others,
Is a joy that's multiplied.
It will make a perfect Christmas,

MONROE FUGATE

Here and There Among the Constituents

MARY COLEMAN, daughter of Founder Julia Bishop Coleman and Dr. John McFerrin Coleman, was elected president of student government at Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri. Those of us who know Mary were not at all surprised to hear that she had been elected to this, the highest honor on the campus. Mary will be a senior at Stephens next year.

Jean Gunnes of Upsilon, has gone military. She was elected Honorary Cadet Colonel.

Boners are all the rage, especially in chapter letters. A gem from a letter sent for this issue . . . "... and now dear Delta Zeta sisters, with the hope that I will see you all at our convention in Kentucky . . ." A few spelling bees might not come amiss in some of our chapters. Can you spell consenstrate, permanint, plee, staid, seam? And then there is always the Dear Miss Pease, utterly ignoring my worthy better half, and you know, 195 pounds isn't to be taken lightly, or even casually overlooked.

Did you know that Delta won the scholarship cup at DePauw for the third consecutive time and has it in permanent possession in their new house?

Did you notice the Leap Year baby of Alpha Rho's Pauline Horine?

I wish some of you Alumnæ Association Backsliding Editors could see the paper put out by our newest chapter, Beta Kappa. The last issue was twenty pages of interesting information. Get busy, some of you editors who haven't put out a paper for yars and yars, our baby is way ahead of you. It is really one of the best of our many good chapter papers. Mildred Deischer is the editor.

I just discovered another leap year baby. And another girl, too—daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Teme (Carolyn Sjoblom of Gamma).

Nelle Ackerman, Psi, is now President of Student Council at Franklin.

Marion Gross of Gamma is teaching at a school for the deaf in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and reports the work as being most interesting.

Peg Fowles and Esther Moore, Alpha Upsilon, were both elected to both Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi. Congratulations.

Emily Pendleton, Alpha Upsilon, in collaboration with Dr. Ellis of the University of Maine, published a study of the early American writer, Sarah Wentworth Morton, in December.

Esther Munson, Mu, is doing graduate work in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Charlotte Swanson, Lambda, '26, who is professor and head of the art department at Albion College, Michigan, received many complimentary comments on her water colors exhibited at the Gordon Galleries in Detroit recently. Miss Swanson took her master's degree in art appreciation at the University of Chicago and studied at the Art Students League and abroad. Her undergraduate work was taken at Kansas State.

Mrs. Wilfred P. Jones, mother of two Omega Delta Zetas, was elected treasurer of the Supreme Chapter of P.E.O. last September. P.E.O. was founded in a midwestern college in 1869. There are over 50,000 active members, scattered throughout the United States, Canada, and Hawaii. Their loan fund is now over $600,000 and is growing rapidly, and is used to assist worthy girls to complete their educations.

Mrs. Coleman, one of our Founders, was Ohio State president of P.E.O. for two years, 1928-30. Mrs. Jones is past president of Oregon State Chapter of P.E.O. Mrs. Jones served as president of Omega Mothers' Club for one year.

Marguerite Wherry, Beta Kappa, '30, was elected vice-president of the Iowa Home Economics Association at the November meeting in Des Moines. This association includes the home economics instructors of all colleges and high schools in Iowa. Marguerite teaches in the high school at Radcliffe.

An anonymous letter was received by the editor, which we take to heart.

DEAR MRS. PEASE:

Since THE LAMP isn't Liberty (thank heavens) and is not possessed of a Vox Pop, I must unburden my constructive criticism on the Editor. Constructive criticism (my past profs were only too free with it) is rather like a dose of castor oil, only not so much so.

My LAMP (I have a life time subscription so you needn't start your saleswoman abilities on me) for the last year or so, has held the same position on my book shelf that the meat of the sandwich holds between two slices of bread. Suffice it to say heretofore, the Atlantic Monthly has been the top slice, THE LAMP the meat (or cheese?) and The Golden Book the bottom slice. Which gives me a good opportunity to advertise our Delta Zeta Magazine Agency. Any good magazine may be found in this club plan and the reward goes to the chapter, pardon, to continue . . . and repeating, the bottom slice. In the future THE LAMP shall be the first morsel and be on top if you attach due appreciation to my criticism (constructive). Here it is: The December LAMP was grand! So colorful. Give us more of the same morsel. I'm eating it up!

(Signed) AN ALPHA PSI "LAMP" FAN

Whew! I think she liked it. I wasn't so sure for a time. Well, how do you like this one, fan?

Mary Shoop, Alpha Iota, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She is also a member of Phi Kappa Phi. Mary is majoring in advertising and journalism, being especially interested in radio continuity work. Besides her scholastic record Mary has time to be president of the advertising club, a member of Gamma Alpha Chi, national advertising fraternity, copy manager on the business staff of the Daily Trojan and the Wampus, member of the Quill Club and a reporter and feature writer on the Trojan and Wampus. We wonder what she does in her spare moments.

Ruth Odell, Zeta, who wrote the article on English I, is instructor in this subject at the University of Nebraska. She is working on her doctor's degree which she expects to take at Columbia.

Evelyn Deardoff Boyer, Alpha Delta, is a member of a new National Foreign Service Fraternity for Women, Phi Pi Epsilon, which was founded at George Washington University in February, 1931, "for the purpose of creating and developing interest among the women of the university in the field of foreign service." Evelyn continues:

One of the first aims of the fraternity was to gain recognition on our own campus. This was accomplished through the kindness of Dr. John Donaldson, national vice-president of Delta Phi Epsilon, national foreign service fraternity for men. Delta Phi Epsilon was host at a joint meeting of the two fraternities, to which were invited diplomats from foreign countries.

The primary aim of Phi Pi Epsilon is to make contacts with people doing field work in foreign service, who will be willing to attend meetings and give the members the benefit of their experience. Phi Pi Epsilon has been fortunate in having as its guests Miss Constance Harvey, Vice-Consul in the State Department; Miss Anne O'Neal; Mrs. John Donaldson, just returned from a trip through Scandinavia; Baroness Von Loewenfeldt, who spoke on Jugo-Slavia; Miss Helgfried Orvin, counselor to the Norwegian Legation; and Miss Mary Bainbridge Hayden, former Associated Press Correspondent to Berlin.

On March 15, 1932, Phi Pi Epsilon entertained Delta Phi Epsilon at the Hay-Adams Hotel, when the guest speakers were Mrs. Benjamin Wallace, just returned from several years' residence in China, and Mr. F. M. Anderson, assistant solicitor of the State Department.

Those eligible for membership in Phi Pi Epsilon must have completed sixty hours in the university and must be interested in fields relating to the subject of foreign affairs. This field is the last in which women have entered and therefore Phi Pi Epsilon is a pioneer.

The national organization of Phi Pi Epsilon has been established at Washington, D.C., and the fraternity is ready to expand. Phi Pi Epsilon addresses itself to women of the college world and suggests that any college or university with departments of government, political science, or economics would have excellent material for an organization of this sort.

Any one interested in obtaining a chapter of this organization for her campus can reach Evelyn at 815 18th St. N.W., Apt. 708, Washington, D.C.

Don't forget, copy for the October LAMP is due not later than September 1. Since there are no chapter letters in the first issue, let's have lots of real news about people, and pictures, too. Everyone likes pictures.

The Seattle Alumnae Chapter needed some way to make money that was a little different and yet get results. It was decided to give a series of twelve bridge parties of about three or more tables, each girl paying fifty cents. The system has started, three parties having been held. At one of these parties each Delta Zeta who was invited pledged herself to give another party charging twenty-five cents. All three parties were very well attended and several are planned for the near future. By the end of the spring it is hoped to have enough money in the treasury to pay all debts and have some left over. Attendance is greater than it would be at one large bridge party, so the idea is passed on through the LAMP in case any chapter wishes to use it.

ALUMNÆ CLUBS

Alumnæ clubs—where are you? Only two of you represented in this issue. Each of you get your corresponding secretary busy and let's have a hundred per cent representation in the October issue. Material due September first.

M.H.P.

TAMPA ALUMNÆ CLUB

We are afraid all you other Delta Zetas will forget that Tampa Alumnæ Club exists, so we venture to send another letter to THE LAMP.

In our various lines of endeavor, our members keep very busy but we always reserve a portion of our time and thoughts for matters pertaining to Delta Zeta.

We have our monthly business meetings at the homes of members proceeding in alphabetical order.

We have social meetings also usually a luncheon, on the third Saturday of each month.

These meetings serve the double purpose of knowing each other better and of working out plans to further Delta Zeta interests in Tampa and in Florida.

We had the pleasure of entertaining fourteen actives from Alpha Sigma at one of our regular luncheons at the Forest Hills downtown club a few weeks ago. It was indeed a pleasure for us older members to have this chance of knowing our younger sisters. However, not all our members are so old.

During the Christmas holidays we gave three functions. One was a Girls-Bid dance at the Palma Clia Country Club, sponsored by our three Tampa pledges from Alpha Sigma, and with the help of our social chairman, Mrs. Curtis Hixon, it was a success.

Another was a bridge-tea given by Mrs. W. T. Covode, our president for Delta Zetas honoring our actives and pledges home for the holidays and Mrs. Jack Wintermeyer, who was visiting in Tampa at that time. It was a real Delta Zeta party as all of Mrs. Covode's parties are, with Delta Zeta colors and designs carried out in many interesting ways.

The third function was a tea given by the club at the spacious home of Ruth and Josephine Allen, members of our club, for high school seniors that we intend to rush in the summer. It was a beautiful party in every way and our guests were really lovely girls.

We had our greatest thrill, though, on Sunday afternoon, January 17, when Mrs. Covode held open-house for Mrs. Malott and we were privileged to meet our National President. Mr. and Mrs. Malott paid a short visit to Tampa and for a couple of days were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Covode. Mrs. Malott has made us feel we must go to Ashville to National Convention in July if it is at all possible.

We have many plans in the making of which we hope to write more about, later.

(Mrs. J. M.) VIOLET COARSEY, Correspondent

DALLAS ALUMNÆ CLUB

We are looking forward to the two principal social events of the season, midyear rush week, and the annual alumnæ bridge tournament.

The alumnæ plan to co-operate to a greater extent than ever with the Alpha Psi girls with the coming rush parties. As for the tournament, it is the social high light of the entire season, and is to be held this year in one of Dallas' most beautiful new buildings, the Dallas Power and Light Building, which at night is lighted from top to bottom with flood lights of white, scarlet, and orange. Our last year's tournament was a huge success, and we are hoping as much for the one to come.

Mrs. Malott has been our visitor for three or four days this week, and gave us a most interesting talk on the trip she and Mrs. Pease made to our community center at Vest.

The yearbooks we had printed this year include the constitution of our club, as well as the year's social calendar.

ALUMNAE CHAPTER LETTERS

Because the March LAMP was the Directory issue and contained no chapter news, this number presents the letters due in January and March.—Ed.

Letters from the following chapters are missing: Baton Rouge (1) Dayton (1) Ft. Wayne (2) Chicago (1) Denver (1) Los Angeles (1) Cincinnati (2) Detroit (2) Pittsburgh (1) Washington, D.C. (2)

BATON ROUGE ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Together with the actives and pledges of Sigma Chapter, the Baton Rouge Alumnæ group had the pleasure of entertaining recently our province director, Mrs. Gerald Cowan of Montgomery, Alabama. During her stay here, a tea was given at Sigma's lodge. This affair enabled many of the alumnæ of Baton Rouge and vicinity to met together for a social visit with Mrs. Cowan and with each other.

The bridge club, too, affords an opportunity for the alumnæ to meet together socially. Those who do not play bridge drop in for the social hour at the conclusion of the game. Sometimes a short business session is held while the "gang" is all assembled. The next meeting is planned for the third week in February, and will be held at the lodge.

At the present time, we, and the alumnæ of other Greek letter sororities which have representation on the Louisiana State University campus, are in a quandary about the building of permanent homes for the active chapters. The dormitories for women at the university have been completed, and immediately after Christmas all of the girls were moved to the new campus. The sororities are to be reimbursed for the lodges erected on the old campus, and provision has been made for a "sorority row" at the new site. As yet, however, no one has come forward with an acceptable scheme for financing the building of the homes, which are, of course, the dream of every Greek letter group. Temporarily, at least, meeting rooms for each sorority are to be provided for in the basement of the new dormitory. Meanwhile we are all busy trying to devise ways and means and hoping that Delta Zeta can be among the first if not the very first to own its own home on the beautiful new campus.

Aline Hamiter, Sigma, '24, was a recent visitor in Baton Rouge and a number of us had the pleasure of seeing her and of talking over old times. Aline has deserted the ranks of the "school marms," and now does secretarial work.

BERKELEY ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

I take my pen in hand in fear and trembling. In the next LAMP I shall see "Letter not typewritten" in small print at the end of this outburst. When one's typewriter suddenly goes poof! and one can't fix it with hairpin pokes, nor yet by shaking baling-wire over it, nor muttering "Abracadabra," one pushes a pen, meanwhile praying that Pease won't climb the lace curtains in her wrath. Anyhow, this is the wrong end of the month to add such uncertain luxuries as typewriter repairs to the depressed budget. If I had the right kind of a cup I might stand on a corner, if I had a corner.

Would you like the highlights, the pros and cons, in brief, the low-down, on tonsillectomy? Ileen Taylor Wilson is prepared to help you out if you insist on adding to your fund of general information on the subject. Line forms to the right. Don't push.

Much that is new and that promises to be interesting was planned at our January meeting held at Helen Kendall Chapman's home in Berkeley. Our December social meeting which honored the transfers who live around San Francisco Bay, was such a success that we planned to repeat it every other month. The alternate gathering will be a business meeting at which time instead of discussing business in open meeting, we shall have reports by an executive board, composed of the officers, Vera Symon Long, Pearl Hayes White, and Susan Potbury, with two members-at-large, Helen Wetzel Pearce in charge of social service, and Dorothy McAllaster. At the social meeting we are to "bridge," but at the other meeting while listening to the executive board's report, we are going to sew on warm garments for poor children, a worthy occupation.

So in the future, San Franciscans and Berkeleyites (Oakland, Alameda, and all points north and south included) if you cannot remember which meeting is which, for safety's sake bring with you both a thimble and a will to bid seven no-trumps.

Tentative plans are being laid for our annual spring party, honoring the seniors. The affair will probably be a bridge-luncheon, held somewhere in San Francisco sometime in April. Wherever we go or whatever we do, we'll trip thither garbed in bells and what-have-you.—For further details see Ileen.

Magazine subscriptions continue to come in, though more slowly now that the Christmas rush is over. Remember to send in your renewals as well as new subscriptions—that our work at Vest may continue.

EMILIE RUEGER PRINCELAU, Editor

(Here it is—"Letter not typed.")

Speaking of magazines ("aren't we all?")—Didja see how San Francisco "and environs" broke into print in the April National Geographic? We oughta be able to sit back on our laurels and use just a Californiac bibliography here, but a voluminous fear of the wrath of M.H.P. spurs us on to report as usual the progress of the Berkeley alums (that's her favorite word) even though not very much tempus has fugited since the last outburst. Sitting here chewing on a bit of embroidery is a big help in trying to remember what we've accomplished.

Well, you'd be surprised. We've added charity work to our activities and you oughta see the way we can turn out layettes. Do we swing a mean needle in concocting gertrudes and nighties out of yards and yards of daisy cloth? Do we?—um um. It is my personal opinion that some of the prospective babies will have to be afflicted with elephantiasis to use up all of the necks in some of the nighties, but then thank heaven for safety pins. If those nighties don't fit those babies till they are ready for kindergarten then I shall admit Rome wasn't built over the week-end.

Our plan of alternating a bridge-tea with a sewing-for-charity session is meeting with approval, judging from the increased attendance—at least at the parties! February meeting was a bridge-tea at the home of Helen Craig in Berkeley. In March we had our social service work meeting at the home of Emilie Princelau in Alameda, which was the first occasion for the new Executive Board to function. They took up only a minimum of time reporting on business accomplished and decisions reached, leaving plenty of gossip time for everybody. An item of general interest: the alumnæ are engraving the Mu scholarship cup with the name of Aileen Dennis, a senior who this year has added Phi Beta Kappa to her string of honor society scalps, not to mention the annexation of an engagement ring.

Final plans were laid for the annual spring party early in April, a bridge-luncheon at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco, honoring the Mu seniors. Inasmuch as Pearl White said she had sent notices to "just everybody in California" and had writer's cramp for days, we are expecting a lot of girls from all points of the California compass. It is always such a pleasure to welcome back those girls whose homes are great distances from the metropolitan district of San Francisco and whom we therefore see only on special occasions.

BIRMINGHAM ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

New alumnæ are: Wilma Buck Nunnell (Mrs. Martin), Howard College, '31, whose address since her recent marriage is 5134 Sixth Avenue North, and Leona Feltus, who is out of school at present on account of the illness of her father, 7130 Division Avenue.

Being unaware of the whereabouts of Kathleen Wright Fuller, '29, we were delighted to find a photograph of her and her little son in the social section of the Birmingham News. Underneath we read: "Mrs. Fuller and son, Ken, Jr., of Austin, Texas, who have many friends in Birmingham. A former member of the Howard College Chapter of Delta Zeta, Mrs. Fuller has been enjoying a series of social affairs given by this sorority at the University of Texas." However, it seems that the best way to address her is to Straven, Alabama, from whence her mail will be forwarded as she is not at a permanent location.

One of the recent pictures in the Gravure section of the News was that of little Nancy Bradley, daughter of Mrs. W. W. Bradley (Mabel Hodges), '23. Nancy is one of the few babies to make a long airplane trip having made the trip from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Birmingham.

Jean Lang Kitchell, '28, is a girl who believes in making many friends. She reigned in splendor as queen at a recent ball.

Elizabeth de Launay, '31, is justly proud of her brother Jules, now an instructor at Princeton. He has won the Rhodes Scholarship in this district and will go to Oxford next year. He is the second boy in two successive years to be appointed from Howard College.

We had seventy-six members, escorts, husbands, and Alpha Pis at our Christmas party at Docena Teachers' Cottage where Sabina T. Murray, '15, is principal of the school.

The cottage seemed to have been planned to accommodate large parties for there was space for twenty tables of bridge and room for more. Most of the guests never had visited the cottage before and they were delighted with the little house out-from-town which was charmingly decorated with spring and fall flowers, which have been having an unprecedented bloom here, in addition to pine boughs, holly, and mistletoe.

The holiday motif was kept in the serving of coconut cakes which looked like snowballs on tiny beds of pine needles. Tallycards were miniature Christmas trees. Magazine subscriptions were awarded to the couple having the highest scores. Hostesses were Sabina T. Murray, '15, Frances B. Gourley, '27, Ora D. Bohannon, '23, Addilee Mattison, '27, Ivie Pearl Ray, '25, Susie Gullede, '31, and Elizabeth S. Smith.

Annabel Hendon, Nell H. Howard, '20, Elizabeth Sadler, '27, and Etheline Oliver, were hostesses at a business meeting followed by a tea at the January meeting. Alpha Pis were guests at the tea. Mary E. McPherson Harris, '26 (Mrs. A. C.), of Chattanooga, was an out-of-town guest.

We have decided that the member at whose home a party is given should not bear any of the expense of entertaining but that the remaining hostesses should divide the burden of expense.

The new president, Alice B. Fruitticher, was at home to members from three to five o'clock Sunday afternoon, January 31. This was not a regular meeting but was held to distribute the yearbooks and to have a get-together. FRANCES B. GOURLEY, Editor

Edith F. McElroy, '28, was hostess at the February meeting of Birmingham Alumnae, at her home, giving a valentine bridge party. Hostesses assisting Mrs. McElroy were Marie N. Norton, '26, Jean Lang Kitchell, '28, Sara N. Yauger, '23, and Frances Ferrell, '31.

Nineteen thirty-two yearbooks have been distributed by Frances B. Gourley, '27. They were multigraphed on pink paper and bound in an attractive green cover with the aid of the alumna's long-suffering husband. Novel features were the inclusion of the time and place of graduation of the members, and a list of the addresses of unaffiliated members.

The March meeting was at the home of Cornelia H. Messer, who was assisted by Arnice Shelton, '26, Elizabeth S. Smith, and Billie E. Parsons, '29. Alice B. Fruitticher, president, announced the resignation of Nell H. Howard, '20, as treasurer. Mrs. Howard's resignation was accepted and Frances Ferrell, '31, was elected to the office.

Congratulations, Alpha Pi! Your rose banquet was a huge success according to the fourteen or more alumnae who attended it and the dance which followed. Annie Newman, '29, all the way from Sylacauga, added her praises to those of Mary Kat Waters, '31, Leona Feltus, Susie Gullede, '31, Alice B. Fruitticher, Sammie H. Bancroft, '27, Margaret Beyer, Frances Ferrell, '31, Thera Mae Towery, '29, Victoria Davis, '29, Margaret Hassler, '29, Annabel Hendon, and Ora D. Bohannon, '23. Even the chaperons, Sally Janney Eagles, Louise B. Maxwell, '30, Wilma B. Nunnally, '31, and their respective husbands glowed with admiration at the way in which our Howard girls "put over" the big event.

Ora D. Bohannon, '23, chairman of the magazine committee, continues to give enthusiastic reports and inspiring talks on magazine sales. And—she promises us a Magazine Man to talk to us at the April meeting! That should bring forth the good sisters! The hostesses at this meeting will be Sabina T. Murray, '15, Victoria Davis, '29, and Thera Mae Towery, '29.

Naomi Wells, '29, of Gadsden, was the guest of Addilee Mattison, '27, while in Birmingham for the Alabama Educational Association convention.

Rumors persist that Elizabeth Sadler, '27, threatens to go sky-larking to the Philippine Islands to teach. Aren't the heads of our little Alabama numbskulls thick enough for you, Ambitious?

Victoria Davis, '29, is our new representative to Birmingham Panhellenic. She is serving on one of the committees for the annual spring luncheon at which Miss Ambyn Chinn, Health Educational Director of the National Dairy Council is to be the principal speaker.

FRANCES B. GOURLEY, Editor

CHICAGO ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

In order to supplement the amount taken in at the annual benefit bridge for Vest, the Chicago Alumnae Chapter is going to raffle a quilt, pin-wheel pattern in pastel shades of green and white, which they pieced and which is now being quilted by one of our own mountain women at Vest, Kentucky.

In February the luncheon is to be at Marshall Field and Company, a group from the south side of Chicago to be hostesses. In March bridge parties will be held by the three groups in the various sections of the city. In April we have the downtown luncheon the West Side group serving as hostesses, when the election of officers will take place. In the meantime, Panhellenic luncheon, with Zeta Tau Alpha in charge, will take place. The bridge tournament finals will be played off at the June luncheon with the North Side group having charge of this party.

CLEVELAND ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

When it's time for the second letter and you wonder what ailed the members when they elected you chapter editor and you remember that there is still a third one to be written, what do you do? Put on a bold front and write something, I suppose. Well, here goes.

Our Founders' Day banquet, with Louise Kennedy as chairman, held at Shaker Tavern was voted the best we've ever had. Ruth Wiesenberger, our able toastmistress, asked members of the various chapters to give reminiscences and much to our surprise we found we had some poets among us. Aurel Fowler and Gertrude Ostendorf gave us some real poetry about college days. Keep it up, girls. Between courses Louise Kennedy sang a number of Delta Zeta songs. This was a remark I heard later, "To think we've never heard Louise sing before."

Our placecards were made in the shape of Delta Zeta lamps and they brought forth many ohs and ahs. After the banquet we adjourned to a smaller candle-lighted room where the committee members in white robes gave the beautiful Founders' Day service. Judging from the nervousness shown by trembling hands I believe each of us was as thrilled as when we wore our Delta Zeta pin for the first time.

Our first evening meeting brought out thirty girls, among them a number of new ones, whom we hope to see often. After our buffet supper, we talked and sang (no bridge for a change). Mrs. Cooks, our province director, urged us to try to help girls in Delta Zeta who this year are desperately in need of funds and a committee is hard at work figuring how much money we have, ought to have and can spend.

Our December meeting at the College Club was quite a treat. Our Aurel Fowler, in a very informal and most interesting manner, told us about her trip to Russia. I'm not saying more about that except that we hope she will tell you all about it in THE LAMP.

The January meeting was again a buffet supper at the home of Margaret Terry. Isn't it fun to have brides with lovely new homes? How we do have to diet for the next three or four days after these evening meetings, but we simply can't stay away.

A few of our members were most fortunate in meeting our National President, Mrs. Carl Malott, on her flying trip through our city.

COLUMBUS ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Our Christmas party, held at the home of our president, Katherine Backus, was a huge success. We called it our "Vest party" because we wrapped all our gifts, for the Center, separately and sent one to each girl in the school. If the children enjoyed their

How the rest of us envied those lucky few!
FLORENCE LOWELL, Editor

Our February luncheon meeting was a short, snappy one so as to permit as many as possible to attend the Panhellenic teas given that afternoon. Delta Zeta was well represented even though our representative, Aurel Fowler, could not attend due to the fact that she was being sworn in as a full-fledged lawyer. We hope we won't have to give her too much business even though we know she is a first class lawyer.

Our plan of alternate afternoon and evening meetings seems to have worked out very well for both have been well attended. Our St. Patrick's meeting at the home of Lillian Eggers drew about thirty members in spite of the terrible weather and no one seemed in a hurry to leave.

In February each of the active chapters in our province received a letter which I shall quote in part:

"We realize that the greatest problem which every chapter faces now, is one of finance. We wish we were wealthy enough to clear all your debts in the manner of Aladdin—but, alas, we have no such powers. There is a small amount in our treasury, namely, $50, which we want to offer to some deserving Delta Zeta who needs financial aid to carry on this year.

"It is our suggestion that each active chapter in Province 8 send in the name and qualifications of such Delta Zeta, who, through her standing in school and her contribution to her chapter, has really served Delta Zeta. The candidate from the chapter whom we consider deserving of our assistance, will receive this gift of $50. Also, if our plan is successful, our group hopes to establish a permanent fund for this section."

ALUMNÆ OF CLEVELAND

The replies soon came and what a task our committee had in making the selections. As each letter was read the committee was sure the girl mentioned was the girl, for each one seemed so deserving. After most careful consideration the girl from Alpha Eta was chosen. How we wish we could give an equal amount to each of the other girls, but alas, that is impossible. Perhaps another year we can do more.

FLORENCE LOWELL, Editor

presents half as much as we did in preparing them, I'm sure the holidays were glad days for them. Mrs. Marie Baber, Mrs. Gladys Stoneman, Helen and Ruth Murray, were hostesses and served us a delicious dinner.

January 18 we had dinner at the chapter house. Good food, much singing and laughing made it a very happy occasion. We also had the pleasure of coming in closer contact with the pledge group which promises an enthusiastic active chapter next year.

We have endeavored this past year and a half to be as helpful to the actives and the pledges as possible. In fact it is really a project with us. Last spring we set up a scholarship award for them. The active with the highest scholastic average received a Theta guard and the pledge, a corsage. We are planning now for the spring party at which we will again reward the girls for their efforts the past three quarters. It has certainly been an incentive to both chapters and we recommend it to any alumnæ group within close proximity to an active chapter which needs inspiration.

Many of the alumnæ are making reservations for the dance being given by the actives in honor of the pledges next month. It is to be a gala affair as our dances always are. The alumnæ that attend them have a grand time though we are not quite so collegiate as a few years ago.

On Monday evening, February 15, we are having a dinner in honor of the Delta Zetas from other chapters who are living in Columbus. Mrs. Hazel Stevens will be our hostess.

We had the pleasure of having two new girls at our last meeting, Mrs. Raymond R. Fisher, Alpha Beta, and Mrs. Lawrence Hall, Alpha Eta. We sincerely hope they will attend regularly and lend us inspiration.

Mrs. Rudolph O. Cooks, our province director, was here a few months ago and we had a very interesting visit. Her encouragement has aided us tremendously.

Anne Sturgeon Young is president of the Browning Dramatic Society Alumnæ this year. Each year the active group produces a Shakespearean play during commencement festivities. A Twelfth Night party was held at the Faculty Club and was lovely according to the Delta Zetas who were there.

Amanda Thomas, who is an officer in Theta Sigma Phi, journalism sorority, is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Annual Matrix Table. The guest speaker this year will be Margaret Ayer Barnes.

MILDRED L. WORLEY, Editor

We are in the midst of planning a benefit bridge party. Mrs. Charles Petree (Elizabeth Darragh) is the general chairman for the affair to be held at the chapter house on April 12. Her assisting committee is composed of Mrs. Raymond R. Fisher, Mrs. Lawrence H. Hall, Mrs. Warren Stevens, Helen Murray, and Mildred L. Worley. Our first committee meeting was held at Mrs. Fisher's charming apartment in Townley Court.

Mrs. Warren Stevens opened her home to us for our February meeting with 35 members present. Helen King, Mrs. Robert Barton (Margaret King), Mrs. Robert Boyd (Charlotte Hayes), and Mrs. Frank Kirven (Arema O'Brien), served us a chop suey dinner. The party was in honor of girls from other chapters who are making their homes in Columbus. Mrs. Raymond Fisher, Alpha Beta, Mrs. Lawrence H. Hall, Alpha Eta, Mrs. Homer Knox, Xi, Mrs. Floyd Hobart, Alpha Beta, Mrs. Max Clark, Psi, Mrs. John Carruthers, Xi, Mrs. Keith Roberts, and Mrs. Percy Mott were our guests.

Mrs. Richard Brashear (Ruth Evers), Xi, was hostess to the alumnæ at her home on March 21. An Italian dinner was served by two cute Italian girls who had also prepared the pièce de résistance. Mrs. Fred Gleach (Ruth Colton), Mrs. Charles Petree, Mrs. Clifford James (Emma Jane Berkheimer), and Eleanor Diltz assisted.

The meeting was most interesting because we had many letters from national and consequently much business. We voted to postpone National Convention for one year which was rather a disappointment to the girls who had planned to attend.

A letter was read from Mrs. Yvonne Toof thanking us for our Christmas package and suggesting that we become "bloomer conscious." Many children at Vest apparently do not have sufficient clothing so an idea was instilled in the group to get together and make some useful garments for Vest. We are most interested in our community school perhaps through Arema O'Brien Kirven, who has always been keen for its success. Our alumnæ have done much to help and we sincerely hope that part of the money saved from the postponing of the convention will be sent to help maintain the school. We are one of a few national sororities supporting a philanthropic project and it would be a star in our crown to have it always succeed.

Mrs. Gladys Laughlin Stoneman has just returned from a Mediterranean cruise and had a glorious time.

Eleanor Diltz is the hostess at the new University Club in Columbus and enjoys her position immensely.

We wish everyone a joyous vacation and if any of you are in Columbus during the summer months we would be delighted to have you get in touch with us.

MILDRED E. WORLEY, Editor

DAYTON ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Another year has rolled around and we find in taking inventory that the Dayton Alumnæ Chapter has acquired one new member, Esther Hutsell of Indianapolis, and a complete new group of officers.

Our December dinner bridge meeting was held at the home of Mrs. George Lanning. The assistant hostess, Mrs. Ray Welsh (Dorothy Switzer) in addition to her other duties was kept very busy answering questions concerning her nine months' old daughter, Lu Anne, who, no doubt, will be an outstanding Delta Zeta in years hence.

During the Christmas holidays, at the home of Mrs. R. H. Israel, we held our annual bridge-tea for actives, pledges, and a few rushees. The affair was very well attended and we had a most enjoyable time.

On January 8 we were again entertained for dinner and bridge at the home of Mrs. M. K. Howett (Hilda Marley) who was assisted by Miss Helen Gaskill.

Letter unsigned.

DENVER ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

With spring fever exacting its toll it is well that most of the bridge parties, dances, and rummage sales sponsored by Denver Alumnæ have been duly recorded by the muse of history.

Someone has been telling us that the Democrats and Republicans have fired the first guns in the 1932 presidential campaign. That is interesting, but is no news to us. We've been firing all sorts of guns in our own election campaign for such a long time now that it is becoming more or less a habit. Election takes place in the moist month of April, officers will be installed in the merry month of May, and are due to assume offices at the time of the meeting in June.

At this time it might be both fitting and proper to mention our annual subscription bridge party, which is to be held during the month of April. This will be the biggest event of the year for us.

Last, but not least, we are anxious to have you know college educations have not been wasted on us. We are having literary teas. We don't recall whether the tea served was of the genus Oolong, Pekong, Black, or what not, but we have not forgotten the books of the hour, reviewed in such a clear, comprehensive and interesting manner.

PAULINE S. WICKERS, Editor

INDIANAPOLIS ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

The depression seemed to strike our chapter in full force in January for the first unfortunate piece of news that we had was that Hester Miller, our president, was moving to Detroit. We gave a farewell tea on Sunday before she left and presented her with a pewter fruit bowl as an appreciation of the excellent work she had done for the chapter during her years of association. At the next meeting our only vice-president, I should add—accepted the responsibilities of being our acting-president until the election of officers. But we all know how well Hazel Funk will be able to carry on after the way she presided at our January meeting at Wilma Whittaker's. But I am getting ahead of my story.

Before we had a January meeting we had a Christmas meeting at Mary Whittemore's (Mrs. Paul D.) with Mrs. Heuslein, Mrs. Hartmann, Maybelle Hall, and Pauline Howard assisting. They did such a good job of infusing us with a real Christmas spirit that before the evening was out we had pledged enough food, clothing and money to take care of three families. (Possible editor's query: Did the pledges materialize? Local editor's answer: Believe it or not, they did.)

The second disappointment we had was that it was impossible to give our benefit bridge party and style show in the month of February as we had planned due to our inability to get a suitable date so we are putting it off until later in the spring.

Our committees have already been appointed for our state luncheon which will be in April. With our "ex" Janet Hiatt, as general chairman, we're assured of another successful luncheon.

Mrs. Tucker had the pictures of her young daughter at our last meeting and she certainly looks like a fine Delta Zeta prospect in about seventeen years from now. We also had the latest favorable reports of Mrs. Robert Allen and her baby daughter, Mary Elizabeth, who is now almost three weeks old.

We're doing our best to drum up trade for convention and, from the way it looks now, you'll have difficulty not running into Indianapolis people at Asheville.

FRANCIS E. WESTCOTT, Editor

If I were to put it mildly I'd say that the Indianapolis alumnæ are busy. If I were to state it truthfully I'd say the Indianapolis alumnæ are very, very, very, very busy.

On March 17 we elected officers for the year and selected Mrs. Robert Hill of Tau to lead us. Then we had a special meeting March 29, this to be followed by a benefit bridge and style show at the L. S. Ayres Auditorium on April 9 for our social service and scholarship fund. All the prizes are being donated by local merchants and a pair of shoes has been given as a door prize.

Next in order comes our annual state luncheon to be followed by a Cinderella Ball on April 23. The dance is cabaret style with supper at eleven-thirty o'clock. We've drafted practically everyone in the chapter on some committee or other. The general chairman is Mrs. Noble Hiatt, who is also our new LAMP editor. Other chairmen include: luncheon, Mrs. Robert Heuslein; entertainment, Miss Harriet Kistner; reservations, Mrs. Robert Berner; decorations, Mrs. Harry Kerr; favors, Mrs. Alfred Shotwell; dance, Mrs. Robert Hill; music, Miss Mary Carriger.

We're making our usual plans for a good time at the luncheon and hope to see you all there. FRANCES E. WESTCOTT, Editor

KANSAS CITY ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Kansas City Alumnæ chapter has accepted with stoicism the fact there evidently is a depression so, we are having our monthly meetings at the homes of the girls. We have a business meeting and play bridge, seriously of course, and then very simple refreshments are served. The girls who are unable to accommodate a large crowd assist the hostess both financially and socially, and this is the advantage to this plan. Each girl pays fifty cents, all of which goes into the treasury. These meetings have really proved quite successful, with an increase in attendance.

In December Karleen Garlock furnished a large packing box which we filled with articles for Vest. Each girl brought two presents, and those who could not come were urged to "drop by" to leave theirs. It was surprising how the box filled up, with useful things too, for both boys and girls. If those at Vest enjoyed them as much as the girls enjoyed giving them, it must have been a Merry Christmas for all.

We've two new "finds," Elsie Bronson, Alpha Phi, and Mrs. I. E. Schneeberg, Rho. By the way, if anyone is a Delta Zeta in Kansas City or knows anyone who doesn't know us, let us know.

Pauline Edwards Dodd keeps us informed about Panhellenic, and one only needs to attend a tea given by other sororities to find how much they all respect her suggestions!

We're not forgetting for one minute that this is Convention year, and only hope that there will be several representatives from the Heart of America.

MARY HACKETT KOEHLER, Editor

Hearts, and a few flowers were in evidence at the February meeting because we felt that while everyone else was doing things for the Bicentennial we'd hold fast to St. Valentine's. "Collie" Schneeberg, one of our recent finds, was there, and we had a guest from out of town, Eloise Bonnett, a senior at Alpha Beta. It was a perfect day, and everyone seemed to feel spring on the way, and bid their hands most recklessly!

Woe is us! Pauline Dodd has forsaken us! Her husband was transferred to Dallas, and as wives and families have a way of moving when the husband and father moves, she and Jean left with him early in March. What is our loss is most certainly Dallas' gain, but that takes real sisterly love to accept! We hope she will enjoy Dallas as much as we enjoyed having her in Kansas City.

Panhellenic held an open meeting in March and invited the officers of each sorority, as well as national officers and founders. Miss Agnes Husband, dean of women at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, told some very interesting ways in which the city Panhellenic may help the Panhellenic on the college and university campus. There were luncheon and bridge. Ruth Davison has taken Pauline Dodd's place as our representative, and with her knowledge and previous experience will be a real help to us in Panhellenic.

The day the March meeting was held was far from lamb-like, but those who met at Esther Tracy Luke's had fun at bridge, but more especially with the nine months' old Florence Ann. And Esther didn't object at all to her being held by each girl, cooed at, and admired.

Mothers are to be our guests at the May meeting. Each year we have a mothers' tea, and this year it is to be near Mothers' Day, with a bridge party. Marion Brinton is negotiating for a place to have it, and each girl is being urged to bring a guest, whether it be her own mother or somebody else's.

Election of officers—and on to Convention! We'll be seeing you!

JOYCE M. HAWES, President

LINCOLN ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

We have certainly been an active group due to the "wim and vigor" of our new president, Blanche Austin.

At the beginning of the year we held a tea at the chapter house for our new house-mother, Mrs. Taylor, and our patronesses. With the soft glow of shaded lights, the dainty colors of our rose and green and pretty girls in their formal dresses it was a huge success.

Our Founders' Day dinner was held at the house October 22 and of course, our own Nettie Shugart, who is a charter member of Zeta Chapter had charge of the service.

During the year we have been very much interested in two projects, first Vest, our school in Kentucky. I don't know of anything that could have made this project more real or brought it closer home than the moving pictures and talk we had at one of our meetings. To see those earnest, sober faces peering out at you from the screen just made you want to do all within your power to bring a little help and happiness to them and to those folks who are working so hard with them.

At Christmas time we had our meeting with Vivian Harper in her lovely new home. We brought a White Elephant and fifty cents. The "White Elephant" was placed under a gorgeous Christmas tree that touched the ceiling and the money was given to the treasurer who later sent it to Vest.

After an evening of bridge and food we exchanged "Elephants" which ranged from cutglass sugar and creamers to linen fingertip towels.

Our second project concerns the swelling of the alumnæ treasury. For two years we have been holding a bridge tournament. We are divided into three groups and each one plans to hold six meetings, charging 25 cents per person. You bring hubby along, perhaps you think for the sole purpose of digging down into his jeans but I believe those business and professional men enjoy gossiping with each other as much as we girls do. At the close of the six meetings those having the highest score from each group meet for a battle royal at the chapter house and a prize is awarded to the survival of the fittest.

RUTH SHREVE, Editor

With spring "just around the corner," we are reminded of summer and the bringing to a close of the present school year.

Our plans are well on the way for the alumnæ banquet in May, and we hope to see great numbers of alumnæ old and new at the buffet luncheon which will be held at the chapter house that same day.

On February 25 we sponsored a birthday tea at the house for the actives and out of town alumnæ.

Edna Wheatly, our province director, paid us a very welcome visit early in March. Although her time was limited we managed to squeeze in a formal dinner at the house so that we alumnæ as well as the active girls might listen to her helpful suggestions.

Ruth Ellsworth Chapman and Minna Hamer have just returned from vacationing in "sunny California" and bring back greetings from former Zeta members, Esther Ellen Fuller, Frances Latham Jenkins, Mrs. Esther Foster, Fayette Davis, and Merle Herzog. We certainly miss them but are hoping that the "good old Ne-bras-ki" fever may send them back some day.

LOS ANGELES ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

The first meeting of the New Year found the Los Angeles Alumnæ partying at Jean Delavon's lovely home. There was a big turnout and we saw many faces that we would like to see more often. Girls, if you want to eat something good, ask Jean about baked stuffed oranges! They were delicious!

Alpha Chi Association is starting a bridge tournament the last of January for the purpose of raising money to help pay off some of the installments on the beautiful new chapter house; and, to get together socially with our husbands or "what-nots." Everyone is very enthusiastic and we hope that the Lenz psychic bids will lead to no throat cutting for the grand stakes by the Culbertsons. You will hear more of the casualties and fatalities later.

Two of the Alpha Iota girls, Helen Irwin and Kathryn Ryan, gave a lovely party during the holidays, honoring Ruth Smith Whidden and her lesser half who have moved to Pittsburg, California.

We are glad to learn that:

Mrs. Philip Sampson (Jessie Earl) is now living in Pacific Palisades, California. Her husband is practicing medicine in Santa Monica after completing his medical course and internship at Stanford.

Hazel Gerhardt of St. Louis is spending the winter with us.

Helen Carpenter Dickson, Rho, of Denver, is making her home in Los Angeles with her husband and little daughter.

Lois Huse is again in Los Angeles and we hope to see her oftener. Helen Lenzer, also of Rho, who has spent many months in the Orthopedic Hospital is convalescing nicely and is at home at 709 S. Mariposa Avenue, Los Angeles.

NEW YORK ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Our regular New York Alumnæ Chapter meeting was held on January 16 at the home of Mrs. James Quinn (Madeline Betts, Alpha Zeta). There were sixteen of us there, and I wish that there could have been more to enjoy her lovely apartment. After the usual preliminaries of every meeting we discussed various plans for the future, and decided to have our annual alumnæ bridge in March this year. So far no definite date has been set, but it will be around the nineteenth.

We now have to mind our Ps and Qs as we have a full fledged lawyer in our chapter. Mary Malone has been admitted to the bar, and we are awfully proud of her.

There is to be a Panhellenic ball to be held on February 5 at the Baltimore. I'm sure that all of us who go will have a marvelous time. It is to be quite the affair.

ALTHEA DEAN HOYT, Editor

The New York Alumnæ Chapter held its last meeting at the home of Lucy Niebrugge MacKenzie in Flatbush. We had a very large turn out and a lovely time.

The matter of our bridge was discussed, and said bridge was held at the Panhellenic House on March 19. There was quite a good number of girls, even though some of them were quite late due to their inability to cross Fifth Avenue because of the St. Patrick's Day parade. The prizes were lovely boxes of writing paper.

At our alumnæ meeting, one of our active girls, Doris Gunton, brought up the matter of a theater party. It seems that the active chapter had bought tickets for the play The Left Bank, and they wanted the alumnæ to help them out by going. I guess that nearly all of the tickets were sold, judging by the number of Delta Zetas present at the theater that night. The play was awfully well done and very interesting. Between the acts, of which there were three, the various girls walked around and visited, and participated in tea in the lounge.

PITTSBURGH ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Pittsburgh alumnæ are grateful to Jesse Rayburn for her suggestion that we hold our meetings downtown, and to Dorothy Naumann for offering the pleasant club rooms of the Y.W.C.A. We have held two meetings in this central location and attendance has been doubled. At the first meeting, Dorothy secured Mrs. Marjory Snead to speak to us on New Year's resolutions. Her talk turned out to be an urging to read, during the coming year, a very choice selection of books on science, psychology, and poetry. Mrs. Snead reviewed these books so attractively that even our social butterflies perked up and resolved unto themselves. . . . Well, the best of resolutions go astray. Marion Clark, though, is holding up our intellectual standards. Her M. A. in English is not to be lightly mentioned.

At the last meeting we heard our own Mary Karcher tell of her experiences at the David Gregg Hospital in Canton, China, where her husband is a doctor. Mary told us of her acquaintance with Chinese girl doctors and nurses and introduced us to their pictures and biographies. We had questions to ask, of course, and were much surprised at some of her answers. Seems as though we had wrong ideas about the "Heathen Chinese." 'Twas a very enlightening and pleasant evening.

Seven tables were filled with Delta Zetas at the Student Loan Bridge, held at the Scenley Hotel last month. I hope we support as loyally the Panhellenic benefit to be held soon at Webster Hall. Grace Austin will be in charge of Delta Zeta reservations. Peg Russell and her committee are busy with preparations for the annual rush party to be held at her home. We're looking forward to this happy event, and wishing the actives, does it sound too boastful, their usual luck.

PORTLAND ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Portland alumnæ are once again settled down to serious work after the holiday rush of Christmas shopping, family dinners, and the usual round of parties including bridge showers, teas, and coasting and skiing parties at Mt. Hood.

During the Christmas vacation, the alumnæ chapter entertained the members of the two active Oregon chapters at a bridge party at the home of Miss Alice Quarnberg in Vancouver.

Mrs. Dorothy Erickson, an alumna of Chi Chapter, assisted the hostess. Mrs. Lyle McCroskey, president of the Portland group, wrote to the two active chapters inviting them to the party, but we were somewhat disappointed to find that only one pledge from Omega, Helen May Calef, came to the affair.

Portland Alumnæ Chapter and Omega Mothers' Club deeply regret the passing of Augusta Ross, beloved mother of Jean Ross, an alumna of Omega Chapter. Mrs. Ross was a very prominent member of the Omega Mothers' Club, serving as president of that organization one term and helping materially in providing many comforts for the Omega Chapter in both their old and new homes. Mrs. Ross' illness extended over a period of more than two years and she was laid to rest December 11.

The Portland chapter is very actively occupied in their financial program. One of the big events for making money is a benefit bridge-dinner which is planned for January 22 at the Pewter Plate Tea Room. Under the supervision of a committee composed of Misses Grace Yoakley, Lillie Johnson, and Alice Quarnberg every effort is being made to sell one hundred tickets. The price is put at the lowest mark—50 cents each and we hope to clear about $40. The only expense to the organization is a flat charge of $10, the tea room furnishing a well-balanced three course dinner featuring Oregon products, all bridge and door prizes. All husbands, fathers and sweethearts are being invited and it is hoped that this event will be a real good Delta Zeta get-together.

Another one of our many financial plans is progressing very nicely, too, and that is our magazine subscription for our settlement school. We are informed by our magazine subscription chairman that our group headed the list for our province territory for the month of December. It is greatly hoped that we can hold this cherished position.

Several Chi alumnae have had a line or two from Miss Elizabeth Barnes, of the drama department of Oregon State College who is now on her sabbatical leave. Barnesy, as she is intimately called by all D.Z.s who know her, is making a world tour on the Dollar line steamer, President Adams (I believe this is correct). She is official hostess on this marvelous boat and we know that she is keeping all the guests most excellently entertained and interested in the social activities while on board, for she is just full of bright ideas. (The author speaks from first hand knowledge.)

Several of the Omega alumnae have sprung into literary prominence in the past year. Mrs. Benoit McCroskey, who was Doris Efteland, won two prizes for her efforts during 1931. She won a first prize of $50 for an interesting article on decorating a bedroom suite. This item appeared in an early issue of the Ladies' Home Journal of 1931. A $10 award was also given to her by The Woman's Home Companion who sponsored a contest in selecting the most attractive and practical wardrobe from a group which they featured in their magazine. Miss Glenna Fisher has written a very interesting account of her trip to Hawaii last summer which was published in a recent issue of the St. Vincent's Nurses' Magazine.

She has promised the writer a similiar article for THE LAMP. Katherine Butterfield Larson of Alpha Alpha Chapter of Northwestern, and an adopted sister of Omega, was recently asked to be an assistant critic on the Delineator staff. This is considered quite an honor as the number of critics is limited. In another part of this issue appears a very interesting account of a great honor which was recently conferred on one of our mothers, Mrs. Wilfred Jones. Portland Alumnae Chapter congratulates her and shares in her glory.

We are hoping to have some interesting snapshots to send THE LAMP for the spring issue. An effort was made for this issue, but the editor was stalled for the spring issue on the point that the weather would be much better for picture taking at that time.

EVELYN CHAMBERS, Editor

The first monthly meeting of the new year was held at the home of Alice Weinan of Chi Chapter in West Portland, Monday evening, March 7. Bea Rutherford and Jean Ross assisted the hostess. A report was made on our progress in the magazine subscription sale, also a financial statement was given on the proceeds secured from the benefit dinner which was held in January.

On Thursday, March 24, the alumnae group assisted Omega to rush a group of girls who plan to enter the university next fall. The affair was a bridge party given at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Houk, mother of Gertrude Houk Farris, a former member of the Oregon University chapter. Eight tables of bridge were in play. There were four of the active members present at the party and a splendid turn-out of the alumnae who seemed to enjoy once again the thrill of rushing. During the latter part of the evening dainty Easter sandwiches, petite-fours and season ice-cream, were served.

A number of the girls are already planning their summer vacations this early in the season. Although this is supposed to be the year of thrift and economy, to hear some of our members tell of their coming vacations there seems to be little shortage. Maurine Brown, who teaches in Portland schools, has signed up for the University of Oregon Alaska trip for an enjoyable and cool month's sojourn in the northland. Betty Jones, who teaches at Gresham, just a short distance from Portland, plans to go to California for the summer. Perhaps she intends to attend the Olympics. Glenna Fisher is also planning to spend part of her summer in California with San Francisco as her principal stopping point. Mary McCullough Stewart has just returned from a six weeks' vacation in California. She motored south with some friends, going as far south as Agua Caliente where she had a pleasant visit with Ruth Crofton, a former Omega girl. Ruth's brother, by the way, is the owner of this famous pleasure spot, so helped materially in showing the sunny south to Mary. Mary also saw one of the charter members of Omega Chapter while in San Diego, Mildred Parks Stewart, who seems to prefer California too.

Jean Ross and Evelyn Chambers are planning an interested month's visit East this June with New York as their destination. Part of the trip may be taken by boat from New Orleans to New York, and they are going to return through Canada. They hope to see some Delta Zetas along the way and possibly visit some of our eastern chapters.

A number of our girls have been doing some mighty interesting things lately. Frosh Everett, who is one of Portland's leading women attorneys, will be one of the instructors at the Jury School to be held at the Multnomah County Court House Monday, April 4. Frosh also has been speaking before the Young Democrats Club on political problems of the coming election.

Alys Sutton McCroskey, our president, has also been speaking before various clubs recently, among them being the Women's Club of Aurora where she gave an interesting illustrated lecture on her tour through the famous Huntington Memorial Library in Los Angeles.

No offense meant but the writer often wonders the use and value of writing these long epistles when not even a word ever appears in THE LAMP. Perhaps the next editor will have better luck.

SEATTLE ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

Our Christmas party was held December 30. After a short meeting there were six tables of bridge and judging from the good time that everyone had one could tell that it was getting pretty close to New Year's Eve.

Our January meeting was held just last week when we were entertained by five hostesses with a spread. We had a larger turnout for this meeting than we have had for some time as several of our 1931 graduates honored us by coming out for the first time.

We have had only one benefit party this fall and that was in the form of a benefit bridge held in November at the Delta Zeta house where we had about seventeen tables of bridge. The money we made on that party wasn't as much as we expected to receive so we had to devise a way of making more money. (We want to be represented at the Convention, you know.) We are going to give a series of twelve bridge parties with several hostesses for each one and they may have as many tables as they wish and can invite whom they wish for fifty cents a piece. We are not limiting it to Delta Zetas and each party may be just as novel and different as the hostesses wish to make it.

We calculate we should make around $100 if all goes well. In this period of "repression" one can never tell, but we are optimistic nevertheless.

The alumnae chapter tried to do its bit just before Christmas in collecting old clothes, food, toys, and anything that needy families could use.

ELEANOR STRICKLER, Editor

Since the last letter to THE LAMP there have been two meetings of the Seattle Alumnae Chapter, both of which were bridge parties. I believe the most interesting one was the March meeting. The hostesses put on a St. Patrick's party and it was lovely. The centerpiece was a large potato hollowed out in the center with a green candle sticking up out of it and at one end it had shamrocks growing, real ones, too! We nearly ate the hostesses out of house and home and afterwards played bridge, but I am afraid our minds weren't on bridge.

The depression must be on as we haven't had any marriages, engagements, or anything to announce but we hope for the best this summer.

ELEANOR STRICKLER, Editor

TWIN CITIES ALUMNÆ CHAPTER

What with the depression and a "flu" epidemic, life becomes somewhat hard to handle. But we still carry on. We made a big appearance at our rose dinner given for the rushees the last night of formal rushing week, and it was a time for old songs and "Remember when——."

Next on the program is the hope chest tea with Helen Woodruff, master of hopes. The tea is to be held April 2, 1932. It has proved in years gone by to be one of our most successful adventures, and we begin the campaign of selling chances on the hope chest with great enthusiasm.

We have organized a new procedure. Instead of having two meetings a month, one social and one business, we now combine the two in one meeting with business as the first course and social entertainment for the rest of the evening. We meet the second Tuesday of each month at the chapter house at eight o'clock. By having one meeting a month, we discovered we had a better crowd, and as long as we all broke our family ties to come to the meeting, we make a night of it and play bridge and consume rich somethings until the late hours.

Any wearers of the Lamp are most cordially invited to attend our meetings. In fact we entreat you to pay us a visit.

VALBORG TANNER, Editor

I sit down to write on the eve of our big Hope Chest Tea, which will end the depression. Helen Woodruff, Lucille Munger, and Agnes McNeil have been working hard, and the lucky winner receives everything in the Cedar Chest but a man.

All had been quiet at the midwestern front, until some energetic member decided that it was time for a survey or two. Our latest project, as a result, is a questionnaire comprised under the capable direction of Gertrude Johnson, to be sent to all alumnae members. What improvement suggested, what is wrong with the chapters, what isn't, and the depression will be some of the problems we will solve. We are all to write truthfully and anonymously (a simple matter) and send the explosive letters back to Gertrude Johnson. The truth will out at last, and next letter I probably will have some startling facts.

The meeting for February was a joint one with the active chapter, and an efficiency expert talked to us on managing the house; we met all the actives and after meeting adjourned discussed in groups here and there "when we were young, and we who are young." The meeting was a success and brought the two groups together in perfect harmony, a "humour" most essential.

They are having an informal rushing week at the house to open the spring quarter, and to bring to Delta Zeta a few more charming members. It keeps us at our best, and we hope it will mean a great many new members. Monday is the fatal day of pledging.

Outside of these facts, we eat and sleep, and laugh and stay merry, and hope to provide more news till next time.

WERE

COLLEGE CHAPTER LETTERS

Because the March LAMP was the Directory issue and contained no chapter news, this number presents the chapter letters due in January and in March.—ED. Letters from the following chapters are missing: Nu (1) Alpha Gamma (1) Alpha Pi (1) Pi (1) Alpha Delta (1) Alpha Upsilon (1) Chi (1) Alpha Epsilon (2) Alpha Psi (2) Alpha Beta (1) Alpha Omicron (1) Beta Iota (1) Beta Theta (1).

ALPHA

PLEDGE: Marjorie Gibson, Cambridge, Ohio.

Our very informal tea at homecoming was quite a success. There were over thirty Alpha girls in attendance and one of our happiest surprises was that our own Rene Sebring Smith was here for the day, having stopped off on her way from the National Panhellenic Convention. We waited and looked all day for Mrs. Coleman, Mrs. Malott, and Mrs. Pease, and, having fixed several tires and braving the rain, they finally arrived. It was a happy occasion having so many grand people here and all on one day.

And we did have that pledge dance which we mentioned in the last LAMP letter. It was fun—quite informal, and we are so proud of those pledges! Fifteen out of eighteen made their grades!

December 11, 12, and 13, Mrs. Cooks paid us a visit. We were so happy to have her here, and her suggestions have been so helpful. We hope that she will come again soon.

Our annual Christmas party was on December 17, at the home of Jane Hayden, one of our pledges. We were highly entertained by the singing of new pledge songs and they were really very clever. We hope to see them in print some day.

On January 8, the actives were entertained by the pledges with a formal dinner at Scott Manor.

Second semester rushing starts February 5. The period is very short, and no extensive rushing is done at this time.

We are surely working hard to do one thing, and that is to raise our scholarship rating. Examinations are over now and we are anxiously awaiting the results.

March 30

PLEDGES: Joyce Oskins, Gettysburg, Ohio; Dorothy Duncan, Lisbon, Ohio; Mary K. Doyle, Washington C. H., Ohio; Neva Bake, College Corner, Ohio; Elaine Braun, Marie Braun, Hamilton, Ohio.

INITIATES: Ruth Eichelbarger, Detroit, Michigan; Eleanor Dame, Elyria, Ohio; and Anne Blanche Welsh, Hamilton, Ohio.

A dinner party was held in their honor at Scott Manor on the night of their initiation.

Second semester rushing proved most successful for Alpha Chapter this year as we pledged six darling girls. Rushing at this time was not organized on as large a basis as at the beginning of the year because so few girls become eligible for pledging at midyear.

Shortly after formal pledging we arranged a bridge-tea in their honor. The party was held at an attractive tearoom here in Oxford and there were ten tables in all. We all enjoyed it so much, we hope we can have another in the near future.

The chapter recently voted to award rings to the active and pledge who maintain the highest average throughout the grade period. The ring to be given to the active will bear the Delta Zeta crest, while the one to be given to the winning pledge will have the letters D Z engraved upon its face.

Alpha Chapter was recently honored by the visit of one of its founders, Mrs. Alpha Lloyd Hayes.

The spring formal is the next big item in our list of activities and we are looking forward to it with great gusto. We are anticipating the return of many of our alumnæ for this occasion.

DOROTHY MARTIN, President

BETA

INITIATES: Eleanor Clarkson, '34, Miriam Conrad, '34, Marguerite Heydweiller, Grad., Harriet Metcalfe, '33, and Marion Sisk, '33. Eleanor Clarkson is a member of the Women's Debate Squad, and Doryce Scudder, '32, Elma Oster, '32, Mary McLouth, '33, and Margaret Pedersen, '34, are members of the rifle team.

The period since the last letter to THE LAMP has been a most exciting time for the Betas. Just before Thanksgiving, we were eating Sunday dinner when a loud crash upstairs sent us all searching for the source. It was fire on the second floor! Smoke, flames, fire engines, aid from nearby fraternities, and finally the fire extinguished, and one room entirely burned, complete the story. Much credit is due Margaret Pedersen, '34, for assistance in controlling the fire.

Since then, the room has been repaired in a manner which fills us with pride. In addition to the new room, we have new curtains in the living room. These are the gift of our chaperon, Mrs. Ranger.

We were so far recovered by Christmas that we were able to hold a party at which several useful gifts were donated to the house. Since Christmas vacation we have had several rushing parties and an unusually successful faculty tea. This week we entertained Miss Fitch, our dean of women, at dinner. Thus endeth the story, and the moral is, don't let your house catch on fire!

March 30

INITIATES: Hazel Smith, '35, Leona Westland, '32, and Meda Young, '35.

The date for the last lamp letter of the year once more approaches, and summer vacation is just around the corner. Before then, we plan to give a student tea and a formal dance which we hope will be as successful as in past years.

Since the last letter, several honors have come our way. Esther Nordin, '34, was elected to the Cornell Countryman board; Christine Schildwaster, '32, and Doryce Scudder, '32, were elected to active membership in dramatic club. Doryce Scudder, '32, was chosen chairman of the senior cap and gown committee. Elberta Frees, '32, became a member of the senior announcement committee. Mrs. Mary Dennis, '32, was elected to Pi Kappa Phi, honorary fraternity.

Since the beginning of the term, we have been rushing very intensively at a series of parties and dinners. One party in particular was outstanding. It was given on February 29, and invitations invited rushees to an Old Maid's Mass Meeting. There assembled some thirty old maids, all looking the part with a vengeance. Entertainment was appropriate to the occasion. Dorothee Dix gave sage advice to the lovelorn over the fish bowl. Each worthy maiden, blindfolded, attempted to pin the ring upon the man's finger with varying success. The ladies made samplers, the best of which obtained a prize. There was a very unmaidenly scramble for the lurking thimble. Last but not least, the cake when cut revealed the proverbial penny, the ring, the thimble, and a basketball to the eyes of the lucky possessor. Everyone enjoyed the evening very much.

We have entertained members of the faculty at dinner from time to time, and made weekly calls upon our patronesses.

Initiation on March 12 was very successful, as was the banquet that evening. We were happy to have with us for the occasion Mrs. Von Engeln, '06.

GAMMA

PLEDGES: Stella Kaul, Pauline Ecklund, Clarice Berg, Elsie Nelson, Winnifred Hart, Lois Swanstrom, La Vere Knutson, Audrey Knox, and Margaret Wiemark.

HONORS: Irene Carrier, Pi Lambda Theta, Eta Sigma Upsilon, board of publications; Maxine Kaiser, Mortar Board; Bernice King, president of Sigma Alpha Iota; Bernadine Courtney, graduated magna cum laude; Mildred Welander, Eta Sigma Upsilon; Pauline Wendt, graduated with distinction; Clarice Berg, Tau Sigma Delta and Alpha Alpha Gamma, honorary architectural sorority.

GROUP HONORS: Debate Trophy for defeating winners of interfraternity debate; trophy for first prize on home coming float; third place in homecoming button sale.

Initiation was held at midnight for Charlotte Thompson and Kathleen Walsh.

With the opening of college after the Christmas holidays we began a week of formal rushing. The parties during the week included a snowball tea, an old fashioned tea, a southern dinner, a doll-house dinner, and the traditional rose dinner. Pledging took place at the chapter house. After pledging a dinner was given in honor of the new pledges and they were then taken to the "Pledge Nite Review" at the Minnesota Theater given by the interfraternity council.

Specialty song and dance acts comprised the entertainment for our annual "Step-Out" given on Friday, January 15, at the Nicollet Hotel. Mary Swanson, who was in charge of the general arrangements, tells us that it was financially a success with about 350 couples in attendance.

On Tuesday, January 26, a dinner was given at the chapter house in honor of Miss Ann Dudley Blitz, the dean of women.

We are planning a formal dance to be given at the chapter house on February 27 in honor of the pledges.

We have found that the use of definite hours of study maintained for all girls with supervision by one member each hour is helping with our scholarship problem.

As a good-by word, we are working on scholarship and activities, and hope to have many favorable results for next time.

INITIATES: Stella Kaul, Elsie Nelson, Lois Swanstrom, Clarice Berg, La Vere Knutson, and Margaret Wiemark.

This year the National Biennial Convention of the Y.W.C.A. is to be held in Minneapolis May 5-11. We are extending a cordial invitation to all Delta Zetas who are interested in the Y.W. to attend this convention. We hope to see many of you here at our chapter house.

Initiation services were held at six o'clock Sunday morning, March 6, 1932, for six girls. After the initiation service a formal breakfast was given in their honor. Fall quarter we were pleased to see our scholastic average raised to sixth place on our campus. We are starting our spring quarter rushing on March 29 with a garden party tea, which will be followed by a Daffodil, Monte Carlo, and April Fool dinner the rest of the week.

We are planning our spring formal for the latter part of May. On April 14 we are giving a tea at the chapter house in honor of our patrons and patronesses and later in the month we are planning to give a supper for the faculty members.

DELTA

Just as I was sitting down to write this note, the chair was snatched from beneath me; so I decided to stand and write. But, no,—in a sudden the desk was jerked right out of sight. What was I to do? I sat on the floor and lo! here came a trunk right toward me. Despair mingled with wrath entered my soul. I was on the verge of tears. Now, what had happened! I was surrounded in darkness. The electricity must have been turned off; and I knew there could be no letter without light. THE LAMP would be depending on that light. I dared not give up. Out into the open, I bravely walked; I sat upon the curb, and there in my most pleasing manner wrote:

Dear Delta Zetas,

We are in a terrible muss—just in the process of moving into our beautiful new Georgian colonial house. How we wish it possible for you to see it. Remember, you are invited to visit us in our new home any time.

March 30

INITIATES: Marion Hoar, Sedoris, Illinois; Alice Southworth, Plymouth, Indiana; Winifred Medcalf, Lamar, Indiana; Elizabeth Harrington, Springfield, Illinois; Elta Forkel, Oak Park, Illinois; Mary K. Hampton, Darlington, Indiana; Mary Hoffman, Loogootee, Indiana; Frances Thomas, Leesburg, Indiana; Mildred Stutz, Arcanum, Ohio; Dorothy Yokel, Evansville, Indiana.

Since the last letter for THE LAMP several events have taken place in Delta Chapter and new honors have been won.

The biggest event of the last two months was our open-house on February 20. Most of you probably think we will never stop talking about our new house; but if you'll just try one, you will realize how we feel. The entire university and many townspeople were invited to open-house. We were very proud to have Mrs. Pease here as a representative of national council.

On March 5 we held our initiation and after initiation we had a banquet in honor of the initiates.

Delta Zeta has had her share in second semester honors. Audrie Moore was elected vice-president of Y.W.C.A. Elta Forkel has been initiated into Duzur Du, a dramatic fraternity, and Alpha Lambda Delta. Mary Frances Litten has been pledged to Duzur Du and has been on the debate team. Kathryn Richards was chairman of the ping-pong tournament which had more than one hundred participants. Mary Elizabeth Herr and Mary Alice Tyre have been pledged to Mu Phi Epsilon. Mary Sargent was initiated into Theta Sigma Phi.

JUNE BARNES, Editor

EDNA HIBBARD, President

EPSILON

INITIATES: Dorothy Baird, '33, Clinton; Margaret Ewing, '33, Clinton; Lelah Hiday, '34, McCordsville; Beulah Young, P.G., Ellettsville.

HONORS: Aurora Yetta, '32, president of Epsilon, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa; Charlotte Hodell, '32, was awarded the $50 prize offered for the Jordan River Revue manuscript, the campus production in the spring; Charlotte Hodell, '32, Virginia Freed, '33, Lelah Hiday, '34, made the rifle team; the captain of the team is Virginia Freed, '33; Charlotte Hodell, '32, was chosen for the art staff of the Arbutus, the Indiana yearbook.

On October 31 Epsilon held its fall initiation. Everyone knows what a beautiful ceremony the four above mentioned initiates were guided through. Following this we held our formal dinner in their honor. It was in every respect a Delta Zeta dinner—green glassware, rose-colored candles in green holders, and numerous roses.

On November 9 the last signature was put to the affiliation papers of Dorothy Neptune, '32, of Alpha Nu. Epsilon welcomes this math major.

What a pajama birthday party three of our seniors threw. Formal attire was requested, but since it was not formal time on the campus, the guests wore anything but street clothes. We had to "sing for our suppers," figuratively speaking.

On December 17 the annual Christmas exchange was held. All of our town alumnae were invited. At this party the actives gave the stunt. It was a dramatization of the poem: "The Night Before Christmas."

According to an old Epsilon custom the pledges gave a dinner party for the actives.

Helen Trusler, president of the pledges, was in charge. The decorations were carried out in sorority colors. The fraternities on the campus were well represented. After dinner, at which our housemother, Mrs. Hill, was chaperon, we danced and played cards. It was an enjoyable evening for everyone because the usual thing is a show or a dance and then to a sandwich shoppe.

We are proud to say that one-half of our house was invited to the Matrix Table Banquet. This is the annual dinner given by Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary journalistic sorority, for all senior women and outstanding girls on the campus.

Our future is made brighter by the thoughts of our formal dance to be held in February for no one has forgotten the spectacular Evening-in-Paris dance of last year. We shall be able to give you the details next time!

March 30

INITIATES: Helen Trusler, '35, Connersville; Charlotte Thompson, '35, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Avel Brookbank, '35, Connersville; Marion Hahn, '35, Wakarusa; Anna Mary Nicholas, '35, Lafayette; Maxine Norton, '35, Crown Point.

HONORS: Charlotte Thompson, '35, was one of 25 recognized by Mortar Board for her straight A record. She was also pledged to Alpha Lambda Delta. Charlotte Hodell, '32, has been given a lead in the campus production, Jordan River Revue. Ann Crisman, '34, was chosen for the sophomore basketball team. Charlotte Thompson, '35, was chosen for freshman basketball team.

On February 11 our chapter entertained several rushees at a pajama party. The entertainment and refreshments were planned by our freshmen. The former consisted of dancing, singing our Delta Zeta songs, and a timely serenade. The refreshments, buttered popcorn and juicy apples, were enjoyed in front of our cheery fireplace.

Our winter formal was given on February 27. Many alumnæ and friends helped to make this affair more enjoyable. Our library was transformed into a garden. The small pond surrounded by spring flowers was made more effective by a trellis also covered with flowers, but these were not so real. From above a colored light shed its ray on this nook which would add to any garden, even an indoor one. At the entrance of every room was a flower-covered trellis. The rooms that were arranged for dancing were lighted by Japanese lanterns. The effect of a garden dance was completed by the music of the "Brown Buddies," a syncopating colored band.

On Sunday, February 28, we were privileged to invite our friends in for dinner.

Epsilon initiated the six girls mentioned on March 17. Mrs. Lois Cummings and Mrs.

Pansy Batman, two of our town alumnæ, were present. The ceremony was followed by a formal banquet in honor of the new initiates. In addition to Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Batman, Mrs. Margaret Legge, Mrs. Mary B. Baker, and Mrs. Frances Ellis were present.

We may be a group of college women, but we certainly did enjoy an Easter Egg Hunt on March 27. A particular table decided to give the rest of the house some fun on Easter morning. I think they enjoyed hiding the eggs as much, if not more, as the rest enjoyed finding them.

ZETA

PLEDGES: Theone Frey, Lincoln; Betty Jacobsen, Broken Bow; Thelma Sterkle, Lincoln; Gladys Zutter, Hebron; Dorothy Cathers, Omaha.

INITIATES: Ellen Entenman, Stanton; Berneice Preston, Lyons; Dorothy Luschinger, Lincoln.

We have just completed our first semester with the last two weeks devoted to cram sessions relieved by midnight feeds and black coffee. We all hope to come out a few jumps ahead of the pros. And now with this ordeal in the background, we are looking forward to a very pleasant visit from our province director, Miss Edna Wheatley.

Before initiation our pledges entertained the actives with a "Snow Party." It was declared to have been the best party in the last four years. We can but say that much. The house was decorated with snow and icicles and gave a truly "cold" appearance. Added to this was the zest of throwing snowballs filled with confetti.

The next day we initiated three very lovely girls and entertained them with a formal dinner.

Then came our Christmas exchange party at which we gave gifts individually chosen. We received many lovely gifts for our house and all were sincerely appreciated.

Our girls are now looking forward to our annual rose dinner-dance held at the house each spring.

PLEDGES: Dorothy Cathers, Omaha; Theone Frey, Lincoln.

INITIATES: Mildred Jacobsen, Broken Bow; Thelma Sterkle, Lincoln; Gladys Zutter, Hebron.

HONORS: Lead in University Players, Mae Ekstrand; Iota Sigma Pi, Lucille Mills; president Gamma Epsilon Pi, vice-president Phi Chi Theta, treasurer Girls' Commercial Club, secretary-treasurer Bizad Executive Board, Maxine Wullbrandt; highest recognition in architectural drawings, Blanch Bartos; Pi Lambda Theta, Gladys Zutter; swimming club, Thelma Sterkle; vespers choir, Theone Frey; Y.W.C.A. cabinet, Evelyn O'Connor.

The alumna chapter and actives and pledges met on Founders' Day at the chapter house for a tea. The pledges entertained with several clever skits, the alumnae provided musical entertainment. We met again when Miss Edna Wheatley, our province director, spent a week-end with us. We profited much from our brief meetings and wish to thank Miss Wheatley for her kind attention, and extend her an open invitation from Zeta Chapter.

We are very proud of our initiates and we have just cause. They are very active both in the chapter and on the campus. We are expecting much and are sure we shall not be disappointed.

With the last quarter of our school year well begun, we are planning a more profitable year for 1932-33. We are beginning our program by sending letters to our alumnae who are out in the state. We are depending on you most of all, so rally round and give us a helping hand. We need it in these days and will appreciate it more now than ever.

ETA

We are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the coming semester. Since I last wrote we have had very few social activities but we have done some rushing and we expect to do more next semester. Besides this we will have our formal.

One week-end we entertained five girls from Kansas City, Missouri. They were all lovely girls and we are looking forward to seeing them again.

A professor here at Baker composed a musical comedy which was presented at the college. Marjorie Long, a senior in our group, had one of the leading rôles. Of the six chorus girls, three of them were Delta Zetas—Zella Hayward, Maxine Smith, and Hester Hale.

Our annual Christmas party for our patronesses was given the evening before vacation. Zella Hayward, Maxine Smith, Genevieve Watson, and Marjorie Long prepared the program.

I must mention the fact that we have the loveliest and most congenial group of patronesses possible. They presented us recently with a rug for our music room. Some one must have been in on the secret because it had been suggested to have an old suite of furniture refinished and upholstered. The actives and pledges did this as a Christmas gift to the house. We are now especially proud of our music room.

Other friends of the Delta Zetas were kind to us. Mrs. Rounsavell, our hostess, gave us a Spanish scarf for our piano and our practical cook, Mrs. Waring, gave us some much needed tea cups.

Dorothy Canham, Marcial Burroughs, and Maxine Smith play on the basketball team. Recently a Republican Club was established on the campus. Hester Hale was elected secretary and many of the Delta Zeta girls take a real interest in national politics.

March 30

INITIATES: Helen Hartman, Kansas City, Missouri; Laurine Long and Elizabeth Cox, Overbrook, Kansas; Iva Dorothy Gillson, Baldwin City, Kansas.

HONORS: Marcial Burroughs, secretary of Y.W.C.A.

Eta Chapter is proud to announce that we have initiated all of the girls who we pledged last fall. Some of them who were upper-classmen were initiated earlier in the year.

Our informal party was given on St. Patrick's Day. We decorated very simply with large shamrocks but it was effective. The orchestra was confined in a little white picket fence. Sandwiches, cookies, and candies with punch were all decorated with shamrocks.

The last two months have been full of hard work and quite a few pleasures. The musical comedy, Kitchen Lizzie, was taken to Chanute, Kansas, for performance. Marjorie Long, a senior, had one of the leading rôles and three others of our girls were in the chorus.

THETA

PLEDGES: Bernardine Weaver and Mary Kephart.

Everyone is back again at work after a big vacation and a happy Christmas. After all, it's good to get back at work again although we all think it would be fun to have nothing to do but play.

The winter quarter is the shortest here and that means that we must all work harder to get through on time, and professors go around with worried looks wondering if they are going to be able to teach us all they must in so short a time. The social events are few and far between.

A week ago Monday night we entertained Columbus Alumnae Chapter at dinner at the house. Afterward they held their meeting with us. Again we had the pleasure of entertaining our national founder, Mrs. Galbraith. Miss Amanda Thomas, national vice-president of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary fraternity for women in journalism, was also with us.

Wednesday afternoon and evening, February 3, our Mothers' Club is giving a benefit bridge. We are going to help by selling candy and cake to the patrons.

The social event to which we are all looking forward is our formal dinner-dance, February 13. It will be given in a hotel down town, and we are relying on the good judgment of our social chairman, Marian Morris, to give us the best formal we have ever had.

Several of the girls have been trying out for parts in the various dramatic organizations on the campus. Not all for acting parts either. Many are interested in directing and make-up work. Anne Stone was elected to Chi Delta Phi, women's honorary literary society, Doris Baughman to Scholaris.

March 30

PLEDGES: Avis Cole, Columbus; June Fishel, Elyria; Garnet Nagel, Columbus; Martha Johnson, Columbus.

Spring vacation is now a thing of the past at Ohio State, finals are over, grades have been handed out, and school began again today with a bang. We are starting the new year out with a new staff of officers, and lots of good intentions and new ideas. Bigger and better Delta Zeta in nineteen thirty-two and three, say we.

Under the direction of our clever and efficient social committee we enjoyed one of the most successful formal dinner-dances ever given by Theta Chapter. This event took place the day before St. Valentine's Day, and on the following Friday our Mothers' Club gave a bridge party, the proceeds of which they are going to use to get some piece of furniture for the chapter house. On the last Friday in winter quarter our pledge chapter sponsored a lecture, for the benefit of Delta Zeta. It was given in the University Chapel and tickets were sold to the students. The lecturer was Mr. C. Ray Hansen, a Chicago attorney and specialist in the problems of gangland. Mr. Hansen has been intimately associated with attempts on the part of the Chicago Bar Association to clear up the graft in Chicago, and some of his experiences have been quite thrilling. So you can imagine the stir that was created in the chapter when we received a warning note advising us not to allow Mr. Hansen to speak in Columbus. It didn't take us long to get down to the police station with the note. They gave us two plainclothesmen to stand around and see that things went right. But I rather think that secretly they were laughing at us. At any rate nothing happened, and we have come to regard the thing in the light of a practical joke; but we had fun out of it while it lasted.

Our president, Grace Webster, announced her marriage at the end of last quarter. This is the first time our chapter circle has been broken by one of our officers marrying and moving away and naturally it made us a little sad, but we offer her our sincere congratulations and good wishes.

This is the last letter before the convention in Kentucky. We of Theta hope to be well represented there and know that we will enjoy a closer friendship with you there.

IOTA

PLEDGES: Phoebe Pfeiffer, Fayette, Iowa.

Iota is coming sliding in at the last possible moment this time! The editor and everyone else has been lost in a deluge of semester examinations and are just coming up for air.

The (shall we say reconstruction?) has hit Iowa City. For a week we didn't have a bank in town. It has become quite unusual to find any one who isn't broke these days. Since everyone is in the same boat it has almost become a game. One goes to the Union and stares out the windows at the river for amusement on afternoons now instead of going into Reich's and consuming sundaes. I am sure by the end of the year people will be referring to Iowa as the university where all of the girls have such sylph-like figures.

With the end of the semester we are losing Margarita Williams, who has so covered herself with glory in the time she has been with us. The disgusting thing about having such smart girls is that they graduate at midyear on honor credits. Despite the fact that positions are supposed to be at a premium, "Muggs" had three different ones offered her and has chosen to do social work in St. Louis.

One of our girls, Helen Blake, was chosen among the fifteen most beautiful girls at Iowa, and we have high hopes of having her presented at the junior prom as one of the six most lovely.

Iowa may not be a hunting state but two of our members, Eudora Roth and Bernice Burns, have been tripping over to the field-house every Tuesday and Thursday nights for rifle practice. They have high aspirations of making the team. Eudora competed in a match last week and shot a ninety-nine.

Laura Koop, a junior, has been elected to Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism sorority.

Roweta Strickland, pledge, was elected secretary of the junior commerce class.

We have been going out for sports in an intramural way and at last account we were third in ranking. We have deck-tennis, swimming, baseball, and other spring sports yet to compete in.

Charlotte Fiske is graduating from medicine this year. With the reputation of the Iowa medical school for sheer difficulty, we are proud to have a mere girl graduate with honors.

March 30

INITIATES: Eleanor Ford, Mary Golden Griffith, Pheobe Pheiffer, Viola Neuman.

Despite the fact that the almanac has registered the arrival of spring, there is much shivering on the Iowa campus as coeds endeavor to sport Easter outfits despite the chilly March winds.

Five days were given the students last week in which to rest up for the final spurt of this little game they call acquiring a college education. In the Iota Chapter it is a matter of acquiring a degree for several of our girls. Ten are receiving degrees in June, we are sorry to lose them, they are sorry to go. Iowa is lovely in spring with the Iowa River giving an Oxonian air to the campus as it lolls through decked with collegian manned canoes. It is somehow very sad to walk up on the platform for a diploma and realize that it means good-by to all that loveliness.

Vivian Kuhl was re-elected president at our last meeting. Vivian is winning a place for herself on the campus as well. I hope the new historian will be able to report that Vivian is treasurer of Y.W.C.A. She and Eleanor Shaw, our retiring vice-president, are giving a cello and piano recital late in April.

Pheobe Pheiffer, our new historian, is also scribe for Phi Gamma Nu, a commerce sorority on the campus.

Delta Zeta entertained themselves and their best boy friends at a very lovely silver and blue formal dance on March 19. A very good campus orchestra played. The decorations were modern screens with Delta Zeta motifs and the girls wore spring formals and it was all very festive. Many of our alumnae were with us.

Delta Zeta is third in intramural ranking now. Ping-pong is our latest sport. You may see us down at the Union batting a little white ball around for the glory of the chapter almost any time these days.

Your historian is signing off to take her place among the lines of would-be workers for next year. She has enjoyed writing to you and will for all that life time subscription watch THE LAMP.

KAPPA

(First page missing.—Ed.)

We are expecting bigger and better things in the future. We also have several girls working on the Daily staff. Elizabeth Kaynor, '33, has the position of copy reader. Two other girls working hard on the Daily are Eleanor Banta, '32, and Elizabeth Harrington, '34.

Two juniors working on the junior prom are Lucile Keeney, who is working on the ticket committee, and Mary Ellen Mc-Gonagle, who is chairman of the refreshment committee. Seems as though it should be a good junior prom this year. Dorothy Jones ushered for the John McCormack concert, sponsored by the Associated Women Students. Only those selling the most tickets are chosen to usher. Catherine Coulon, '33, was women's co-manager for one of the candidates for the office of vice-president of the Associated Students of the University of Washington in the recent election. Consequently everyone has been very enthusiastic about politics during the last few weeks. Mildred Kravik, '34, made a part in the all university play this quarter. They are putting on Electra this year. Also Betty Audley, '35, is in the dance drama. Mary Elizabeth Kable, '35, was initiated into Atilier, architecture professional.

We are planning several exchange dinners this quarter. Also we are planning a Delta Zeta no-host party to be given in the form of a formal dinner-dance at the Washington Athletic Club, February 26.

Toward the end of last quarter we had a charming visit, really inspection, although it did not seem at all like an inspection should, from Elizabeth Sutton, our province director. She is such a heap of fun.

I really do not know what we would do without our Mothers' Club. While we were home for Christmas vacation they had new curtains made and the furniture recovered in the sunroom. This week they are giving a theater party, the proceeds to go for something new for the house. I believe they are planning to get a new rug for our living room.

March 30

PLEDGES: Frances Grimsdell, Eugenie Johnson, Virginia Pearce, Bernice Stoddard, Winifred Seifert.

INITIATES: Lelabell Anderson, Adelaide Currie, Margaret Moore.

Our retiring president is graduating, but not without honors. Indeed we shall miss Alice Horstman greatly. She made Phi Beta Kappa this quarter. She was also initiated into Gamma Epsilon Pi, national business administration women's honorary, so it need not be added that she was on the honor roll all the time she was in the university. Moreover, Alice has been prominent in activities. She made Gamma Alpha Chi, national women's advertising honorary, was vice-president of the business administration women's vocational club, was manager of the women's rifle team, belongs to W.A.A. and the women's "W" club, besides holding many prominent positions on committees.

We will also miss our other graduating seniors, Pauline Daggett, Katharine Middleton, Eleanor Banta, Helen Drewfs, and Helen Warde, all of whom have done a great deal to make Delta Zeta prominent on this campus, and who are dear to us who are left to carry on without their guidance.

Other girls in the chapter have been doing things in activities, as well. Verna Jensen is president of the Northwest Region, Lutheran Student Association of America, and was also elected national secretary at their national convention. She is president of the Scandinavian Club this year. We are proud of Kay Coulon, who is chairman of the Junior Girl's Vodvil. Winifred Seifert made the chorus and Mildred Kravik and Mary Elizabeth Kable are working on the settings. Carolyn Cooch was initiated into Attie Players, women's dramatic club, and Lucile Keeney, Lelabell Anderson, Jean McCord, and Margaret Hooper were pledged this quarter. Betty Audley made Orchesis, national dance honorary. The girls of whom we are most proud are Constance Bailey, Marjorie Ferrier, and Alice Horstman, who were on the university honor roll.

Our Mothers' Club has adopted a new system for its meetings. Instead of their former monthly meeting at the chapter house, the mothers are now having two meetings a month at the home of one of the members and paying fifty cents for their lunch. They are buying new furnishings for the chapter house from any profits they make. At present they are working toward a new rug for our living room. It takes the mothers to really look after us.

LAMBDA

PLEDGES: Ferne Glover, Burr Oak Kansas; Leona Tibbetts, Westmoreland.

We've been working pretty hard in Lambda all fall. One important activity was to make some money. We had a rummage sale December 19, and made $25. On January 11 we gave a benefit bridge. It was wonderfully well attended for both afternoon and evening, and we cleared $50. That's a big help. Yes?

We all went out for volleyball and four of us made the class teams. Mildred Beil and Mildred Harman, the senior team; Helen Hoffman, the junior team; and Catharine Colver, the freshman team.

The very nicest news of all is about our new Delta Zeta Circle just organized by Lambda mothers and patronesses in Manhattan. Their aim is to give us hearty and much needed moral support. They plan to meet once a month and their first project is the piecing of a quilt which they will sell for us.

Pauline Andrews, from Chicago, is our contestant in the beauty contest of all sororities. We believe we have a grand chance of taking first prize.

We are planning an informal house party

February 6, and are expecting to have a grand time. Then on Valentine Day, February 14, we are having our sweetheart dinner.

We are expecting a visit in the very near future from our much loved province director, Edna Wheatley. We always look forward to her visits.

INITIATES: Ferne Glover, Burr Oak; Catharine Colver, Manhattan; Esther Dorgan, Alta Vista; Leona Tibbetts, Westmoreland.

Lambda greets you with four proud new lamp bearers. After many weeks of anxious waiting, at last initiation came, and brought its thrilling moments, unforgettable always. Now we're casting hopeful glances high school-ward, and planning an exciting week-end slumber party for next year's Kansas State freshmen. We're having a few "special" ones as Sunday guests, too. It's always well to begin early, you know.

The Delta Zeta Circle is progressing nicely, and we're all interested in the quilt they've nearly finished for us.

We're all busier than the proverbial bee, and you should see the seniors with their serious expressions as they send out inquiries and applications tremble through interviews, and attend to those all important last semester duties.

That's about all except for the usual run of activities. We've played volleyball and basketball in intramurals. Ferne Glover made the senior basketball team. Pauline Andrews was a charming representative of Lambda at the beauty ball, February 12. Of course, the winner hasn't been announced yet. We gave a house dance February 6, and had a jolly, gay evening. We're looking forward to a spring formal before school is out.

MU

PLEDGES: Dorothy Brooks, Geraldine Brown, Grace Brasseur, Jane Dailey, Dorothy O'Rourke, Ruth Peppin, Joan Rice, Marjorie Sachs, Roberta Stanton.

The latter part of the fall semester was an interesting one for the girls of Mu Chapter. Perhaps the activity of which we were the most proud was the pledging of three attractive girls at the end of mid-semester rushing. Then, to ease our minds of the strain of coming finals we had a Christmas party. Presents with poems attached were exchanged and a literally hilarious time was enjoyed by everyone present. Christmas brought a welcome vacation from studies and then registration ushered in a new rushing season. Many novel ideas were employed as motifs for formal dinners given every night during the week. Our efforts in this direction were crowned with success when we pledged six adorable girls.

Although this semester is still in its infancy Mu Chapter is looking forward to many interesting events. First an informal dance will be held in honor of our new pledges of February 27. Then, sometime in the middle of March the chapter will initiate four girls: Enid Burgess, Donna Erbes, Dorothea Teebay, and Geraldine Welch. We are all anxious for the ceremony which will make these girls truly our sisters. Right now, in tune with the rest of the campus we are anticipating the Big "C" Sirkus, an event which comes every four years, on, as you may have suspected, leap year. Each fraternity and sorority prepares a float for the grand parade. At the present moment the main topic of conversation at breakfast, lunch or dinner is, "Who has an idea for the float?" The idea hasn't been definitely decided upon yet, but we trust that the Dee Zee's contribution to the parade will "do the house proud."

Our chapter house has two new possessions of which we are justly proud. One is a beautiful coffee table, a brass tray supported by a teakwood stand; the other is a lovely green brocade chair with a mahogany end table to be its boon companion. Our Mothers' Club gave all three of these pieces to the house. And so with our chests up and our perfect pledges right behind we're plunging into a new term. May it be a successful one!

March 30

INITIATES: Enid Burgess, '35; Donna Erbes, '34; Dorothea Teebay, '33; Geraldine Welsh, '35.

HONORS: Aileen Dennis was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society, Susan Powell was made general sub-chairman for the junior class informal, and Elizabeth Archer was initiated into Esperam, sophomore journalistic honor society.

The girls of Mu Chapter are still talking about the Big "C" Sirkus, an event which takes place on the University of California campus every four years, on leap year. The Sirkus, which was held on March 1, was preceded by a parade in which all the campus fraternities and sororities entered floats. We were tremendously proud to receive first honorable mention for the prettiest float.

Our social calendar has been full of interesting events this semester. The first, and perhaps the most outstanding, was an informal pledge dance held on February 26. The dance was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present, for everything, the music, the floor, the refreshments and the congeniality of the crowd, combined to make it very nearly perfect. On March 13 the initiation ceremonies and banquet were held at the chapter house, and on the following Sunday, March 20, a fathers' dinner was given which was enthusiastically acclaimed by all fathers able to be present. Easter Sunday was celebrated by an egg hunt and breakfast at the chapter house, and we are looking forward to our senior banquet to close a successful round of social activities.

Under the ways and means committee a rummage sale was held on March 9. Both alumnae and mothers co-operated wonderfully and the sale was a tremendous success. The girls are now planning a benefit bridge party which, it is hoped, will be equally successful.

The alumnae of Mu Chapter recently presented the house with a beautiful wrought iron candelabra to stand in the hall. It is an appropriate and lovely ornament for the house. On the whole we certainly feel that the semester has been an outstanding one, and, though looking forward to final examinations with a certain amount of trepidation, we are confident that it will end happily.

NU

PLEDGES: Helen Christine Allen, Ottawa, Illinois; Grace Florence Nelson, Chicago, Illinois.

INITIATES: Jeannette Shearer, Knoxville, Illinois; Margaret Rossi, Riverside, Illinois; Mildred Caulkins, Abingdon, Illinois.

There are three brand new burnished gold Lamps gleaming in Nu of Delta Zeta, since our chapter last greeted you. The initiation, was followed by a party, given at the home of Mrs. Clara H. Barrow.

The following week we pledged Grace Nelson and Helen Allen. We feel quite proud to have three new initiates and two pledges, in view of the fact that Knox is a comparatively small school, and because the deferred pledging system is in effect here. This means that we cannot pledge freshmen, although the field is open for rushing second semester, and as that time is not far away, we are making big plans for the "grand rush."

One of our senior girls, Eva Taylor, has been extremely ill since the first week of Christmas vacation. This is particularly unfortunate for Eva as she was to graduate at the end of this semester. However, she is improving quite rapidly, and we are all hoping to see her back real soon.

Our chapter president, Harriett Davidson, is winning many laurels on Knox campus for her splendid acting in the dramatic productions given by the local chapter of Theta Alpha Phi. She has appeared in two this year, and has had difficult rôles, both of which were handled very competently.

Mrs. Drew, our province director, visited us for several days. We surely enjoyed every minute of her stay with us. She left many helpful suggestions in regard to chapter activities and rushing, and we are looking forward to her return in the spring.

XI

The dark cloud of gloom which hangs over us, examinations, is slightly dispelled by the fact that we are planning a formal dance for February 4. Instead of the regular dinner-dance that we have given in former years, we are going to start the dance at about ten o'clock and serve a supper at about twelve. Isn't that something to look forward to while plugging through reams and reams of history and all that? Then, too, we are looking forward to initiating our pledges sometime in February.

We gave the pledges an informal dance in February. The chairman of the dance committee, planned a novel way of introducing the pledges. We had a large painter's palette made of cardboard with holes cut in it and covered with various colored cellophane to represent the daubs of paint. The pledges stood behind it, and as we sang a song about them, mentioning their names, they thrust their heads through the holes. Each of the pledges was presented with a corsage of roses.

On the Tuesday before Christmas, the alumnae chapter entertained the actives and pledges with a party. Presents were brought for Vest. The actives and pledges came dressed as small children. The true holiday spirit was supplied by not only having a Christmas tree but also a Santa who distributed toys among us children. The pledges entertained by reciting cleverly mixed nursery rhymes. Two ambitious pledges even sang a song which they had composed about Delta Zeta.

The following Tuesday, the pledges entertained the actives with a treasure hunt. What a time we all did have pursuing evasive clues all over Cincinnati and vicinity! The last clue led to the home of one of the pledges where the treasure was discovered. The rest of the evening was spent dancing.

A short time ago we enjoyed a visit from our province director, Mrs. Cooks. The evening before she left, we had an informal dinner. We all did like her so much and hope to see her again soon.

I almost forgot to mention that we have been having a good time playing basketball.

Each sorority on the campus has organized a team and are having intersorority matches. We have no physical education majors but are managing to get along pretty well in the games. Anyway, the matches supply a lot of amusement.

March 30

INITIATES: Virginia Barnum, Helen Ash, Mary Nichols.

We of Xi Chapter have been doing many interesting things since we last wrote you. On February 22, our traditional date for initiation, we initiated three girls at Marie-mont Inn. The service as usual was quite impressive. After the initiation, we had a banquet in honor of the new initiates. Each was presented with a corsage of roses. The program after the dinner was quite interesting, the idea of a Delta Zeta book was used in preparing the short talks. The new initiates each told their ideas of the pledge life. This represented the introduction of the book. Frances Van Arsdale spoke representing active life as the contents of the book. We were especially delighted to have Mrs. John W. Pease with us at the banquet. She spoke concerning the alumnae chapter or conclusion of the book. Afterwards, Mary Nichols was presented with a pearl guard for having the highest grades of the new initiates. Ruth Liebenrood was awarded a cup for having the highest grades among the actives for the past year.

Greek games, a competition between freshmen and sophomore women in athletics and games, took place last week. Many of our girls participated in the events. The legend of Demeter and Persephone was portrayed by each class, the sophomores being those who won. One of our actives, Jane Oehler, who was chairman of the sophomore committee for the myth was crowned with a laurel wreath in honor of the victory.

Recently we have all been quite thrilled by the announcement that Ruth Johnston has been chosen as one of the six campus beauties. By way of grades, Gertrude Winkelman, a pledge, was elected to Alpha Lambda Delta, honorary scholastic sorority. She also had the distinction of having the highest grades of any freshman in the Applied Arts college. Betty Heusch was pledged Mystic 13 which has just become Mortar Board.

Last week we had election of officers and this week we are going to have installation of officers.

RUTH LIEBENROOD, Editor
BETTY HEUSCH, President

OMICRON

PLEDGES: Lois Booth, Ruth Goodpasteur, Jane Lentz, Louise Lockner, Helen Milliron, Mae Rodgers, Jean Shrawder, Mildred Shue.

Life at Omicron has been very happy and interesting this year. The arrival of spring has brought with it a flurry of new officers. To keep quiet about all our exciting events would almost be impossible.

The pledges are entertaining the actives with a theater and dinner party on April 20.

We have planned initiation for April 24; initiation banquet April 30, and our spring formal, May 27, at Pittsburgh Field Club. So much of our fun together this year has been due to the clever and efficient planning of Vivian Crawford, a senior and social chairman.

In the last month we had ten girls nominated for major campus offices. To us it still remains a miracle how one group of girls could possibly be so interested and outstanding in extracurricular activities. Nevertheless, we are proud to announce that the following have been elected: Evelyn Mease, president of Y.W.C.A.; Mary Garber, president of Panhellenic; Virginia Negley, treasurer of W.A.A.; Elizabeth McKinney, vice-president senior class; Dorothy Hargrave, vice-president of junior class; Jean Hamilton, W.S.G.A. representative, Suzanne Philipps, treasurer of junior class, and Lois Booth, treasurer of sophomore class.

Jean Davis, president of Mortar Board and vice-president of W.S.G.A. is one of six nominees for May Queen. Our retiring chapter president, Sally Moore, led the military ball with Jack Lampe, a Phi Delta Theta, on March 11 at William Penn Hotel. Sally has been chosen as co-chairman for senior week, too.

On April 19, Y.W.C.A. is having a big membership party in the form of "A Day at Camp." On the general committee we find Betty Bartley, Jerry Shelton, and Evelyn Mease. On Friday, April 15, comes the exclusive Panhellenic Ball which will be held in Hotel Schenley. Mary Garber is on the Dance Committee. We all expect to be there dancing to the dreamy refrains of Penn State's Varsity Ten.

On the university first semester honor roll, we find Helen Kiester with a 2.8 average. She was just initiated into Phi Alpha Theta, honorary history fraternity.

Our retiring chapter treasurer, Virginia Whitfield, has in the past month acted as chairman of women's glee club nominating committee, a member of W.A.A. nominating committee, and is now a member of the Float Parade committee; the event will occur on May 6.

INITIATES: Jean Criss, Jean Hamilton, Jenny Richey, Dolores Weslager, Amy Long, and Jessie Vichestain.

Pittsburgh Delta Zetas are still talking about the lovely initiation ceremony and banquet.

Already the former pledges have proved to be a worthy part of us. They have enacted several skits of which one of the most clever was a take-off on Mourning Becomes Electra. Jean Criss plays the piano excellently, and she has composed a new Delta Zeta song which we would like to have in the next edition of the songbook. Jessie Vichestain and Jennie Ritchie as well as Mary Garber who is our representative to Panhellenic Council, were chosen among others as the best dressed Pitt co-eds. Amy Lang and Dolores Weslager are feature and women's editors, respectively, of the Owl, the Pitt yearbook. Don't you agree that we can be very proud of our new initiates?

Sally Moore, president of Omicron Chapter, will lead the annual military ball. It is one of the leading social events of the year. Evelyn Mease was a member of the junior prom committee, and Betty Cassel was co-chairman of the Yuletide Festival and dance. Speaking of Christmas, during vacation Cornelia Brierly had a party for her Delta Zeta sisters, and it was a riot! We played ping-pong, and solitaire, and Russian Bank, and even jackstones, and we ate much cake.

Omicron Chapter is not lacking in its activities. Jean Davis is president of Mortar Board, and she represented Pitt at the National Mortar Board convention. Mary Garber, who is secretary of Panhellenic Council, was a Pitt delegate to the national convention at St. Louis. Mary talked for days about the Delta Zeta national officers she met at St. Louis. When she told the rest of us how charming they were, we certainly did envy her. Jean Hamilton and "Betsy" McKinney attended the National Student Volunteer Convention at Rochester, New York. Betsy is also chairman of the Women's Council of Efficient Living, which is a part of W.S.G.A. She had complete charge of Women's Day, which is an annual happening of importance on campus.

PI

Since our last letter, actives and pledges alike have plunged into the routine of real work. Between times we have planned and enjoyed some pleasant social functions. Our fall party was the Harvest Moon Dance, which has become traditional with our chapter. The "moon was bright—the weather right" and a merry evening ensued. The decorations were in the lovely fall shades, with a large lighted moon as the central motive. Tiny golden crescents were suspended from the ceiling and the orchestra was enclosed by a low stone wall.

The chapter received many lovely gifts at the annual Christmas party, the pledges surprising us with beautiful luncheon sets.

Just now we are anticipating a visit from our province inspector, Mrs. Leslie Drew, whom we have come to know through correspondence. Each of us is looking forward to talking with her personally.

The week-end of February 13 and 14 is an important one for Pi Chapter. At that time we will celebrate our birthday with a dinner for actives, alumnae, and pledges. The pledges are working on a party which they give the guests at this time. The girls always take pride in making this party clever and entertaining and we are never disappointed in our expectation of something unusual.

March 5 will find Pi Chapter "seizing the hour" by giving an informal leap year party. Modernistic decorations will be used, and rumor has it that this dance will be one to remember. We have just started a series of teas, entertaining various campus groups. Last week the faculty women were our guests and a very delightful afternoon was spent in the Lida's Wood parlors.

RHO

PLEDGE: Marie Uhl.

Two of our girls have been sent to conventions as official representatives of the organization to which they belong. Margaret Duffy went to St. Louis as representative of Panhellenic and Mabel Northern was sent by the university to Boulder for the annual Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Press Convention. Two of our girls, Lucile Lyon and Eleanor Moffett, were recently initiated into Press Club for outstanding work in journalism.

In a recent popularity contest sponsored by the Clarion, our college newspaper, and a local theater, two of our girls placed among the first eight co-eds. We were the only sorority having two in the final vote. They are Margaret Duffy and Margaret Eagan. Margaret Eagan, a pledge, also placed as one of the six healthiest girls on the campus.

Lucille Sperry, one of our most talented members, was given a leading part in the Drama Club play The Ivory Door. She served as makeup mistress in a former production staged by the club, and was recently taken into Drama Club. She and Alice Randall both just made the national educational sorority, Kappa Delta Pi.

Grades for the last quarter showed a remarkable improvement and we hope to place high on the campus record.

Several weeks ago our pledges entertained all other pledges at a luncheon before the football game. At present they are devoting most of their spare time to practicing for the intramural basketball tournament to be held in the near future. From all indications we expect a lot of success for the team.

March 30

PLEDGE: Sally Marean.

We have at present five pledges whom we hope to initiate on April 16. Our initiation ceremony will be held at one of the girl's homes after which we will hold our banquet and dance at the Cherry Hills Country Club.

On February we gave a very successful dance at the Hillcrest Inn in Morrison, some twenty miles from Denver. Decorations were in keeping with Valentine's Day and music was furnished by Ken White and his Coloradoans. The affair was given in honor of our president, Ruth Walker Fraser, who was married last summer.

We have begun a series of midseason rushing of high school seniors. Two weeks ago we gave a lovely candlelight tea at the home of Margaret Duffy. About 100 girls attended. The next function of this kind will be a bridge luncheon at which special hostesses will preside.

Work on the Kynewisbok, our annual, will include on its staff several Delta Zetas. Mabel Northern is director of the Campusology section and Lucile Lyon will write satire. Emily Radford is on the business staff.

In a recent beauty contest sponsored by the Clarion, our school newspaper, Alice Randall was selected by Paul Lukas, screen star, as one of the prettiest girls in the university. Last year Alice placed as one of the six most attractive co-eds. Mr. Lorenz Ziegfeld was the judge.

SIGMA

PLEDGES: Mary Elise Babin, Alida Bonnette, Mabel Booth, Jane Conway, Louise Ethridge, Katherine Glynn, Lenore Grigsby, Alice Groves, Martha Harris, Livvie Lane Henry, Hermie Herring, Doris Lassalle, Catherine Leach, Elaine Lorio, Elaine Menville, Estelle McKey, Catherine Neil, Effie Ragsdale, Betty Lou Sneider, Evalyn Sheets, Mabel Skinner, Dee Tannehill, Winnefred Thomas, Eleanor Vignes, Lorraine Wallace, Clara Woods, Alma Zeagler.

HONORS: Jane Conway, one of our pledges, was elected president of the freshman co-ed body; Gretchen Ott pledged Sigma Alpha Iota, national music sorority; Gretchen was also chosen as accompanist to the Tigerette Chorus; Merle Alexander was named honorary maid of the Cadet Regiment, Evalyn Sheets was named maid of Company C, Alida Bonnette maid of Company E, and Jane Conway maid of Company F. In the annual popularity contest to be held soon, Joyce Allen is running for the most typical co-ed, Merle Alexander for the most collegiate, and Edna Gilfoil for the most popular co-ed. Doris Lassalle was elected recording secretary of the Gulf States Province of the Newman Club.

We have recently had a most enjoyable and helpful visit from our province inspector, Mrs. Gerald Cowan. We found Mrs. Cowan a very pleasant inspector and hope that she will make us another visit some time soon. Members of the active chapter received at a formal tea at the lodge in Mrs. Cowan's honor. The sorority colors were beautifully emphasized in the decorations of the spacious living room where guests were received by the officers of the chapter and presented to Mrs. Cowan. Those receiving and assisting wore dainty corsages of pink rosebuds and sweet peas. A large number of guests called and the affair was most enjoyable and beautiful.

Since Mrs. Cowan's visit we have been busy studying for final examinations. A study hour is being held every day from one to three for the pledges. An active is present and she sees that each pledge gets some studying done.

Speaking of elections, I must say that we are very happy over the results of the recent state election. Mr. O. K. Allen was elected Governor of Louisiana and Mr. E. A. Conway, Secretary of State. Joyce Allen and Jane Conway are members of Sigma Chapter. So you see why we've been so interested in politics!

There has been much discussion lately among university authorities on the subject of sorority houses. The houses are now on the old campus and plans are being made to buy them and move the groups into rooms in the new dormitories. No definite statement has been made, yet, but we are hoping we won't have to give up our lodge.

March 30

Sigma Chapter has taken an active part in campus activities this year. We have several quite outstanding students. Beth Simmons Sneider has been elected president of the co-ed student body for 1932-33. Beth was vice-president of the co-ed body this year. Louise Dugas and Dorothy Zeagler were initiated into Pi Sigma Alpha, national government fraternity. Gretchen Ott and Opal Glynn Williams have been quite active in music circles this year; both are members of Sigma Alpha Iota, national music sorority, and Gretchen is the Tigerette Chorus accompanist. Hilda Renard, who is very outstanding, was chosen as sponsor of the boxing team. Three of our pledges were made members of the Women's Athletic Association: Catherine Leech, Betty Lou Schneider, and Katherine Glynn. Schneider and Glynn made the freshman basketball team, while all three made the hockey and indoor baseball teams. Kathryn Meyer, sophomore, made the dancing team.

In the intersorority basketball tournament our team did fine. It didn't win first but pushed to the finals. The team is composed mostly of pledges and they are determined to win next year.

There will be an intersorority tennis match held soon, and we have several girls entering who will be hard to beat.

We are planning to initiate as soon as the permits arrive. In proportion to the number of pledges, Delta Zeta ranks first on the campus as to the number to be initiated. Thirteen pledges will soon be wearing lamps. And are they thrilled!

At our next meeting officers for the next year will be elected. We hope the new ones will be as good as the ones this year and of course they will be.

We are planning big for national convention. Sigma Chapter hopes to have a big representation. All of us want to go and I hope we all can!

TAU

PLEDGES: Mary Louise Burback, Jane Reineking, Meta Staeker, Virginia Volkert, Betty Church, and Phyllis Olson.

In activities, Tau Chapter has been very busy. In the annual intramural play contest we won third place with a prize of $25. We presented Voices, by Hortense Flexner; the two actresses were: Elanora Pfeffer and Marilla Eggler. We were all so happy to hear that Marjorie Meriam, who transferred to Oberlin College this year, was one of the few elected to the Oberlin Glee Club. Dorothy Shekey was initiated into Phi Beta, professional speech sorority. Marilla Eggler was made chairman of the prom supper committee for this year's junior prom, and was initiated into Wisconsin Players, the university dramatic organization. Two of our girls, Elanora Pfeffer and Marilla Eggler, were awarded Legislative Scholarships for the coming year (for out-of-state students).

Saturday, November 7, found the Badgers playing football with the Suckers at Champaign, Illinois. Many of our girls made the trip, to find that even more excitement was awaiting them than they had anticipated. Many thanks to the Alpha Beta girls who so royally entertained our girls who stayed with them.

Even though the weather didn't promote the Christmas spirit as it should, nevertheless, on Thursday, December 17, we all got together and had a Christmas party. It was one of those so-called, "slam parties," at which one gives and receives some small present with an original poem attached. Even Santa Claus was there, but only for a short time, as his over-large stomach soon gave way to reveal him as none other than Jane Cosner. My! How surprised we were!

University ruling and nearness to examinations puts social activities in the background, but Tau actives did manage a lovely little tea for all the pledges on Saturday, January 16.

Next semester brings with it the joys and tribulations of formal rushing, so already we have started planning (and hoping) to rejuvenate the interior of our rooms with such things as new drapes and pillows.

March 30

PLEDGES: Jane Lester, Betty Berenson, Marion Wallace, Doris Schouten, and Anita Pleuss.

INITIATES: Betty Church, Phyllis Olson, Jane Reineking, Lida Windemuth, Virginia Volkert, and Louise Zeratsky.

Honors: Betty Church recently elected vice-president of Y.W.C.A. Elanora Pfeffer, '33, appointed chairman of orientation week for next fall. Dorothy Shekey, '33, appointed chairman of finance committee for Y.W.C.A. Jane Reineking and Marjorie Olman initiated into Pythia Literary Society. Margaret Lutze on a committee making arrangements for summer school for workers in industry. Kathrine Snodgrass and Margaret Grether, members of a trio which has been broadcasting over WIBA, Madison, and WHA, university station.

Once again the time draws near for the chapter letter and incidentally a review of what our chapter has been doing. It is an excellent way to view the contributions made to Delta Zeta by her individual members. Tau Chapter has been active. Examinations over, we plunged into an intensive rushing campaign and despite "Calamity Jane" in the form of a depression were pleased to add five new pledges, increasing our fold to eighteen.

February brought little excitement except our annual second semester pledge party which was a big success. Betty Church was the chairman of a benefit bridge sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. participated in by all sororities on the campus.

Then came election of officers and we feel sure we have found an ideal leader in Margaret Lutze. Following that Courtesy Week ending with initiation on Palm Sunday and welcoming six new actives into our chapter. Again Betty Church is before the public—this time the chairman of an all-campus auction sale sponsored by Y.W.C.A. Professors and prominent campus women will take part.

We are utilizing our Sundays entertaining faculty members and were pleased to entertain the new dean of women, Mrs. Troxall. She is a charming woman and we enjoyed every minute she was here.

The contributions this time we hope will be interesting. The short short story is by Jane Reineking. She has written several stories and was allowed to join a class offered in the university to those whose work is accepted by the professor in charge. The other we hope may stimulate a bit of interest about Delta Zeta pledges. We want to make our pledge meetings as interesting and as beneficial as possible and we are anxious to know what pledge captains are doing in other chapters. Our new pledge supervisor offers a few items that she plans to carry out.

Rumor has it that the actives are to be surprised by the pledges on April first but as I'm not supposed to know anything about it I can tell no more. I only hope it won't be an April Fool joke.

Spring vacation is uppermost in our minds now. We are all planning to go home even if we live in Pennsylvania as do Mary Hipple and Dorothy Riley. Jane Reineking is planning a trip to Washington, D.C.

Our Badger yearbook will soon be out and we find Delta Zeta contributing much. Margaret Lutze is editor of the social sorority section; Ruth Zodtner is head of the women's sport section; Marie Richardson is head of the secretarial staff; Elanora Pfeffer is head of special occasion section.

Here's to our champ bowler, Hazel Kraft. Hazel has second high score in intramural bowling. The score, 179! Delta Zeta was also represented in the First Athletic Carnival. Four boys ran for us in the intersorority relay.

May 7 marks the close of our social affairs with a spring formal at the Lorraine Hotel. We welcome back the old alumnae and say goodbye to our seniors, Ruth Kuehne, Kathrine Snodgrass, and Phyllis Olson.

UPSILON

INITIATES: Hannah Eielson and Margaret Kindschi.

PLEDGE: Clarice Hildre.

On November 6, Hannah Eielson and Margaret Kindschi were initiated into Delta Zeta. After the ceremony, the new initiates were entertained at lovely breakfast.

Clarice Hildre was pledged on December 10. We are so happy to have Clarice with us. She possesses a great deal of musical talent and plays the pipe-organ beautifully.

This letter may seem a bit out of date in that I'll insist on telling of our festivities previous to the Christmas holidays. On December 5 our pledge chapter entertained the active chapter at a lovely Christmas party. We're proud of our pledges and the manner in which they can plan a successful party.

The week-end of December 12 and 13 Upsilon Chapter entertained Miss Helen Woodruff, director of Delta Province. A holiday tea was held in her honor, with Mildred Owens in charge of arrangements. Miss Woodruff, while with us was entertained at the Delta Gamma house for Sunday dinner. Those of you in Delta Province know how much we enjoyed having Miss Woodruff with us again. We hope it will not be her last visit.

Here's a bit of news that we are just bubbling over to tell. Jean Gunness, our chapter president, was elected honorary cadet colonel on our campus and as such, had the honor of leading the grand march at the military ball. The military ball was held on December 4.

On Monday evening, preceding our vacation, the chapter gave a party in honor of our mothers. From the Mothers' Club, from Mrs. Walker, our housemother, and from our patronesses, the chapter received a number of beautiful gifts for the house.

A week before Christmas, a number of Delta Zetas went down to Hatton, North Dakota, on the sad occasion of Mr. Ole Eielson's funeral. Mr. Eielson was the father of Hannah, who was recently initiated into Delta Zeta. Many of you perhaps will recall Carl Ben Eielson, Hannah's brother, the arctic flier who lost his life a few years ago. We regret the passing of Mr. Eielson. Always he has been a real friend of the girls and many times we have had the pleasure of entertaining him at the chapter house.

Since the holidays we have not been doing much in a social way. Two times the alumnæ club has served waffle suppers at the house. These have been real successes and of course we enjoyed it.

At present we are in the grip of a North Dakota blizzard. It is 15 degrees below zero and we are wondering how many of you would like to go on a sleigh ride party with us.

March 30

PLEDGES: Thelma Hovet, Hillsboro, North Dakota; Ellen Brager, Niagra, North Dakota.

INITIATES: Harriet Anderson, Mildred Falkanger, Doris Ferestad, Olive Mitchell, Marian Muehl, Evelyn Quam, Elda Sibell, and Mae Sundeen.

Just now we have all returned from our various homes, or the homes of friends, where we enjoyed our Easter recess. Since our last chapter letter we have been unusually busy with our school work, social activities having fallen into the background, for the time being.

A few weeks ago City Panhellenic held its annual dinner for the sororities on our campus. We are happy to tell you that the active chapter at Upsilon was awarded first place in scholarship, and our pledges were not far behind. Gudrun Hulteng Letick, one of Upsilon's charter members, was in charge of arrangements for the banquet. A Delta Zeta brother, Art Nygaard, who is very interested in the chapter, sent the actives two dozen lovely, American beauty roses.

We are sorry that Florence Larsen Johnson can no longer be our alumna adviser, but Ellen Gunderson has consented to take her place. Ellen is getting her master's degree this June. We are rather proud of Ellen, who was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa a few years ago and was this year initiated into Pi Lambda Theta, women's honorary education sorority.

At four o'clock on the morning of February 11, we initiated eight thrilled and happy girls into Delta Zeta. That day we entertained the new initiates at a beautiful banquet, Margaret Kindschi being in charge of arrangements.

Every year North Dakota has what is called "Carney Song Contest," in which the four classes compete for honors. Cups are awarded to the fraternities and sororities having perfect attendance at the practices. Delta Zeta won three of these cups this year, the freshmen, sophomores, and the seniors.

Upsilon girls have always been interested in music. Jeanette Anderson, a junior who was pledged last fall, was recently pledged to Sigma Alpha Iota, women's honorary music sorority. Mae Sundeen, who will soon be initiated into the same group, won a pearl-set guard for her pin, as an award for composing the best original song for Sigma Alpha Iota. And our Delta Zeta Trio is now on a regular broadcasting schedule from KFJM. Often they sing for social functions in the city or on the campus.

PHI

INITIATES: Esther Daniel, Zylde Lambert, Marie Lloyd, Edythe Miller, Margaret Staeger.

HONORS: Edythe Miller and Helen Trep-tow were elected to membership in Gamma Beta, women's economics and business administration honorary. Margaret Staeger was initiated into Crimson "W" Circle. Edythe Miller is now a member of W.A.A.

On the Friday before Christmas vacation we had our informal Christmas dance. The chapter house was decorated with red and silver poinsettias. In one corner was a miniature lake surrounded by silver trees. The Christmas spirit prevailed throughout the evening.

We are looking forward to the beginning of the new semester when more of our girls will be back with us.

We are all very busy finishing up this semester's work and preparing for our finals which will be next week.

HAZEL MORGAN, Editor
RUTH HELMER, President

March 30

INITIATES: Nan MacNab, Eleanor Martin, Helen Strain, Evelyn Thornber, Gladys Vickers.

PLEDGE: Judith Young.

HONORS: Florence Ness, one of our pledges was elected to membership in Lambda Kappa Sigma, national pharmaceutical fraternity.

This is a very busy time as every one is writing term papers and cramming for midsemester examinations.

We are so proud of ourselves; our scholarship came up from thirty-eighth to fifth place on the list for the campus, and now our worry is to keep it there.

HAZEL MORGAN, Editor

CHI

PLEDGES: Jessie Sims, Gloria Klann, and Virginia Merris.

Last term was a red-letter term for Chi. Besides acquiring lots of new honors, we placed third in the sorority scholarship list.

We had one of the most successful dances in the history of Chi last term, an informal, to which we invited several rushees. The decorations were simple and everyone agreed that they had a "simply grand" time. We also entertained our patrons and patronesses, the dean of women and her assistant dean, and the two deans new to our campus this fall, at a charming dinner on January 9. We held open-house afterwards, to show our faculty guests what a lovely new house we have.

Two Chis were elected to honorary societies this fall. Louise Lerch pledged Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary and professional fraternity in education, and Becky Brown was chosen by Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional society in journalism for women. We seem to be taking a great deal of interest in campus dramatic productions. Three of our girls took part in Susan GlosPELL's Alison's House, the Pulitzer Prize play for 1931, presented by National Collegiate Players last term. Mary Bennett played the leading rôle, Irene Leach was costume mistress, and Becky Brown was in charge of publicity. This term Noel Coward's Hay Fever is the major play, and Irene Leach is again costume mistress, while Mary Bennett is the publicity chairman, with Elaine Anderson and Becky Brown assisting.

Elaine Anderson, Ruth Lundgren, and Jessie Gibbs Waggoner were appointed as copy readers on the Barometer, school daily publication, and Becky Brown was promoted to day editor. Elaine Anderson was also appointed on the administrative section of the Beaver, school annual. Mary Bennett and Adena Joy were made the women's varsity debate team. Ruth Currin, Eleanor Jenks, Dorothy Atwood, and Jessie Gibbs represent Chi in Madrigal, women's glee club. Becky Brown has been appointed on the publicity committee for the Junior Follies, annual show put on by junior men of the campus. Ruth Currin was chosen as one of the candidates for the junior popularity section in the Beaver. We are hoping our Ruth will win a place. She was also nominated for the vice-presidency of the junior class.

Irene Leach announced her engagement to Donald Ketcham at a "fireside" recently, and we were all thrilled and surprised. Dorothy Rowe, a promising pledge, announced her engagement to George Douglas one night at dinner, with a huge box of chocolates, and both of them were made to follow the ancient tradition of Chi Chapter, that of eating their pie underneath the table, while everyone else was privileged to ask them any question, which they were supposed to answer truthfully.

We are all looking forward now to our winter formal, which is to be held in the Benton Hotel. We have invited five of our neighbor members of Omega Chapter, and their housemother, to enjoy the evening with us.

BECKY BROWN, Editor

MARY BENNETT, President

INITIATES: Irene Wilson and Gwendolyn Horton.

The last of October our pledges entertained us with an informal dance at the Johnson County Country Club. These girls may be green freshmen but when it comes to putting on a dance there aren't enough adjectives to describe them or their dance. It will keep the actives really stepping to make the rest of the year's dances equal this one.

On November 8 we initiated two girls with a sunrise initiation. After the initiation all the actives enjoyed a lovely breakfast at the County Club.

In honor of our new patronesses, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Earlywine, we gave a formal tea December 6 and introduced them to the campus.

With the aid of the actives, pledges, and a few alumnae our suite of fraternity rooms was redecorated at Christmas time. In our minds (and others, we hope) they are the best and most up-to-date of any rooms on the campus.

Nelle Ackerman and Blanch Sizelove are on the committee for the annual co-ed dance, given by the co-eds on the campus. We hope these actives will prove themselves as capable of putting on a dance as our pledges did earlier in the year.

Our college glee club was third in a contest of the glee clubs of Indiana colleges and Delta Zeta had four in this club. We had them in a musical play entitled The Ghost of Lollypop Bay. The four girls are Jeanette Caudle, Gwendolyn Horton, Marjorie Forsythe, and Sue Joyce.

Jeanette Caudle gave a recital just before Thanksgiving. She read Ibsen's A Doll's House. It was voted the best event given for the college so far this year.

March 30

Spring is here and it seems as if Psi has turned into an early bird and captured campus honors right from under other's noses. Jeanette Caudle has been elected as the campus Y.W.C.A. candidate to Lake Geneva. Nell Ackerman is filling the big office of president of student council, the first girl to hold such an honor on this campus. Prom and May Queen ladies are being chosen and we are holding up strong against a great deal of competition.

Along with these political functions we are also having social functions to cheer us up. Our winter formal was held in the Lincoln room of Hotel Lincoln in Indianapolis, March 11. Delta, Epsilon, and Alpha Nu were our guests at this dance.

We also gave an informal St. Patrick party for our mothers and alumnae. The program was furnished by the pledges. The main feature of the program was Delta Zeta songs composed and sung by the pledges.

We are looking forward to state day, which is April 23. Our stunt, which is to be put on at the luncheon, is to be "When Beauty meets the Beast at Franklin."

The Franklin College glee club went on a tour during our spring vacation. We hope you heard the program given by this club over the radio, or otherwise, because four of its members were Delta Zeta girls. These girls were Susan Joyce, Jeanette Caudle, Marjorie Forsythe, and Gwendolyn Horton.

Psi's athletes are having a chance to show their worth these last few weeks. Nelle Ackerman is president of the Woman's Athletic Association; Olga Bauchmann, Beatrice Deckard, and Dorothy Stroud made the varsity basketball team; and some of these girls are heads of committees for Franklin's annual play day.

OMEGA

PLEDGES: Dolores Burke, Helen Rothenberger, Kathryn Pope, Sara Casey, and Theodora Gustafson.

INITIATES: Helen Jean Graham, Ella McFall, Phyllis Smith, and DeEtta Robnett.

An Omega senior, Margaret Atwood, was named among the eight students receiving the highest possible grades for fall term, quite an honor when one stops to think that there are three thousand or more students in competition. Margaret has a younger sister, Dorothy, who also chalked up a mark for Delta Zeta scholastic records. However, Chi girls receive the honor for her achievements, as she is affiliated with their chapter.

Another member was mentioned on the honor roll, Thelma Nelson.

Campus honoraries again have selected several of the Omega girls to membership. Pi Lambda Theta, national education honorary at the beginning of winter term initiated Kathryn Allison, our sorority president, and Betty Lewis, a Delta Zeta alumnae studying for her master's degree in physical education.

Four Delta Zetas are presidents of honoraries and clubs: Helen Rothenberger is the president of Alpha Tau Delta, national nursing honorary; Thelma Nelson of Pi Sigma, Latin honorary; Margaret Atwood of Wesley Club, and Anna Evans of the nature study group of Philomelete.

Margaret Atwood was presented in an organ recital on the campus during winter term.

Omega winter social affairs were few, since this was the busy season for all-college dances and sorority and fraternity functions.

A dinner in honor of the chapter's patrons, patronesses, and faculty members was given on Sunday, January 24. Twenty were invited.

On January 28 members and pledges entertained individual guests for after-dinner coffee and dancing.

The biggest event for the chapter, of course, was the annual formal on February 27 at the house.

Several upperclassmen had the good fortune to attend the Chi formal on February 6. It was a lovely dance given at the Benton Hotel. Members of the two chapters have become quite well acquainted and have enjoyed many good times together, as a result of their exchange dinners on Founders' Day and exchange dances. This custom was started about two years ago and has been faithfully followed ever since.

Pledges are given an opportunity to entertain on their own initiative without any upperclass supervision on Monday evenings. While members are confined in house meeting, they play hostesses to fraternity pledges for an hour of dancing.

KATHRYN ALLISON, President

PLEDGES: Sarah Casey and Kathryn Pope. INITIATE: Helen Rothenberger.

The highlight on Omega's winter social calendar was the formal grill dance, which was given at the chapter house, February 27. The feature was given by Professor George P. Hopkins, head of the piano department at the university, and one of our patrons, and Howard Halbert, a prominent violinist on the campus. We were very happy to have six couples from Chi Chapter and their housemother as special guests, as well as a number of alumnæ.

Another lovely affair was a buffet supper given by Mrs. George Hopkins, one of our patronesses, at her home for all of the members and alumnæ. We also entertained at dinner for our old and new patrons and patronesses.

During the spring vacation a rushing party was given at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Houck Farris by the Portland alumnæ and active members, for a group of high school girls entering the university in the fall.

Delta Zetas are selling tickets for a musicale to be given April 30, at the chapter house. At that time a quilt, made by our housemother and the Mothers' Club, will be given to the one holding the lucky number.

Anna Evans, senior in botany, was awarded first prize for the best collection of country wild flowers. The prize of $200 was given by Professor Henderson of the University Herbarium.

Omega Chapter is very proud to have so many members taking active parts in campus honoraries. Anna Evans is a member of Beta Lambda, biology honorary. Betty Lewis and Katherine Allison have been initiated into Pi Lambda Theta, education honorary. Kathryn Fry is president, DeEtta Robinette is vice-president, and Anna Evans is treasurer. Helen Rothenberger is president of Alpha Tau, nursing honorary. Sarah Casey and Dorothy Folsom are also members. Dorothy also belongs to Temenids, National Eastern Star honorary. Willametta Logsdon is a member of Delta Pi, education organization.

ALPHA ALPHA

PLEDGES: Virginia Hendley, Dorothy Johnson.

INITIATE: Louise Koch.

Alpha Alpha held its second open-house after the football game on Saturday, October 31. After the busy fall season we have been occupied with other various activities concerning the sorority. The initiation of Louise Koch on November 15 was followed by a dinner at the chapter house. A successful faculty dinner was given December 2.

On Saturday December 12 a bridge party furnished an enjoyable afternoon for the actives, pledges, their parents and friends. One evening before the holidays a lovely Christmas dinner at the house was the scene of much fun and merriment. Santa Claus paid a visit and gave each girl a small gift with a verse attached.

The last social event of this semester was our formal dinner-dance on January 9 at the Vista del Lago.

Our girls are well represented on the varsity athletic teams. Louise McKenzie was elected captain of the sophomore volleyball team; Queta Brenner was elected to the junior volleyball team, and Marian Perl, a pledge, to the freshman team. At a recent W.A.A. spread Jane Hayes was awarded a minor letter for athletic achievement.

Marian Edgren was chosen as a member of the senior commission. Leona De Mare was elected national vice-president of the Anonian Literary Society and thus becomes editor of the magazine, the Larch. Bobby Rogers was elected to the junior commission. Lorraine and Maurita Gaggin sang and played the accordian at a floor show during a university football dance.

Our pledges have been accomplishing a great deal this fall. Florence Jakes was initiated into Ro Ku Va, honorary women's society at Northwestern University. Virginia Hendley was selected as a member of the W.A.A.-M.U. show board which controls the annual university musical comedy. Verda Jenson was pledged to Theta Sigma Phi. Mary Dannenberg danced in the chorus of Scrap Book, an all-university production. Lorraine Gaggin played her accordian as a specialty number in Scrap Book.

March 30

PLEDGE: Betty Garner.

INITIATES: Kathleen Conover, Lorraine Gaggin, Eileen Hirschfelder, Florence Jakes, Dorothy Jane Johnson, Frances Lutz, Marian Perl, Corinne Paustian, Hazel Walz.

We opened the semester with a pledge dinner at the chapter house, February 11.

Our initiation services were held during the night of Saturday, March 5. After sleeping about two hours, the girls came down to a breakfast given in honor of the initiates. During the meal a large wedding cake was brought in and Pat Smeed revealed her marriage which took place a year ago December 8, at Highwood, Illinois. Pat's name is now Mrs. Walter Kihm.

Numerous personal distinctions were conferred upon members recently. Frances Lutz was awarded the gold recognition pin for having made the highest scholastic average among the initiates.

A box of Delta Zeta stationery was given to Corinne Paustian as a reward for having the neatest and most complete pledge notebook.

Seven girls took part in the annual Waa-Mu show. Bobby Rogers, Mary Dannenberg, Dorothy Owen and Betty Garner danced, while Lucile Juergensen and Lorraine and Maurita Gaggin sang.

Lucile Juergensen was one of a number of girls who received recognition in a beauty contest held in connection with the show.

Verda Jensen was initiated into Theta Sigma Phi, a honorary journalism sorority, on Sunday, March 20. Jeanne Walsh is a member of Iota Sigma, an honorary educational sorority.

Mildred Marsh, Lois Lamoreaux, Dorothy E. Johnson, and Lucile Juergensen are attending weekly rehearsals in preparation for the North Shore Musical Festival to be held in Chicago in May.

Queta Brenner made the junior basketball team and the all-star team.

A successful subscription dance was held in the chapter house on Saturday evening, March 19.

At present we are all practicing for our circus stunt. This year we made the act a little tamer in an effort to avoid the breaking of limbs which occurred in our contribution to the circus last year.

Other events to which we are looking forward are a faculty tea, a spring formal, a dinner for patrons and patronesses, a bridge party, a bake sale, sorority sing and a Mothers' Day tea.

ALPHA BETA

PLEDGES: Helen Chambers, Oak Park; Grace McAuley, Forest Park; Virginia Molter, Evanston; Margaret Snider, Oakwood; Verrea Nofsinger, Chicago; Winifred Rugero, Chicago.

INITIATES: Louise Clow, Chicago; Everdine Keating, Harvey; Betty Work, Chicago.

HONORS: Mary Patton, secretary of Mask and Bauble; Grace McAuley, Jamesonian Literary Society; Linean; Hazel Marie Hoyle, secretary of Jamesonian; Billie Little, secretary of Anonian Literary Society; Audrey Weis, and Margery Kendall, varsity hockey team; and Louise Clow, varsity soccer team.

So many things have happened at Alpha Beta since the last chapter letter was written that we can only touch the high spots in this letter. First of all, we celebrated doubly on October 24, when we had both a homecoming and Founders' Day banquet. Then on November 7, Betty Haynie welcomed the dads at our Dads' Day banquet and both Mr. Embree and Mr. Miller responded, after which the pledges entertained with a clever stunt.

December 6 marked the day when three new Lamps appeared in our house. We were all happy to see the new initiates and at the banquet Betty Haynie welcomed them for the chapter and Everdine Keating was spokesman for the new girls.

Since the football season is over we no longer go to the stadium but to the gymnasium for basketball games, to the skating rink, and to the stock pavilion. Virginia Molter has been practicing faithfully for the ice-skating exhibition. Mary Patton was one of the eleven participants in the Horse Show which was sponsored by the R.O.T.C. Dorothy Kanitz won the silver cup in the Co-ed Milking Contest.

Rex, our Newfoundland, is still the pride and joy of the house. He spent Thanksgiving vacation in Bement with Dorothy Kanitz and Christmas vacation with Audrey Weis in Maywood.

Now we are thinking about final exams and the close of the first semester. With it we cannot but regret that Mildred Mercereau and Dorothy Kanitz are being graduated. Nancy Embree ably succeeds Mildred as vice-president and as a result of Dorothy's leaving, there is a new hand writing this letter.

The school year is rolling around and we're facing 1932 with optimism. Let's not allow the depression to touch the Delta Zeta spirit. Good luck!

ALPHA GAMMA

PLEDGES: Louise Jones, Frances Walker, Jean Cody, Martha Leland, Josephine Karle, Rosalind Jackson.

INITIATES: Helen Halvorsen, Marjorie Barrows, Alice Louise Bond, Ernestine Carmichael, Francis Lyle Gay.

We have just completed initiation and have welcomed in five new Delta Zetas. The ceremony was quite the prettiest we have ever had. The next night we followed with the rose banquet held at the Peacock Tavern. It simply poured rain but we all put on our best "bib and tucker" and dared the elements to dampen our fun. The tables were beautifully arranged with tiny rosebuds with the members name printed on the leaf, forming the placecards.

Tiny lamps (à la incense burners) were awarded to Marjorie Barrows as being the best all-round pledge and a similar lamp was given to Frances Lyle Gay for having the highest scholastic pledge average.

Mrs. Jerry Cowan, our province president visited us the last of February. She helped and inspired us a lot, besides making herself quite the most charming guest we have had since the last time she visited us.

Last week several of our members did themselves well (and some quite sore) in the horse show. Alpha Gamma has her heart set on winning the swimming cup. The meet is to be next week and if hard work and training will win it we certainly won't have broken hearts.

Two of our freshmen, Ernestine Carmichael and Frances Lyle Gay, were initiated into Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman honorary society.

ALPHA DELTA

INITIATES: Carolyn Becker, Betty Brown, Helen Lyon, Katheryn Murphy, and Janet Stulz.

PLEDGES: Wilda Kilbourne, Frances MacMaugh, Elizabeth Martin, Margaret Nealon, Louise Shoemaker, Dorothy Smith, and Jerry Whitaker.

The rush season at Alpha Delta closed very successfully in October with a Founders' Day banquet at the Hay-Adams House which was preceded by the final party dance. Eight freshmen pledges were presented with their Killarney roses the following week.

Mrs. Loucks, director of Province Two, visited Alpha Delta during silence week and was entertained at tea. She was a guest at dinner and at the chapter meeting of the alumnae which was held at the home of Mrs. John G. Ladd, alumnae adviser. At this meeting an advisory board of seven alumnae was formed which has since proved of great help to the active chapter.

The pledges were kept busy with their course of training under Eleanor Chaney and Mary Whitney. In November they assisted the chapter in making and selling candy for the annual Y.W.C.A. country fair. Quite a sum of money was realized from this sale.

The day before the Christmas holidays the members of the chapter, the pledges, and a number of alumnae were entertained at breakfast following which all received presents from beneath the Christmas tree. A dance was given at the Hamilton Hotel during the holidays.

Two weeks before initiation the pledges presented the chapter with a lovely radio which adds greatly to the attractiveness of the rooms. On the evening of February 25, the members were entertained at a vaudeville show given by the pledges. There were clever impersonations of all the actives, and other foolishness.

The initiation services were held on February 28. The ceremony was followed by a formal banquet at the Hungerford Tavern in Rockeville, Maryland. Eleanor Chaney, the toastmistress, chose the ship as the motif for the program and this idea was cleverly carried out in the decorations and the speeches.

Betty Brown and Helen Lyon were initiated into the George Washington chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary freshman women's scholarship fraternity, on the evening of March 4 at the Kennedy-Warren. Helen Clarke of Alpha Delta is president of the local chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta and Virginia Gummel was last year's secretary.

Second semester rushing began with a bi-centennial bridge party at the chapter's rooms and was followed by a bridge at the home of Alethea Lawton, and other parties. Wilda Kilbourne and Margaret Nealon, two charming girls, were pledged. A St. Patrick's Day party was held at the home of Jean Kelly in Clarendon, Virginia.

ALPHA ZETA

Alpha Zeta had a glorious time during rushing. Our rush party was held at the home of Eleanore Ross in Brooklyn. It was formal according to local Panhellenic ruling, and our own girls provided the entertainment. Both Clarice Gee and Eileen Bartley sang; Ethel Johnston (who was rush captain) and "Jiggs" McPartland presented a skit. On Friday, November 13, we pledged thirteen girls!

Our dance, held November 21 at the Bar-bizon-Plaza, under the chairmanship of Myrtle Kullman and committee, Julia Goemans, was a huge success both financially and socially.

We had a big surprise for you! We have a Delta Zeta bungalow right on the ocean front at Long Beach. Dean Harvey has given her consent, and we are the only sorority on campus having a house. Many supper meetings and house parties are held there. It has also been an excellent place for our pledges to become acquainted.

The Alpha Zetas gave a tea to the dean and members of the faculty at the house; they like the house immensely.

The Wednesday before Christmas, we had our Christmas party and dinner at the house. One of our pledges, "Ren" Cameron, acted as Santa Claus, and distributed gifts, to which fitting verses were attached.

During Christmas vacation, our pledges had a house party, at Long Beach. They cooked all their own meals and had great fun "keeping house." On Saturday, January 16, they also gave a tea there to the pledges of the other sororities.

Recently, the active chapter gave a tea to their mothers and the mothers of the pledges, in the lounge of the Adelphi College Recreational building. We had a lovely afternoon.

Oh, yes! I have two new honors to report. Doris Gunton was elected president of the Chemistry Club; and Eleanor Guile, secretary of the Philosophy Club.

We are planning to initiate our thirteen pledges, we hope, on February 13. We are superstitious, don't you think? A rose banquet will be held, and a closed dance.

(Letter unsigned.)

INITIATES: Eleanor Cameron, Jean Claypool, Helen Denton, Edna Hanes, June Hamilton, Anita Jones, Ruth Knappman, Zoe MacLean, and Doris Peterson.

Initiation was held at the Pierrepont Hotel in Brooklyn. A rose banquet followed initiation, and after the banquet, a closed dance.

Alpha Zeta, on March 15, sponsored a very successful theater party under the chairmanship of Doris Gunton. One hundred tickets were sold. The comedy The Left Bank at the Little Theatre in New York City was delightful.

On Sunday, March 13, the actives gave a tea for the alumnae at our house in Long Beach. On the 14th we had a supper meeting there.

We are delighted in having three Delta Zetas on Daisy Chain this year. These three pretty sophomores who will help carry Daisy Chain during senior week are Mildred McPartland, Norma Trifari, and Ethel Johnston.

We are about to elect officers for next year. Installation will be at Marion Medley's house, on March 28.

ALPHA ETA

PLEDGES: Betty Balsley, Detroit, Michigan; Goldia Lightfoot and Elizabeth Hurd, Flint, Michigan; Marjorie Western, Lakewood, Ohio; Alice Mahnke, Port Huron, Michigan; Betty Wickett and Hazel Goff, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Cora Peters, Tucson, Arizona.

INITIATES: Beatrice Collins, Detroit, Michigan; Selma Johnson, Norway, Michigan; Beatrice Olmstead, Cleveland, Ohio.

We had an especially lovely banquet Sunday noon after an early morning initiation. Pink roses and tapers were featured as decorations. In accordance with these, Miss Lynn Fowler, toastmistress, likened the growth of the rose in the Delta Zeta rose garden to the girls and their development in the sorority.

Alumnae guests were Mrs. Raphael Isaacs, Mrs. Clarence Kessler, Mrs. Richard Niehuss, Miss Gale Saunders, Miss Mildred Drinkaus, Miss Permillia Lampman, and Miss Mary Dunnigan.

About forty guests including patronesses and alumnae were entertained at the chapter house with a Christmas party Tuesday before vacation. Gifts for the house and exchange gifts, which were later sent to Vest, were placed under the tree. The house was decked in holiday fashion. Dinner was served at card tables by the light of candles and the fire in the grate. Between courses we sang Christmas carols, and quite caught the festive spirit.

We have also entertained at some very clever rush parties, and honored the patronesses at dinner. Our faculty tea, the first Sunday after the holidays, was enhanced by violin music played by Leonard Parks, and accompanied by his sister, Adria, an active Delta Zeta member.

We are trying this year more than ever to participate in campus activities. The Choral Union is one of the finest of its kind. Frances Anderson, Dorothy Backus, and Jeanne DuBois are participants. Beatrice Olmstead and Jeanne DuBois are members of the university girls' glee club which is featured many times in campus musical fêtes.

We are also interested in aiding in activities of the Women's League. The pledges are running a candy booth for the league, and aid in taking care of the league library. Miss Frieda Boersig is a member of league committee on house organization.

Two of our sophomores, Beatrice Olmstead and Beatrice Collins, who holds an important editorial position on the Michigan Daily, lend their talent to the sophomore cabaret. For the big event of the year, the junior girls' play, Dorothy Backus, Goldia Lightfoot, and Alice Mahnke have stepped into the limelight for Delta Zeta.

March 30

PLEDGES: Betty Balsley, '34, Detroit, Michigan; Hazel Goff, '34, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Imogene Greicus, '33, Chicago, Illinois; Gertrude Janssen, '33, Grosse Point, Michigan; Corabell Peters, '34, Tucson, Arizona; Betty Wickett, '35, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

INITIATES: Goldia Lightfoot, '33, and Elizabeth Hurd, '33, Flint, Michigan; Alice Mahnke, '32, Port Huron, Michigan.

We are very proud to announce the installation of Dr. and Mrs. Raphael Isaacs as patron and patroness of Alpha Eta Chapter. Mrs. Isaacs is a Delta Zeta alumna from Alpha Chapter, and Dr. Isaacs is assistant director of Simpson Memorial Institute besides being a professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan.

Many events call to our minds the fact that another academic year is coming to a close. One particularly suggestive is the change of officers.

Another reminder is the donning of caps and gowns which took place March 28 for the first time this year. Tradition plays a big factor in this, for on the opening night of the junior girls' play all senior women in their dignified adornment have dinner together and are entertained afterwards by their well rehearsed and enthusiastic underclassmen. After the show our nine seniors and the girls in the play were royally received and "refreshed" by the others in the sorority.

We of Alpha Eta were particularly forfortunate in being asked to act as hostesses at the tea-dance held in the Women's League Building in honor of the cast of Robin Hood, Dekoven's Opera recently enacted by the combination of Michigan's dramatic and musical societies. Miss Agnes Barker, house chaperon, and Miss Nora Crane Hunt, director of the university girls' glee club, presided at the Urns.

Every girl is especially interested in the workings of her chapter after she has left. Therefore the alumnae of Alpha Eta collect choice bits of news and business and the result is "Chapter Chatter." Mrs. Grace House Arnold is editor. A special feature in the last issue was a short biography of every present active.

ALPHA THETA

PLEDGE: Jeannette Hillis.

We are beginning second semester rush next week with a formal tea, but, let us continue our tale since the last LAMP letter. On November 6 we pledged Jeannette Hillis and as she is an upperclassman she will be initiated with the girls who were pledged in September.

November 9 was homecoming at the University of Kentucky. Many of our alumnae came to visit us at that time. We were pleased to have with us some girls from other chapters also. Thanksgiving Day brought us many visitors as that was the biggest football game of the season.

On December 14 our chapter had charge of the program at Y.W.C.A. Vespers. The program consisted of a Christmas story told by Mary Higgason and Christmas carols.

Alpha Theta certainly had a lovely Christmas. As everyone went home for the holidays, our party was held the Wednesday before. Just before the end of the party the alumnae brought in a huge basket filled with gifts for the house. The gifts were: a card table, a lamp, goblets, glasses, a cream and sugar set, a luncheon set and a dinner bell. Our housemother gave us a leather stool and a pillow for the living room. The Mothers' Club gave us two lovely trays. We felt as though Santa was particularly generous.

Since Christmas we have had no time for social activity except for open house occasionally. However, we are looking forward to our tea-dance on March 12.

March 30

INITIATES: Mary Higgason, Jeannette Hillis, Helen Hixon, Margaret Tartar.

HONORS: Dorothy Compton pledged to Phi Beta, Mary Hopper Laytham elected treasurer of Kappa of Phi Beta, Mary Higgason made a member of the Y.W.C.A. freshman cabinet.

I am sure that if any of you had seen us on March 3 you would not have recognized us as Delta Zetas. At the Y.W.C.A. circus we represented freaks from all over the world. Our bearded lady, dwarf, tall woman, etc., must have looked quite freakish because we received one of the prizes.

On March 6 we had a lovely initiation service at four-thirty in the morning. We finished just as the dawn was shedding its glow over the snow covered ground. Its beauty lent a more profound feeling of solemnity to the service. A breakfast was given at the chapter house after the ceremony.

We had our St. Patrick's tea-dance at Patterson Hall on March 12. About one hundred and fifty guests were present. We were very happy to have two of the Beta Gamma girls with us. Music was furnished by the Blue and White Orchestra.

Florence Ryan, who was graduated last year, made us a visit recently. Florence lives in Delavan, Illinois, and we were glad to see her.

HENRIETTA REDDING, Editor

VIRGINIA COLLINS, President (pro tem)

ALPHA IOTA

PLEDGES: Virginia Hayselden, Anna Reed, Marion Richardson, Billie Watson.

INITIATES: Betty Ritchie, Mary Shoop, Margaret Thomas.

HONORS: Marie Drake pledged Theta Sigma Phi, honorary national journalism fraternity. Charlotte Smale pledged an honorary physical education sorority. Lyda-Blithe Richman pledged Quill Club, honorary national writers' organization.

Since the last letter we have chosen patrons for our chapter, and are planning to entertain for them with a formal tea as soon as next rush week is over. The patrons are Miss Jean Hill, Dr. and Mrs. Campbell, and Dr. and Mrs. Carl Knopf.

We are planning several delightful functions for rush week, one dinner to be titled Alice in Wonderland, and to be taken off our hands by our alumnae adviser, Mrs. Kay Monfort, and our past president, Kay Ryan. We are sure that the two Kays can give us an okay rush party. (No pun intended!)

The last night of rush week we are planning to be gracious, in more ways than one. It is called the Gay Nineties, and we are going to wear dresses of that period, and have Louise Miller, one of our seniors, play several solos on the harp.

I have been saving the best news to the last, and as one saves the frosting off cake: Mary Shoop, a brand new initiate and a senior, is also a brand new initiate into the sacred order of Phi Beta Kappa!

Realizing that this news has probably stunned you into unconsciousness, I shall say no more. Cold water will bring you back to life.

LYDIA-BLITHE RICHMAN, Editor
MARIE DRAKE, President

March 30

PLEDGES: Nadine Goodheart, '35; Anna Massa, '35; Virginia Hayselden, '33; Edythe Kaneen, '35; Ruth Urton, '35.

INITIATES: (March 17): Betty Ebner, '33; Katharine Henze, '33; Louise Koffel, '35; Ann Reid, '32; Marion Richardson, '33; Billie Holley Watson, '33.

HONORS: We are very proud of the honors which have recently come to some of our members. Marie Drake was elected to Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism organization; Charlotte Smale has recently been initiated into Delta Psi Kappa, honorary physical education fraternity; Lydia Richman is soon to be initiated in Phi Delta Phi, honorary French fraternity. Marion Richardson is a member of the women's varsity debate team, has been elected to the honorary philosophic fraternity of the Argonauts and is soon to be initiated in Pi Sigma Alpha, honorary political science fraternity. Betty Ebner has recently become a member of Epsilon Phi, honorary English fraternity.

We feel very proud that we are gradually raising our scholarship record. Last semester we stood fourth among the sororities on our campus and this time we are eagerly awaiting the campus scholarship report as we feel we have made a better average.

SOCIAL: Our second semester rush affairs consisted of a valentine dinner at the chapter house, a rose tea at the beautiful home of Dorothy Delavan. An Alice in Wonderland Dinner arranged and carried out by two of our loyal alumnae, Katherine Ryan and Mrs. Catherine Monfort, was a very novel idea and proved a grand get-acquainted affair, and a Gay Nineties Dinner was very lovely. Most of the girls wore their mothers' wedding gowns. Old albums, family pictures, old sheet music, and quaint individual bouquets were used to carry out the motif. This busy week was climaxed with the formal preference dinner in Rainbow Isle at the Mayfair Hotel.

We are very proud of the fact that we were the first sorority to present our pledges to the campus this semester. A popular campus orchestra furnished music for the dancing.

Recently, we entertained our patrons, patronesses, and faculty friends with a dinner party at the chapter house to show them our appreciation for the splendid support they have so willingly given us. During Easter vacation, Marion Richardson kindly opened her Balboa Beach cottage to our chapter. Practically everyone took advantage of this wonderful opportunity to spend a vacation at the beach and we all came back with fine coats of pre-summer sunburn and tan.

A number of interesting social events are being planned for this spring. We are soon to sponsor a benefit bridge-tea and in April there is to be a lovely formal dinner-dance in honor of our new initiates and pledges.

ALPHA KAPPA

PLEDGES: Jeanette Kulp, Buffalo, New York; Harriet Fox, Newark, New York; and Avis Little, Clifton Springs, New York.

November 14, the day of the traditional Colgate game, found the campus agog with excitement. Fraternity and sorority houses had open-house, and Alpha Kappa welcomed back many of her alumnae. A few who returned were: Mary Simons, Irma Zimmerman, Mildred Campbell, Edith Lawson, Kay Flickinger, Marion Knowles, Vera Powers, Marion Wescott, Beverly Chisholm, and Irene Follett.

We enjoyed the Thanksgiving holidays from November 25-30. This semester the chapter has inaugurated a series of Sunday evening teas. On one Sunday evening co-ed friends are invited, and on the next Sunday evening our gentlemen friends are entertained. Mrs. Burchard, our house chaperon, presides, and to date the teas have been a great success.

The next event that occurred was our Christmas formal, held at the house, December 12. The house was prettily decorated. In the library two lighted trees stood at either side of the fireplace. A large, red, lighted wreath decorated the wall at one end of the living room, and a similar scheme was carried out in the decoration of the front entrance. Many alumnae came and all agreed they had a jolly evening.

The Christmas spirit prevailed when our formal Christmas dinner party came December 18. Gifts were exchanged between alumnae, actives, sorority mothers, daughters, and roommates. In this year of depression, Alpha Kappa gave her support to aid the crippled children of Syracuse, and our annual box journeyed "Vestward."

Christmas vacation, December 19-January 4. We returned, and are now eagerly (?) awaiting midyears, the week of January 25. On January 17, an Alpha Kappa Association meeting was held at the house. Besides the city alumnae, those who attended were Marion Knowles and Edith Lawson.

Ruth Ellis, '33, has been elected to Pi Delta Nu, honorary chemistry society. On December 10, Catherine Doige and Gladys Dieseth participated in the opera Aida, while Alma Bourlier and Mabel Milligan acted as ushers for the occasion. At a ceremony held at Archbold Gymnasium, our sister, Josephine Flick, became an honorary captain sponsor in the R.O.T.C. regiment. Today "Jo" proudly displays an orange shoulder strap, and a shingle indicating the honor. With the announcement of officers for local Panhellenic for next year, Lucile Gifford, '33, will be treasurer.

March 30

PLEDGE: Vera M. Sanford, Campbell, New York.

INITIATE: Jane Greenland, Syracuse; Alice Melville, Buffalo; Harriet Fox, Newark, New York; Betty McMillen, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Eugenia Remmers, Closter, New Jersey; Jane Weaver, Syracuse.

On February 13, a Valentine dance took place at the house. Cupids and old fashioned valentines lined the walls of the living room and the library. Mrs. J. Clinton Loucks, Mrs. Jordan Zimmerman, the Misses Mildred Campbell, Edith Lawson, and Bernice Conine came back for a jolly evening. Ruth Flick, '28, was a recent guest of her sister, Josephine. "A Night with Martha Washington" was presented at John Crouse College Auditorium February 22. Barbara Pierce was a member of the harp sextet, and Henri Etta Morey sang in the ensemble group. The chapter attended in a body. The mothers of active and alumnae members were entertained at a tea on Sunday, February 28. Mrs. H. M. Burchard and Mrs. Robert P. Carroll poured. Skits were given by the pledges. Mrs. Clinton Loucks, our province director, conducted national inspection February 29-March 1. A tea will be given in honor of Mrs. Loucks, on March 30. Alpha Kappa entertained Prof. and Mrs. Capper-Johnson and Dean and Mrs. Wharton Miller of the Library School, at a faculty dinner on March 10. Barbara Pierce rendered several harp selections and Josephine Flick read a cutting from The Importance of Being Earnest.

Six of our pledges were initiated into Delta Zeta on Saturday, March 26. Immediately following the initiation a banquet was held at the Hotel Onondaga. Seated at the Speakers' Table were: Josephine Roberts, toastmistress, Mrs. Jordan Zimmerman, Mrs. J. Clinton Loucks, speaking for national Delta Zeta, Edith Lawson, for the alumnae, Josephine Flick, for the actives, and Eugenia Remmers for the new initiates. The topics centered on the diamond. The awards presented were: Junior Cup, Lucile Gifford; Pledge Scholarship Cup, Harriet Fox; Pledge Achievement Award, Betty Mc-

Millen. Three pleasant surprises awaited us when the dessert was served. On each plate was a walnut shell, a miniature musical composition and a branch of a fir tree. "All in a nutshell" contained announcement of the engagement of Josephine D. Roberts to E. Warner Hunt. Mildred V. Campbell selected the fir tree (her gentleman friend is a forester) to disclose her betrothal to Herbert Marco, and Ruth Richardson (Ruth is a pianist) distributed a miniature musical composition with her name and that of Bernard M. Reen forming a wee tune. Congratulations were in order. As a fitting conclusion to the banquet all sang "Delta Zeta Lamps are Burning."

ACTIVITIES: Viola Jacobsen, '34, has been pledged Sigma Chi Alpha, honorary public school art fraternity. Betty McMillen and Jane Weaver, two of our new initiates, have been named honor students in scholarship in the sophomore and freshman classes, respectively, of Teachers College. Eugenia Remmers was elected to Tambourine and Bones, musical organization. Betty McMillen survived to the final cuts for cheerleading. Lucile Gifford was pledged Eta Pi Upsilon, honorary senior women's fraternity. Election to this group is one of the highest honors that a co-ed may receive on campus. Lucile was also one of the fifteen young women to be selected from which number James Montgomery Flagg, noted illustrator, will choose the six, who in his opinion, best conform with the present-day requirements for beauty and pulchritude. Laura Way survived preliminary cuts to the finals for the position of associate editor on the staff of the Onondagan, junior yearbook. Lorraine Vallencourt is the sole co-ed in the University delegation of fourteen representatives to the Model League of Nations Assembly to be held on the Hill in mid-April. Lorraine will represent China in the mock conclave. Josephine Flick, publicity chairman for the women's student senate has been assisting in a survey of the 130 hill organizations now in existence.

JOSEPHINE D. ROBERTS, President

ALPHA LAMBDA

INITIATE: Delia Bell, Boulder, Colorado.

We were certainly proud when Kathleen Crannel made Phi Beta Kappa, the national honorary scholastic fraternity. Her average was third from the highest, and she was the only girl who received a bid to Phi Beta.

Homecoming was a great success. Our house decorations were entirely Spanish which fitted our Spanish type house. Our float, which was a Denver Trolley, also received a great deal of comment and praise. Although we did not take a prize, we all enjoyed homecoming.

Our chapter room is now completed and we certainly have some good times in it. The girls who remained in Boulder during vacation finished varnishing and waxing the floors; so the room was ready when Mrs. Friedline visited us the first week of the Quarter.

We had a cabaret at our fall formal. The tables were decorated modernistically, and we served light refreshments to the couples at the tables. We are now getting ready for our winter formal. We have a number of tea-dances on our winter social calendar. We are busy now getting ready for a benefit bridge. Each week we have a dinner for rushees, and we are also going to give a series of dinners for faculty members.

Everyone is now recuperating from the mad rush of the junior prom. To the fraternity house for dinner, dance at the prom until two A.M. and to the sorority house the next morning for breakfast, and the round robin dances. Such a week-end and no one ready for school on Monday!

March 30

PLEDGES: Frances Copeland and Anne Hennessey, both of Arvade, Colorado.

We have had a number of tea-dances, and a buffet supper at which we had personal guests. We also had a fraternity down to a tea-dance. We have been entertained at dinner quite frequently by fraternity pledges sent to our house to put on stunts.

We were quite proud of our debate team. We reached the finals although we were defeated there. The question was, "Should there be deferred pledging?" Our girls have also taken an active part in the selling of the Dodo and the Window both student publications. We also had a swimming team this quarter. We have been practicing for the "Song Fest" which is held the first week of next quarter. All the sororities and fraternities compete for the loving cup, which is given by the businessmen of Boulder.

Our winter dance was the last social function of the quarter before finals. The girls of the chapter who will be in town during spring vacation are planning a house party to be given at Copeland Lake Lodge near Estes Park.

ALPHA NU

Perhaps you remember our telling you in our last letter about the annual homecoming parade the university holds, with each fraternity entering a float, the best of which receives a cup. Behold, Alpha Nu won the cup this year, and it was presented at the dance given in the evening. The float was titled "Sir Butler Knighted by Empress Eugenie." To describe it would be hopeless and the effect would not go over, so we shall restrain ourselves from giving such a description. Incidentally, the cup is quite beautiful, and it is placed on the mantel in such a way that it meets the eye of everyone entering our domicile.

Butler University has been chosen the meeting place of the Urban Panhellenic Association to be held on Friday and Saturday, February 13 and 14. Everything on the campus is in readiness for the great event.

Dorothy Wright, a junior, and incidentally our junior representative to Panhellenic, has been chosen chairman of one of the committees for the junior prom. Josephine Ready, a senior, was elected secretary of the Women's League, an organization whose members include all the co-eds of the university. Marjorie Campbell was elected to Torch, an honorary for sophomores, and one of our freshmen, Edna Cabalzar has been elected to Scarf Club, a freshman honorary organization.

We had our formal open-house on Sunday, December 6. This open-house is for the purpose of introducing the pledges to the groups on the campus. All organizations are invited and also the faculty members. On December 17, we entertained our mothers at a Christmas party. Everything was quite jolly and everyone was most pleased with their twenty-five cent gifts. December 19, Alpha Nu gave its Christmas formal at the Propylaum. Lovely programs of black suede were given to each couple, and the Christmas decorations were the usual decorations for such a season, mistletoe and holly. Such was our social program before Christmas, and since then there has been a decided lull.

March 30

PLEDGE: Dorothy Jackson, Indianapolis, Indiana.

INITIATES: Dorothy Dean, Harriet Ford, Ruth Lewis, Indianapolis; and Ellene Lippeatt, Dugger, Indiana.

Dorothy Wright, a junior, has been elected to the position of society editor on the university paper, the Butler Collegian, and also was elected to Kappa Tau Alpha, honorary journalistic fraternity. Also, I might add that she is the incoming president of our chapter. However the details I shall leave to the incoming LAMP editor.

On February 20, a number of us went to DePauw University to attend the opening of Delta's new house. Words could not describe it, and the editor of this letter dreamed about it, and that's the greatest compliment she could possibly bestow on it.

Sunday afternoon, March 13, we entertained with a St. Patrick's tea for our faculty ally Mrs. A. Dale Beeler, and our patronesses Mrs. James Ogden and Mrs. Henry Buttolph. Everything was carried out in the Irish green, except the flowers and the florist was all out of green flowers. Then on March 23, we held initiation for four girls. The week preceding the great event we were blessed with four model pledges, and now these four pledges are four model actives. Following the initiation, the active chapter entertained the initiated girls at a formal banquet at the Spink Arms Hotel. The alumnæ chapter was present and our alumnæ adviser, Mrs. Noble Hiatt was an honored guest. At this dinner was presented the scholarship award, a crested bracelet, which is handed down to the initiate with the highest scholarship. Ruth Lewis is the proud wearer of this bracelet. Harriet Ford received the activity award, a beautifully crested necklace, for having the greatest number of activities among the new girls. One can imagine that the active chapter is proud of the four new members, and confidentially, they seem awfully proud of us, too.

ALPHA XI

PLEDGES: Margaret Isaacs and Harriett Louise Copenhagen.

Very soon after our last letter to THE LAMP, we had a delightful visit from our province director, Mrs. John Ladd. She gave us many valuable suggestions to help us this year. Conferences with her made it possible for each one to get really acquainted, besides discussing problems of interest to the chapter. This was Mrs. Ladd's first visit to our chapter and we sincerely hope that she may visit us again soon.

Before the Christmas holidays the chapter gave a wiener roast for our new pledges. We left school early one afternoon and started out toward the mountains. We soon climbed to a lovely spot high up above the James River, where we could see for miles and miles around. Here we built our fire and played until sunset. At last we had to go back to school, tired and worn out, but what a wonderful time we had had!

A few days before vacation, we had our annual Christmas party down at the house. There was a Christmas tree, with presents galore and all the candies and nuts that go with Christmas. Distributing the presents was lots of fun for each had a clever little verse attached, and the gifts were very appropriate.

A few weeks ago Lillian Hardee was brought out by Omega. This is a secret society composed of the school's most attractive girls. Lillian was also in the cast of the Thanksgiving play.

Gade Hutaft, the Germany play. The German play is sponsored by the members of the German club.

Cara Sneed and Frances Spessard were recently elected to Pi Gamma Mu, the honorary social science fraternity.

Just now we are in the midst of midyear exams striving to keep our scholarship record. Delta Zeta almost won the Panhellenic Scholarship Cup this year. We were second place with an average of 90.6. Here's wishing every one who may be sharing this misery with us the best of luck.

March 30

INITIATES: Mary Salome Betts, Atlanta, Georgia; Margaret Isaacs, Richmond, Virginia; Harriett Louise Copenhagen, Washington, D.C.

HONORS: Katherine McLaughlin and Sue Byerly were recently elected members of Sock and Buskin, the dramatic club at Randolph-Macon.

Lillian Hardee has been selected one of the Queen's attendants in May Court.

Emma Gade Hutaft was chairman of a committee for Even Day, which is the biggest and most eventful day of the year, for all those graduating in even-numbered years.

Frances Spessard, Lillian Hardee, Mary Salome Betts, and Harriett Louise Copenhagen are included in the dean's list.

On February 27, we held our annual pledge banquet at Jenny's Tea Room in Lynchburg. The entire second floor was thrown en suite and effectively decorated, a color scheme of pink and green predominating. The theme of the banquet, which was carried out in the toasts and placecards, was the ship of Delta Zeta. Each pledge was given a lovely leather writing portfolio. Every year we seem to enjoy our banquet more than the year before, but this year it was even more so than ever, since so many of our alumnæ were here. Among those who came back were: Mrs. W. E. Thomas Mary Rebecca Wilson ('30), Elizabeth Hutaft ('31), Sara Mendenhall ('31), Elizabeth Hibbs (ex-'32), Elizabeth Bogle (ex-'32), Margaret Cheatham ('31); Almeda Garland ('27), Grace Haskins ('29), and Dr. Marjorie Harris, our faculty advisers; and Miss Marguerite Risley ('26), Alpha Kappa, Miss Virginia Burgess, Alpha Omicron.

Initiation took place the night after our banquet—a fitting climax to a week-end filled with entertaining our alumnæ.

ALPHA OMICRON

INITIATES: Margaret Bishop, Pocohontas, Virginia; Dorothy Chamblee, Gainesville, Georgia; Joan Enoch, Mount Sterling, Kentucky; Margaret Nelson, Bluefield, West Virginia; Estelle Scarborough, and Violet Scarborough, Greenville, South Carolina.

On Saturday, March 19, Alpha Omicron had a kitchen show celebrating the inauguration of a new kitchen in the house. The pledges served a lovely buffet supper to the chapter.

Margaret Adams, our retiring president, gave a very lovely piano recital, at four-thirty on Friday, March 11.

Marie McKinney, also a senior, has recently been elected to membership in Phi Beta Sigma, honorary academic fraternity. Marie is a member of one of the two varsity debate teams, and as such has helped Brenau win a debate against Alabama State Woman's College here. On April 18 she will go to Greensboro, North Carolina, and debate with the North Carolina College for Women.

Mildred Potter, a senior, gave her senior oratory recital, Loyalties, by John Galsworthy, at four-thirty Friday, March 18. Mildred is a member of one of the two varsity debate teams, and on April 15, will represent Brenau in a debate with the University of Florida at Gainesville, Florida. As a Zeta Phi Eta, national honorary oratory fraternity, she is taking the rôle of Colonel Pickering in Shaw's Pygmalion.

Are you telling me that Alpha Pi hasn't been doing things since the last LAMP letter was sent in? Well you're wrong. As usual we have been stacking up the ole honors. Just listen while I tell you:

But before we go into that, we simply must congratulate ourselves on having such a charming province director. Where they have had Mrs. Gerald Cowan hidden all this time is more than we can see, but at last she came to light and made Alpha Pi a "pop-call." We all fell in love with her at the very beginning and we hope that she won't go back into seclusion but will visit us again real soon.

In honor of Mrs. Cowan we gave a tea at the Pi Kappa Phi house. Even though the rain poured all afternoon numerous representatives from all fraternities and sororities on the campus called to meet our charming honoree. Anna Stuart Dupuy, our president, Isabel Hendon, president of the alumnae association, Sally (Janney) Eagles, alumnae adviser, and Mrs. Cowan received. The rest of the active chapter and the pledges served.

Our football season ended gloriously with Kathryn Davis, our famous redhead, as one of the maids at the last game when Howard defeated Duquesne University in a big way.

During the Christmas holidays holly and mistletoe and parties and dances and teas filled the picture. All the Delta Zetas apparently had a lovely time. They all came back to school full of pep and enthusiasm to start the new year off right.

Soon after school started again, our freshmen honored us with a wiener roast on Shades Mountain. After hotdogs, marshmallows, potato chips, and other good things to eat were taken care of, all the girls and their dates went to Marjorie Mauney's for a dance where several of the alumnae joined us. Thanks, freshmen! That was certainly starting the year off right for us.

Several weeks ago the dean of women of the college called a meeting of all the girls in school and organized the first women's student body to be had at Howard. Margaret Fitzpatrick was elected to serve as the first president of the organization. Here's hoping we can keep the honor among Delta Zetas.

Among those serving at a Y.W.C.A. tea given at Renfro Hall recently were Anna Stuart Dupuy and Margaret Fitzpatrick.

Ruth Carver, pledge, was recently elected to membership in Delta Kappa, honorary debating fraternity, of which Margaret Fitzpatrick is president.

The Crimson, Howard's weekly publication, has recently selected a design for a Crimson staff key. Delta Zetas eligible for these are: Majel Mangun, Frances Moseley, Marjorie Mauney, and Margaret Fitzpatrick.

We may not be girl scouts but our motto is still "Be Prepared." The last Saturday before Christmas holidays began we gave a spread in the chapter room for about twelve prospective freshmen for midterm. We will have two weeks rush with one party allowed. Our rush captain, Zou Steele Bass, has already made plans for a progressive dinner party to be followed with a dance. Prospects for rush material are very interesting.

On January 19 the Women's Panhellenic Association gave a tea in honor of the girls graduating from the local high schools. Our Panhellenic delegates, Anna Stuart Dupuy and Margaret Fitzpatrick, vice-president, were in the receiving line.

We have been having lots of fun mingled with our scholastic and academic endeavors as you can see from our letter. We would be delighted to have any of you come to see us and we assure you that you will be as proud of being a chosen one (a Delta Zeta) as we are. We'll be seeing you.

ALPHA RHO

HONORS: Phi Beta Kappa, Ella Richey Wells; Phi society, Mary Geibel; Orchesis (dancing honorary), Doris Benjamin; W.A.A., Doris Benjamin; Committee of 88, Lorraine Peiper; lead in Lady Windermere's Fan, Ella Richey Wells; technical staff for Lady Windermere's Fan, Jeannette Ash, Catherine Boring; technical staff for Criminal Code, Kay May Schmid, Catherine Boring; Wesleyan Players Reserve, Kay May Schmid.

Early in November, on a perfect autumn afternoon, the faculty gathered at the Delta Zeta rooms for tea. Miss Jessie McVey, our own faculty adviser and a Delta Zeta from Alpha Chapter, poured. After it was all over, we sat back, somewhat relieved to be sure, and congratulated ourselves on our social success. We believe our guests enjoyed themselves as much they seemed to, and they agreed with us about the attractiveness of our little apartment.

Christmas found us the happy possessors of a considerable addition to our silverware. Thank you, Cleveland alumnae! It is trite to say, "They are just what we needed," but these words are the truth.

Now with examinations just over and the new semester starting we are looking forward to our formal. It will be in the gymnasium of Stuyvesant Hall, the new dormitory for freshmen women. It is a "swanky" place and we shall have a party to match the place.

March 30

INITIATES: Margaret Grosser, Cleveland, Ohio.

HONORS: Phi society, Doris Benjamin; assistant stage manager of As You Like It, Ella Richey Wells; property crew of As You Like It, Kathryn May Schmid, Carolyn Rust; Monnett Day committees: posters, Elizabeth Duddleson; costumes, Elizabeth Ackerman, Evelyn Sauvey; flowers, Ellen Ackerman; folk dance, Mary Geibel; dance drama, Doris Benjamin; Spanish club, Blanche Monkosky, Evelyn Sauvey, Florence Paryzek; secretary of Spanish club, Elizabeth Ackerman; press club, Carolyn Rust; curriculum committee, Rosemary Cartmell.

The initiation ceremony, March 14, which made Margaret Grosser a real Delta Zeta, caused the seniors to feel rather sad. Some of us had taken part ever since we were sophomores and somehow it was hard to realize that that initiation was the last in which we would take an active part.

Then, too, elections made us feel antiquated and shelved. But we have capable successors. Let me introduce you to our new president, Jeanette Ash, a jolly and capable leader.

And now upon our work-laden shoulders we have thrust quite unexpectedly a rush week. Beginning April 17, there will be a delayed or, shall we say, an early season of rushing. But whether delayed or early, it is at least unexpected. As you probably know, last spring the authorities decreed that the sororities on O.W.U. campus should rush no freshmen this year. There have been a great many objections raised both by the first year women and the upperclass women. But we had made up our minds to bear the situation. Now upon two weeks' notice the faculty committee has decided that sororities shall have the opportunity to rush freshmen this spring. Needless to say this decision has thrown everything into a turmoil. Well, we can hope for a successful season and we shall have a group of preps again.

ALPHA SIGMA

PLEDGES: Mary Varn, Plant City, Florida.

After a glorious Christmas vacation, Alpha Sigma is back at work again, but minus Billy Adair, our vice-president and one of our most outstanding members, who was married to Bob Davis from Winter Garden, Florida, on January 13. Billy won many honors by her expert swimming—also she was athletic manager of the junior class, and a member of the "F" club. Although we will miss Billy with her friendly charm and lovely personality, we congratulate Bob, and wish for them both, the most happiness in the world.

Roberta Anson is our new vice-president and pledge supervisor, and with her working ability we can expect great and continued progress from the pledges.

During the holidays, many of the Alpha Sigma girls sponsored benefit dances and parties which were well attended by local people and guests from other parts of the state.

Daphne Stout and Billy Adair were hostesses at a tea-dance given at the Hotel Plant in Plant City on December 21. Everybody had such a good time, and some are talking about it yet and just wondering when the Delta Zetas will have another one there.

The Tampa girls gave a tea-dance at the Palma Ceia Golf Club in Tampa, on December 23. The active members of Alpha Sigma from Tampa and the Tampa Alumnae Club also gave a rush-tea at the home of Ruth and Jo Allen. About twenty-five rushes were invited, and rose corsages were used for favors.

The Jacksonville girls gave a benefit bridge party at the Seminole Hotel in Jacksonville.

Our National President, Mrs. Carl Grant

Mallot, stopped by to see us, Tuesday night, January 19, on her way to San Antonio. We were planning to have her with us for a long visit, but she would just stay long enough to tell us about her visit to Vest, National Panhellenic Congress, and then she said that she would see us at convention next July, in Asheville.

March 30

INITIATES: Marian Brantley, Nita Midgley, Helen Pittman, Hazel Brooks, Jean Boyd, Mary Varn, Margaret Truelsen, Rosalie Powell, Helen Verne Shaw, Margaret Tryon, Dorothy Edwards.

HONORS: Marian Brantley, freshman cabinet; Nita Midgley, freshman commission.

Eleven new initiates and imagine how proud Alpha Sigma was, to increase the chapter roll to 29 active members on March 5.

The initiation banquet was at the Floridan Hotel this year, and the honorees were presented with Fraternity Girls' Symphonies as favors. Marian Brantley won the scholarship cup, and Helen Verne Shaw was awarded a bracelet bearing the seal, by Peggy Murphy (our president) for having been chosen the best all-round pledge, by the chapter.

A week following initiation, the annual junior-senior prom was held, and Alpha Sigma entertained with a breakfast dance Saturday morning of that week-end. Only juniors and seniors have the privilege of enjoying prom week-end at F.S.C.W., so this year, the sophomores and freshmen were given permission for the first time, to have a Hop on the twenty-third of April, exclusively for them.

We will miss our seniors next year—Peggy Murphy, Margaret Roberts, and Roberta Anson who are graduating this June. Also Anne Matthews who will receive her L.I. degree then.

ALPHA TAU

Have you ever sold sandwiches in a swaying, jolting baggage-car? Well, we did. The Panhellenic here took the food concession on the otherwise dinnerless Thanksgiving Day University of Texas-Texas A. & M. special train. Two representatives from each sorority and some members of the Cowboys, University boys' pep organization, sold sandwiches, candy, apples, milk, and cold drinks at a counter in a baggage-car and from boxes carried up and down the train in true news-butcher fashion. It was work, all right, but it was fun, too. Our chaperon was one of the two asked by the dean of women to supervise the girls in the group, so she was "in the baggage-car ahead" with us also.

Just before Christmas we had an attractive Christmas bridge party with illuminated refreshments, plum pudding with a lighted red candle on each plate. And through January we have carried on. Our alumnae are treasurers; we'll match them against others anywhere.

Right now we are just at the end of the semi-annual torture week. Here examinations mean eligibility for rushing, and the whole campus is doggedly working and studying and breathlessly waiting to hear the results. The official list comes out on the tenth of February, and rush period comes six days later. We all feel like saying "Ora pro nobis"; but by the time this letter comes out our fate will already be settled. We have planned some very attractive rush parties: Chinese, Mexican, a vaudeville dinner, a studio dinner, and a Dresden the dansant. But the next letter will tell you all about them.

That same letter, we hope, will tell you of the beginning of a greater Alpha Tau. Until then, "good hunting!"

JOSLEEN LOCKHART, President

March 30

PLEDGES: Allene Horne, and Maurene Horne, Brownwood, Texas; Frances Eaves, and Frances Lockhart, Austin, Texas.

INITIATES: Kathryn Rich, Austin, Mrs. J. P. Buchanan, Junior, Brenham.

February and March have been busy months for us. On February 10 the eligibility lists were published, and in the week following invitations were sent out, accepted or declined, and rush week began. Half of the girls who declined invitations from us did so because they could not afford to go through rush week; consequently we were somewhat reconciled to their absence. All in all, however, we had a fairly successful time.

On the very first day of rush week, when everything was in more or less turmoil, our alumnae adviser, Catherine McFarlane, was in an automobile wreck. A car collided with the one she was driving, turned it over, and put her in the hospital with bruises and a wrenched shoulder for a day and a half. The wreck happened at noon, so you know what a task it was to perfect the plans for the party that afternoon at two o'clock, the first one of rush week, and for the dinner at the house that night. Miss Irene Boughton, who arrived from San Antonio in the midst of the confusion, simply took charge. Two charming affairs that day were finally achieved.

At Josleen Lockhart's home that afternoon a bridge party with Mexican decorations, favors, and refreshments entertained the rushees. The tallies had tiny birds made of real feathers on them. The rest of the "accessories" were in the same unusual spirit. That night at the house a dinner for twelve was served. The motif was Chinese; flying fish kites at the windows and red dragons on black banners on the walls were the decorations, and the food was real Chinese. The girls made the decorations and the tal-lies for the game afterward—"Shanghai," a variation of the game bunco.

The next evening a vaudeville dinner was given at the house. The chief feature of the evening, aside from the food, was a varied musical and stunt program which Miriam Landrum arranged for us. We had an exhibition of mind-reading, too, by Miriam. With amazing accuracy she read questions from slips of paper held out of sight behind her head, answered them, and told who the writers were. Want to know how it was done? Mental telepathy, of course, helped out by some canny sleight-of-hand. Then afterwards we danced a bit.

On the last day we had a Dresden thé dansant. Mrs. Campbell presided at the tea table dressed in a Dresden costume; she made a very dainty and a very charming porcelain figurine. We used pastel shades in the flowers and candles, and gave as favors little Dresden type plaques. Tea and dancing to the music of a stringed trio was the order of the afternoon. If there is anything prettier than waltzing in soft candle-light to the dulcet strains of "Dream Girl of Delta Zeta," I don't know what it is.

The next evening we had our pledge open-house with our four new pledges looking as sweet and pretty as anyone could wish, and the next week we held pledge services for them. Maurene and Allene Horne are twins, from Brownwood, Texas, freshmen, attractive, and fun-loving. Frances Lockhart, Austin, also a freshman, you alumnæ know as the little sister we have been watching so. She is a charming and capable youngster and a very lovable one. Frances Eaves, Austin, is a sophomore. She is a brisk little brunette, full of plans and energy, and withal a very attractive girl.

Early in March we gained another pledge, Mrs. J. P. Buchanan, Jr., whom we pledged and have subsequently initiated as an alumnæ member. She is a gracious and charming person, interested in the group, and an asset to any group to which she may belong. We are very glad to add her to our alumnæ of Alpha Tau.

Initiation services for her and for Kathryn Rich were held last week. Minelma Curling and Ruth Brown arrived just too late for the initiation, but in time to help welcome the new initiates and to join in the informal jollification which followed. Thus two new lamps are set burning on Texas campus.

Every other Friday since rush week we have had an informal open-house, and we are still busy rushing. That is a task that is never completely done.

The visits of several alumnæ have brightened our days: Ruth Brown, Minelma Curling, Virginia Rich, Louise Yeiser Streighton, Helen Buckley, and two from the University of Mississippi—Lyda Gordon Shivers and Mrs. H. C. Winter, both of whom were charter members of Beta Beta. The Mississippians made a flying visit over one week-end, and of course the Texans were kept extremely busy exhibiting the places of interest in Austin from the Ney Museum and the old French Embassy to the hills that make the city's "Violet Crown."

And as for the crown itself, it's really a beautiful sight to see these clear spring days at sunset.

PLEDGES: Clara Gordon, Colleen McDondald, Marguerite Morrison, Pearl Parsons, Ernestine Moore, Drusilla Roderick.

HONORS: Margaret Fowles, Phi Beta Phi, Phi Beta Kappa, president of Colvin Hall; Esther Moore, Phi Beta Kappa; Gilberta Watters, president of North Hall.

We are glad to add Phyllis Foss and Anne Franzen to our list of initiates since the last chapter letter, and to add a new list of pledges whom we hope to initiate soon.

Since rushing is really concentrated into two short weeks out of the whole year, it is a very busy time on the Maine campus. The first week everyone rushes the freshmen, but the second week is given over to parties, each sorority giving a party on a different night during the week. Our party came on a Sunday when we gave a bloodthirsty pirate party in Bangor. Many truly bloody looking pirates in intriguing costumes made merry for four hours, feasting, swaggering, treasure-hunting, singing, entertaining, and dancing piratically to the tune of an unpiratical Vic. Of course, this rushing party was really the grand climax for the several smaller parties and get-togethers of the previous week.

March 19 nine Delta Zetas gave a pledge dance in Oldtown in honor of our six pledges. A black and gold color scheme was worked out for decorations, the dance programs were made to represent an enlarged pledge pin, and even the refreshments were as near black and gold as possible and, as the saying goes, "a good time was enjoyed by all."

ALPHA PHI

PLEDGES: Sora Rardon, Lakin, Kansas; and Jean Altman, Berkeley, California.

INITIATES: Margaret Beaumont, Kansas City; Hazel Sharp, Kenneth; Katherine

Young, Kansas City, Missouri; and Gladys Kroesch, Enterprise, Kansas.

HONORS: Elsie Penfield is vice-president of Phi Chi Delta pledges and president of Delta Zeta pledges. She and Alice Gallup are both in the dean's choir. Alice is vice-president of Phi Chi Delta, a member of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet, and plays in the K.U. symphony orchestra. Pearl Herman is a member of the K.U. little symphony orchestra. Cece Goddard and Ole Swenson took part in the tableaux of the Christmas Vespers. Cece also played hockey on one of the color teams. Jean Altman is one of the three members of the third generation club and a member of the sophomore volleyball team. Katherine Morris has been nominated as one of the four candidates from the university for the national Sigma Delta Chi scholarship award. She is also treasurer of Theta Sigma Phi, national journalistic sorority. Dorothy Frederick is a member of Tau Sigma, dancing sorority, and has a part in the Music Hall of 1900, a production of the Kansas Players. Jane Livingston is a member of Jay Janes, women's pep organization, and Gladys Kroesch belongs to Le Cercle Français. Caroline Chaffee and Catherine Owen took part in fall rifle practice. Florine Eppstein was chairman of the committee in charge of the sale of tuberculosis seals on the campus just before Christmas. Foline is a graduate student in sociology.

We at K.U. have finished the first semester—no more finals for over four months and no lessons for a week. It seems a good time to look back and see just what we have been doing the last two and a half months.

The day of the Panhellenic exchange dinner, a semi-annual event on the campus, we sent representatives to the different sororities and in turn entertained their representatives that night. The dinner is intended to foster broader acquaintance among the fraternity women on the hill.

We held initiation services for four girls, then entertained them at breakfast. The next Sunday evening we had a steak fry in a grove about five miles out of town, and on Wednesday of that week Mrs. Baker, one of our patronesses, gave a tea for us at her home. The Tuesday following we served tea at the house for a small group of rushees.

After the Thanksgiving vacation we had charge of the weekly tea for university women. The next Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Werner, who was formerly a patroness, gave a tea for us at her home. We had our Christmas party at the house and frosted windows, silver icicles, a cotton snowman, banks of firs, and blue lights—the entire first floor was converted into a winter scene. The next Wednesday we invited our patronesses and town alumnae to a formal Christmas dinner, and on Thursday night had a farewell spread before the vacation.

Though we have been more than ordinarily busy with studying since the vacation, we have found time for a few activities. Two patronesses, Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Powell, have given teas for us, and we have entertained fraternity and sorority housemothers, patronesses, and a number of friends at a tea for our new housemother, Mrs. White. We won second place in basketball in our division, and tied for first place in volleyball. Dorothy Gordon Wheeler, a charter member of our chapter, was here with us for a few days.

March 30

PLEDGES: Caroline Chaffee, Stella Cutlip, Kansas City; Cora Raradon, Lakin.

INITIATES: Elsie Penfield, Arkansas City; Pearl Herman, Garden City; Kathleen Love, Hickman Mills, Missouri; Jean Altman, Berkeley, California; Rosa Lee Conrad, Eleanor Montgomery, Kansas City.

The coming of spring seems to inspire the girls of Alpha Phi—new activities are coming one after another. Cora Raradon is the newly elected secretary of Y.W.C.A. and has pledged dramatic club. Alice Gallup was recently initiated into Mu Phi Epsilon, honorary musical sorority, and has been elected secretary of the sorority. Katherine Morris is a candidate for the national Sigma Delta Chi award, and she is a member of the senior cap and gown committee. Elizabeth Brandt has pledged Quill, national writing fraternity. Dorothy Frederick is in charge of the dancing in the W.S.G.A. musical comedy. She has also been an active member of Tau Sigma, national dancing sorority for two years. Jean Altman is a member of Sigma Eta Chi, Congregational women's sorority. Elsie Penfield is a member of the industrial commission of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet, and has just been elected treasurer of Phi Chi Delta, Presbyterian women's sorority. Gladys Kroesch is the new vice-president of Wesley Foundation. Jane Livingston is a new initiate of Jay Janes, women's pep organization.

Half of our second semester has gone now, and commencement seems not so far off. Six girls of Alpha Phi are to graduate this June, Jane Livingston, Mary Livingston, Katherine Morris, Hazel Sharp, Katherine Young, and Eleanor Montgomery. But before they go, we have our spring formal on May 14, and Janette Frowe's wedding on April 17. And the very last event of the year will be alumnae day on Sunday, June 5.

JEAN TAYLOR, President

ALPHA CHI

PLEDGE: Geraldine Mathews.

HONORS: Sara Lacey has just been initiated into Kappa Phi Sigma. Geraldine Mathews and Geneva Mason went Phi Epsilon Pi. Phillis Pennington and Grace Mary Ketcham are pledges of University Dramatics Society.

We had a most enjoyable evening November 8 when we entertained our pledges and their parents at dinner. We found the affair a wonderful success. We hope to make it a tradition for each semester. On November 13 we had an informal house dance with all the attraction of glowing outdoor fires and starry skies over lily pools and patio swings.

November 20 was exciting for on this day the campus had homecoming for alumni, and all the sororities held festive open-house dances in the evening. We enjoyed seeing all our guest alumnæ and gave them little boutonniere football men, hot chocolate, and football sandwiches to spur them on for the next day's game. The same day our Mothers' Club entertained with a fifty table benefit bridge for us, most successfully.

On December 2 our charming patron and patroness, Dr. and Mrs. Bjork, honored us with bridge in their home. The last Monday night before Christmas vacation we had delicious turkey and lots of trimmings and guests. It was fun. December 10 we had our informal party for Christmas, tree, carols, and general good cheer. We received lovely house gifts in addition to the goofy ones we give after drawing names. We are buying andirons for our living room, an appropriate gift, I think. December 11 our pledges gave us what they called a "Mother Goose" party with dinner. Everyone wore an appropriate costume. The following night our Christmas formal dance was a great success under a blanket of silver stars and much ice and blue lights everywhere. It was lovely and in our own house.

On January 9 we had quite a worthwhile benefit dance, which was the last social affair of the semester.

In connection with benefits, our Mothers' Club has just raffled off a beautiful handmade quilt for us. Also, the last Saturday in each month our alumnæ are sponsoring a bridge tournament with a very small fee and a different quartet of hostesses for each affair, a cash prize for both men and women to be given.

At present we are completing our plans for concentrated rushing, which follows finals. We are having a tea and pirate breakfast the week preceding formal rush week. Then we are to have a formal dream tea, a Mother Goose party with stuffed calico animals for favors, a formal cabaret dinner, a Mexican bridge, the traditional Delta Zeta wedding, and the final formal dinner. So you see, we have plenty to think about.

But do let us tell you two things that kept us thinking for days. Many engagements—and snowfall in Los Angeles. Yes!

On our campus. The first time in fifty-four years. So please don't mind if you hear about it in several more letters.

March 30

PLEDGES: Jean Benson, Ruth Miller, Anna Ubbe.

INITIATES: Mary Cast, Gracemary Ketcham, Claire Koffel, Sara Lacy, Dorothy Lindsey, Geneva Mason, and Geraldine Mathews.

HONORS: Hazel Wisdom pledged to Pi Kappa Sigma, educational sorority; Geneva Mason and Geraldine Mathews initiated into Phi Upsilon Pi, general elementary sorority; Mary Cast initiated into Alpha Chi Delta, economic sorority.

A lot of good things have been coming our way. In the first place, a wonderfully successful rush season brought us three darling girls whom we were ever so proud to formally present to the campus on February 29. We carried out a yellow and violet color scheme and had dancing for the entertainment.

On March 14 we entertained the new Pledges, their parents, and Dr. and Mrs. David Bjork at dinner. On March 16 members and pledges enjoyed a lovely evening of bridge as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Bjork.

The stroke of midnight on the 19th brought us seven new lamps, and I do believe that we are more thrilled about them than their owners, if that is possible. In the wee small hours we celebrated the occasion with a waffle breakfast. In the evening we were highly honored at the banquet by the presence of Rene Sebring Smith who was among the speakers.

Just now we are busy selling tickets for the theater benefit we are having on April 13 at the Hollywood Playhouse, which is now showing Edward Everett Horton in Springtime for Henry. Needless to say, we are hoping for a tremendous success.

ALPHA OMEGA

Millsaps College has no freshman or sophomore girls other than town students. The out-of-town girls attend Whitworth College at Brookhaven, Mississippi, which is affiliated with Millsaps. Many of our pledges are from there and were quite outstanding. Ann Lewis, Oneita Winstead, and Juanita Winstead are members of Phi Theta Kappa. Ann was in the college quartet, a member of Y.W.C.A. cabinet, and on the annual staff. Oneita was vice-president of sophomore class, member of Alpha Sigma Delta and Round Table. Juanita was president of student body, member of Alpha Sigma Delta and Round Table. Juanita Lane is a member of Chaminade Club. Adamae Partin is on the basketball team and took the lead in A Considerable Courtship this year.

We are very proud of five of our girls who are among the fifty students having highest averages for first nine weeks of this year. They are Evelyn Myers, Mary Wacaster, Elizabeth Parker, Thyrsa Branton, and Ann Lewis.

The pledges of Alpha Omega entertained the chapter at a delightful cabaret party shortly before Christmas. The Christmas idea was carried out in the decorations and to start off the fun a clever game, similar to hearts, was played using D-E-L-T-A Z-E-T-A. The cabaret was complete in every detail from the password in order to gain admittance to the clever little bar.

It has been our custom to have a Christmas party each year just before the holidays at which time we have a Christmas tree and exchange gifts. However, this year we felt that we should do good with our gifts so we "adopted" a family whose father and husband is in the hospital. To these we gave those things which they needed.

Since THE LAMP is the only means by which many Delta Zetas learn of the whereabouts of others from their chapter I will give a brief résumé of some of our alumnae who have recently changed addresses. Sidney Brame is doing graduate work in physical education at Peabody College. Bessie Givens will receive her master's from Vanderbilt in June. Jane Lamb is teaching in Batavia, New York. Gladys Bond Blaine is living in New Orleans. Trella Mae Burnham, Fred Alma Hutchinson, and DeLacey McMurray, all graduates of last year, are teaching in Mississippi. Olga La Branche is teaching in Meridian.

We are now having midterm examinations and hope to show you a long list of initiates in the next LAMP.

INITIATES: Thyrsa Branton, Greenville, Mississippi; Elizabeth Heitman, Bolton, Mississippi; Adamae Partin, Meridian, Mississippi; Sarah Stevens, Jackson, Mississippi; Juanita Winstead, De Kalb, Mississippi; and Oneita Winstead, De Kalb, Mississippi.

HONORS: Oneita Winstead, secretary glee club; Juanita Winstead, treasurer glee club; Adamae Partin, chairman stunt committee for April Fools' Day Frolic; Glenna Moore, vice-president college symphony orchestra.

We are well represented in the glee club, Mary Wacaster, Elizabeth Heitman, Elizabeth Parker, Dorothy Thompson, Hazel McPhail, Douglas Banks, Ann Lewis, Thyrsa Branton, Oneita and Juanita Winstead, Juanita Lane, Sarah Stevens, and Glenna Moore being members.

Alpha Omega had initiation at midnight on March 8 at the home of Glenna Moore since the chapter room is too small to permit an initiation service to be held there. After the initiation everyone went to the home of the president for the initiation banquet which was simple but effective. We were delighted to have six alumnae with us. We are sorry to lose two of our girls, Ruth Forman and Ruth Sarrett, who dropped out second semester.

Next week the chapter is having its first post-lenten party. It will be a bridge party given at Catherine Lamkin's and the chapter will have prospective rushees as guests. Mary Wacaster, our president, set a splendid example of scholarship for the rest of us by being among the eighteen students on the campus to make all ones for the first semester. Elizabeth Heitman was awarded a gold bracelet with the Delta Zeta crest by the chapter for having the highest average among the pledges. The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity held a reception on the Roof Garden of the Robert E. Lee Hotel, on their Founders' Day, in honor of Mr. Robert A. Symthe, national treasurer of Pi Kappa Alpha. Mary Wacaster in the receiving line, and Catherine Lamkin and Glenna Moore serving, were chosen from Delta Zeta. It was one of the brilliant affairs this semester, and we were very proud to be asked to assist them.

On April 1 Millsaps College always has a day of frolic and several of the Delta Zetas are taking prominent parts. They are: Julia Cox, Dorothy Thompson, Adamae Partin, and Hazel McPhail.

BETA ALPHA

PLEDGES: Alice Ventrone, '35, Providence, Rhode Island.

Beta Alpha gave a delightful Christmas party for its pledges. It took place in the little lodge that was illuminated only by a bright fire in the fireplace and burning candles set around the room. Everyone brought a ten-cent gift or joke accompanied by a poem or short limerick, and they were usually quite personal and funny, often quite cleverly portraying a distinctive characteristic about the individual for whom it was written.

The tree was a good sized cedar with tiny blue berries still on the branches. Helen Soule and Elinor Streeter went out into the woods and got it themselves and it was great fun chopping it down and lugging it back. Those who simply go out and buy one at the nearest corner miss the thrill one receives in chopping down one's own Christmas tree.

The entertainment committee with Ruth Newman, chairman, put on a little skit that was in keeping with the spirit of Christmas. Later we enjoyed sandwiches and cocoa prepared by Charlotte Waters and Virginia Cooper. We spent the rest of our time singing Delta Zeta songs around the fireplace. If you have never turned out your lights and gathered before fireplace for a sing you have certainly missed a thrilling experience in good fellowship.

On January 6, the freshman pledges gave the chapter a Twelfth Night party. The invitations were paper cakes that looked quite tempting. It seems that on Twelfth Night everybody gets together and a king for the evening is chosen. This is done by passing among the guests pieces of cake, one of which contains a bean. Whoever draws the bean becomes king for the evening. He in turn chooses a queen, two attendants and a jester. The king then calls upon the jester to furnish the entertainment for the evening. The following people comprised the court: king, Elinor Streeter; queen, Marian Coggeshall; attendants, Helen Soule, Rena Simonini; jester, Bernice Callaghan. The entertainment in charge of Lynette Goggin consisted of a reading by Mary C. Hersey, "Jerry, the Bobbin Boy," and a skit, "Pockey Huntus," play by Janet Macomber, Helen McKechnie, Shirley Newman, Helen Phillips, Lynette Goggin, Irma Wagner, Ruth McCoy, Bunny Kelly, Meredith Scattergood, Connie Willis, Connie Hamilton, Eloise Fairchild, Amy Janes, Alice Ventrone, Mary C. Hersey. Refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, and cupcakes were enjoyed.

In the recent senior class votings three of our girls carried off honors. Catherine Regan was voted the most popular girl on campus, the biggest politician, the most versatile, and the most collegiate. Bernice Callaghan was voted the most original and the wittiest girl. Mary MacDonald was voted the most pious.

Several of our girls are expected to "make" the varsity basketball team this year. These include Charlotte Waters, Marion Bishop, Bob Spaulding, Skitch Roger, Lyn Goggin, and Shirley Newman.

March 30

INITIATES: Virginia Cooper, '34, Point Judith, Rhode Island; Mary MacDonald, '32, Providence, Rhode Island; Lynette Goggin, '35, Warren, Rhode Island; Janet Macomber, '34, New Haven, Connecticut; Mary A. Hersey, '35, Waterford, Maine; Ruth McCoy, '35, Hope Valley, Rhode Island; Eloise Fairchild, '35, Providence, Rhode Island.

The month of March has been, for Beta Alpha, one of the busiest in its history, for it has been engaged in the formalities of opening our new house.

On February 10 we packed up our trunks and suitcases, filled our wastebaskets with books, pencils, and rulers, and moved en masse into our new sorority house.

On February 23 at our first tea we introduced our patrons and patronesses to our new housemother, Miss Mabel Dickson of Childs, Pennsylvania, and incidentally to our house. They seemed very much interested in it as a finished product for they had given inestimable help in the planning of it.

On the evening of March 12, we again opened our doors to guests in our formal house-opening dance. We did not decorate, but kept the house in the full beauty of its new furnishings. Our patrons and patronesses included Dr. and Mrs. Kinney, Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Dr. and Mrs. Odeland, Professor Rockefeller, Miss Mabel E. Dickson, and Mrs. Andrew J. Newman.

During the afternoon of March 19 neighbors and friends from far and near gathered at the house for formal inspection. Flowers and various gifts from faculty, associations, and friends were in evidence. What a thrill it was and how nice it was to hear all the fine things people had to say about the house!

On the afternoon following we again opened our doors to our mothers and fathers, a more intimate inspection than the one the day before.

That night, Sunday, we held initiation. An impressive affair to end a series of glamorous social events.

We are proud to mention Charlotte Waters, Ruth McCoy, Shirley Newman, Eloise Fairchild, Margaret Newman, and Constance Hamilton, as a few of the best shots in the Women's Rifle Association this year.

BETA BETA

We were delighted to have Mrs. Cowan visit us. Social affairs were given where she met the patronesses and alumnae of Beta Beta. We think her charming, and she was more like a visiting sister than an Inspector.

Lona Cathey from Alpha Gamma Chapter visited Beta Beta. It is always a pleasure to know sister Delta Zetas. Louis Tribble, an alumna from Hammond, Louisiana, was back on the campus before the Christmas holidays.

We are very much pleased that all the pledges made their averages the first semester. We are planning to have many of the alumnae come back for the initiation. We hope to have initiation the first of March.

Mary Louise Puffer is treasurer of Woman's Student Government. She is also president of Panhellenic Council on the university campus.

March 30

We have had the pleasure of visits from several of our alumnae. Myrtle Mason, a former president of Beta Beta, spent a week-end with us recently. Joan Connerly Winter came down from New York City and will be here for initiation. Mrs. Winter and Lyda Gordon Shivers drove to Austin, Texas, during the Ole Miss Spring Holidays. They reported abundant Texas hospitality from the Texas Delta Zetas.

Mrs. Charles Ward, an alumna member, entertained Beta Chapter and the patronesses at a bridge party on Washington's Birthday. The decorations cleverly carried out the sentiment of the day.

We are proud to announce that Louise Wooten was one of the few co-eds to make the university honor roll, having 60 per cent A's.

BETA GAMMA

PLEDGES: Fannie Arthur, Billie Irvin, Ethel Jones, Fannette Lindsay, Anna Ruth Numan, Irma Echanzenbacher, Evelyn Parker Tharp.

INITIATE: Mary Margaret Short.

Early in December we entertained at luncheon for the "Y" club of our campus. Each sorority has a turn at taking charge of the meals, which are served every Tuesday noon.

We have been gaining much recognition on the campus this term. Elsa Baumgarten was elected head of archery, president of the sophomore class, and appointed chairman of the publicity committee of W.S.G.A. for the year. Florence Hagman was elected treasurer of the junior class.

On December 22, we gave our annual Christmas formal at the Kentucky Hotel; and on December 28 our annual bridge for all the alumnae of Delta Zeta in the city at the time.

On December 30, Mrs. Laurance Grauman, formerly Katherine Heine, held open-house for the alumnae chapter and the actives. We all were very much taken with her adorable apartment.

Delta Zeta got many nice Christmas presents this year, among them an electric clock from Mr. and Mrs. Warren Strohmenger. Now, we have no excuses for getting to classes late.

March 30

PLEDGES: Helen Miller and Mary Jean Newhall.

Life, for the last few months, has been hecticly crammed with tests, term papers, Easter preparations, pledgings, and what-not for Beta Gamma. To start it all with a whirl and a dash, we held our rush party, a formal rose dinner, at the Kentucky Hotel on Monday night, February 8, 1932. Rush, itself, ended on Tuesday, February 9, at four o'clock in the afternoon.

On February 12, we pledged Mary Jean Newhall, and on March 7, we held pledge services for Helen Miller. Pledging is getting to be more or less a matter of routine with us by this time. I might add, unlike most routine work, it's both satisfying and satisfactory, which is just as it should be. Helen Miller has already been elected president of Freshman Panhellenic.

On Monday, March 21, we had our annual election of officers. Our new president is Virginia Durham, and our new vice-president Elsa Baumgarten. Our rush captain is now Edna Lang, with Evelyn Parker Tharp as assistant. Fannie Arthur will take her bow in the next LAMP letter as our chapter editor. With such an able staff of officials, we are looking forward to great days for Beta Gamma.

On April 1, we are initiating six girls, and this year we lose two by graduation. Nevertheless, our future certainly looks great to us.

FLORENCE HAGMAN, President

BETA DELTA

PLEDGES: Elizabeth Sanders, '35, Columbia, South Carolina; Genevieve Reynolds, '33, Lamar, South Carolina.

Genevieve Reynolds, one of our newest pledges, has been elected exchange editor of the Gamecock, of which Josephine Griffin, another of our pledges, was elected social editor. Josephine has also recently been elected censor of the Euphrosynean Literary Society, one of the oldest and most conservative organizations on the university campus.

The outstanding social event of our pre-Christmas season was a Thanksgiving costume masquerade which we gave the Friday before that holiday. Shaded lights! Autumn leaves of red, brown, and gold scattered with green, sweet-smelling pine throughout the whole downstairs floor of our house lent a festive atmosphere of the "Gobbler's Day" that could not be resisted. A snowy Juliet and a bronze Japanese maid were seen conspiring in a corner with a Harlequin and a Mr. Cotton Mather, while pirates, clowns, and what have you, swung madly through the rooms, going through the contortions peculiar to the execution of the southern dance steps. Eventually everyone gathered up her inhibitions and sallied forth into a moonlit night—to talk about it for days afterwards.

Just before the Christmas holidays we had a delightful Christmas tree, a Santa Claus, presents, and all the things which provide the Yuletide spirit. Glistening apples, oranges, and Christmas goodies were served as we opened the funny, appropriate little presents which we gave to each other.

Since the holidays, however, there have been few activities on the campus due to the preparation for examinations which are over this week. In this extended period of "rest" and quiet, we have acquired gallons of pent-up energy to throw into mid-winter "rushing," which begins February 8.

March 30

PLEDGES: Emily Evans, Columbia, South Carolina; and Sara Trenholm, Georgetown, South Carolina.

Edythe Carlisle of Carteret, New Jersey, was chosen president of our chapter for next year, which we know will be a successful one under her capable guidance.

Juddie Knox has been unanimously re-elected to the university student board of publications by the Euphrosynean Literary Society, of which she is vice-president. Juddie is also a member of the Y.W.C.A. cabinet.

Elizabeth More is secretary of this same literary society, whose membership is composed of representatives of the leading sororities on the campus along with a few non-sorority girls.

Sarah Bolick and our new pledge, Emily Evans, who has just moved to Columbia from Charlotte, North Carolina, were elected into the Damas Club, the only girls' dancing organization on the campus, in fact, quite "snooty." This club is giving its spring dance next week and it will be the outstanding social event of the college season. Dorothy Byrd is vice-president of this organization.

Sarah Bolick has also been initiated into the Quintilian Club, which is petitioning Tri Sigma, national honorary educational fraternity.

Many of our girls have had recent experiences on the stage, performing in various capacities. Maude C. Gittman and Nellie Cooper took leading parts in So This Is London, which was staged by the Palmetto Players, a dramatic club on the campus, of city-wide and state-wide fame.

Nellie Cooper and Dorothy Byrd were seen recently in several scenes of the Follies of 1932, which is given each year by the Junior League of Columbia. Nellie is also taking part in the Frolies of the Year, an annual musical show given on the campus by the Palmetto Players.

Dorothy Byrd, who broadcasts frequently over WIS, was also the concert violinist in the orchestra for the Junior League Follies.

Partly in honor of our new alumnae adviser, Marguerite Abel, Columbia, South Carolina, but mostly in honor of our patronesses and mothers, Beta Delta entertained with a delightful tea, which was preceded by a regular meeting of the members and the guests of honor. Musical selections and speeches were given by various members, and so successful was the entertainment that it has been decided to hold such a get-together each month.

BETA EPSILON

Beta Epsilon Chapter has found a very happy method of combining its pleasure with its money-making activities. We have decided as a definite policy to give small card parties at the house every two or three weeks. The parties are held on the night of regular chapter meeting so that in addition to bringing us a certain sum of money they are an inducement for our alumnae members to come to meetings. Beside the members, there are usually a few friends of Beta Epsilon present, and we form a happy group indeed.

The alumnae club, which we mentioned as a project in our last letter, is now a very alive reality, having held its initial meeting on the first Monday of December with Margaret Ahern as hostess. We feel that the meeting was a very great success, and not a little of our pleasure in it can be credited to Peggy, who managed everything and all of us so capably that we were not even conscious of being managed.

Our second alumnae meeting was held at the house with equal success on January 11, at which time Maryrose Boyle and Jeanne Pericat were our hostesses. We propose to entertain the active members at some meeting in the immediate future.

In previous years Beta Epsilon Chapter has always celebrated Christmas by a dance. This year we decided to change the program by playing games. Our entertainment committee discovered some very novel ones which kept everyone interested. Attractive prizes rewarded those who were quickest and most ingenious. All of this sent us home to our holidays with the feeling that there could be only good in store for us in the Christmas season and in the new year.

March 30

Very soon after the examination period was over we gave a big card party at the French Grotto. An excellent orchestra provided music for the many who preferred dancing to cards or who desired to dance between games. At the close of the evening a gay little supper was served. This affair had been planned with the double purpose of adding a certain sum to the balance on our treasurer's report and of getting together all the members and friends of Beta Epsilon for a happy evening. We are very glad to be able to say that it succeeded admirably in both.

On February 20, Mrs. B. Vernon Dale, still, I think, remembered as Carolyn Lockry, gave a bridge and shower for Ted Casey whose wedding is planned for the early summer. This was the first occasion on which most of us had seen Carolyn's new apartment so we were compelled to divide our admiration between the happy way in which she entertained us and the charm of her home.

Carolyn and Ted together were our hostesses at the March meeting of the alumnae club, combining their efforts to make the evening a tremendous success. On this occasion we were entertained by the alumnae members for the first time. We are very glad to have them with us in the fullness of comradeship which is the true spirit of Delta Zeta.

BETA ZETA

INITIATES: Betty Beesley, Karma Holt, Margaret Kephart, Owen McCullough, Jean Peters, Virginia Trunkey, Hattie Westphal, Jean Wooley.

PLEDGES: Lucretia Hart, Helen Clive, Jean Loftis, Mildred Wolters, Idalee Wooley.

HONORS: Marjorie Augustine, Phi Kappa Phi, second highest in the school of education; Rosalind Pidge, Orchesis, honorary dancing society; Phyllis Prater, secretary of newly organized Panhellenic, awarded W.A.A. sweater for proficiency in athletics.

With eight new enthusiastic initiates already acquainted with Delta Zeta ambitions and five splendid new pledges, Beta Zeta Chapter is eagerly anticipating events of the winter and spring months. Convention plans, spring rushing, new furniture, a formal dinner-dance, all the events which seemed such nebulous dreams last fall in our discussions, are fast becoming realities. This autumn for the first time since our installation, Mrs. Friedline, our present province inspector, attended a Beta Zeta initiation. This ceremony followed so quickly after the scheduled birthday banquet that we decided to combine the two events, and an elaborate formal dinner climaxed the ceremony, lovely and significant. Our social chairman, Kathleen Hall, had planned the details with Ruth Wilson. Each rose in the mammoth basket centering the table was a tiny favor corsage. Chatting, laughing, exchanging gay reminiscences with Mrs. Friedline and the alumnae, our Delta Zeta actives discovered a new meaning in our sorority pledge.

One of our new initiates, Jean Peters, was elected to take over all duties for the winter rush season, and "Pete," jolly as Old

Nick himself made us pronounce each succeeding party our very friendliest Delta Zeta affair. Her "Heart of Delta Zeta Dinner" carried out in Valentine colors, was an outstanding success. Right in the center of the table was a great red heart; extending to every place were crimson crêpe ribbons with miniature hearts fastened at the ends. On the back were written cryptic sentences doubly significant to those who are members of the sorority. Our rushees hurled the questions at us from the backs of their cards: "Is it fun to be a Delta Zeta?" "Does Ted like the Delta Zetas?" "Will you sing your favorite Delta Zeta song?" But the event of events came the Thursday before silence, when a carnation banquet was held in Farmington. (It is the custom for run-away brides in Utah to pledge in Farmington, you know.) The atmosphere was conducive to Delta Zeta pledging, too.

Our prestige in athletics has not lessened this winter, for we are capturing both individual and group awards. Our president, Phil Prater, was awarded the W.A.A. sweater, symbolic of outstanding skill in athletics. We won the volleyball tournament, and a miniature silver cup now stands on our mantel with the rest of the honor silver. Last spring we won the traveling trophy for intramurals; points toward a second capture are mounting high.

Just two years ago Roberta Pace, then an active, promoted the idea of a building fund, and the impetus given the project then has gained new strength this season. Just recently Mrs. Leatherwood, the widow of our former Congressman from Utah, and a patroness of Delta Zeta, wrote that she desired to contribute $200 toward the fund. Before many years we hope to announce through THE LAMP that Delta Zeta is building a home instead of renting a house.

March 30

HONORS: Rosalind Pidge has been initiated into Alpha Beta Theta, honorary literary sorority; Phyllis Prater has been chosen as the first secretary of the newly organized Panhellenic on the campus; Marjorie Augustine won first place in the Paramount Writing Contest.

During the past week Utah campus has been the scene of hilarious entertainment and farcical initiation, for the senior members of the Engineering School have been admitted into the "ancient and honorable Order of St. Patrick." While the whole celebration is traditionally climaxed by the selection of the Queen by popular ballot and her crowning at the annual ball, activities continue for an intire week. Margaret Kephart, who has been recently elected vice-president of Beta Zeta, was chosen candidate for the honor, but Charlene Scowcroft, a popular Pi Phi nominee, was victor in the final contest, and it was she who dubbed each engineer a knight, requested that he kiss the "blarney" stone, and reigned while a significant fraternal swat was planted upon the candidate by the "ruler of the slide rule" clad in Scotch kilts.

This year those who were the first Delta Zeta pledges graduate in June, and authority was definitely passed to our younger members with the results of the elections announcing that Jean Peters was our new president. Jean sponsored a successful and unique rush week during the winter quarter, and indications are that next year under her leadership will be a banner year for our chapter.

With the delayed rush week established on our campus, little work can be done with the freshmen until the middle of the spring quarter. Although favors, corsages, and elaborate hotel parties have been banned through presidential order and intersorority decision, Delta Zeta plans for spring promise to uphold former tradition so far as distinctiveness and attractiveness of social affairs are concerned. Our formal banquet is commanding most attention. The committee plans to hold it at a lovely country home, and it will be given just as the spring flowers are most attractive. A "Mickey and Mouse" luncheon idea may have possibilities as a theme, too. The whole theme for rushing this year which has permeated the chapter and our rushees too, is Delta Zeta a growing sorority. Not staid traditions, not aged customs, but opportunity to build and to make an ideal a reality is the thing we are offering our pledges this spring.

Our girls still hold the enviable position of first in the winning of the intramural tournament cup. Last year it was awarded to us, but in order to have the trophy permanently it is necessary to win it three times in succession. We at the present time have more points than any other sorority group. We won first place in the bowling contest, but instead of awarding the customary cup the W.A.A. council decided to give a silver sugar and creamer. To win both pieces one must win two contests. At the present we have the sugar bowl and the girls are hoping to have the set before rushing begins. Only baseball remains as a group sport, but the pledge team is challenging the actives. Thus much practice is being secured.

The local sororities have been granted national charters since our last letter to THE LAMP; Delta Epsilon, one of the oldest groups on the campus, is now Tri Delta; and Gamma Sigma will soon be installed as Delta Gamma.

BETA ETA

With a hearty cheer for Father Winter who's been hiding his face around the corner and is only now venturing out to nip certain indiscreet spring bulbs, we put away our roller skates and began to wonder how long it will take the ice to freeze solid! But while we're wondering there are examinations to take and term papers to write and courses to "cram" for which we haven't bothered about since enrolling in them last September. And as these crucial times approach the rhythm of our days speeds up an extra notch and we drink black coffee (from which every speck of caffeine has been removed) and set our alarm clocks for five-thirty in the morning and invade empty classrooms with our typewriter instead of resting in the library where we can watch all the "college cases" between naps.

But, fearing the evil psychological effect of too much work all at once, we simply force ourselves to stop occasionally and do—just nothing at all but think, perhaps, of the highlights in this year's social calendar. And who can help thrilling with a little reminiscent flutter when the evening of December 12 comes to mind? It was our fall dance, of course, which was held at a cosy little inn not so far from the town of Swarthmore. We had it "informal," they're the nicest kind unless you're trying to make a big impression, and everyone did have such a good time!

Christmas wouldn't be quite real without a party or some jollification and this year we decided to make it a "carol sing" around a tiny, pungent-smelling Christmas tree. There were games, bridge, dancing, and refreshments and we all went away with mixed feelings of holly, candles, and "peace on earth" which seemed blended into a bright, warm friendliness for all the world.

But we haven't been just enjoying ourselves or sticking consistently to books, we have been getting some splendid first-hand practice in the forensic art! Mighty things are being wrought on Swarthmore campus! The whole fraternity situation has been brought up and everybody's pet prejudices have at last come to a head in the formulation of four definite plans to improve the social situation in the college. It is suggested that we expand fraternities to include everyone, that we restrict them to take in less than half of the freshman class, that we introduce sophomore rushing or, finally, that we abolish fraternities altogether! Beta Eta has not been slow in participating in the numerous lengthy discussions and voicing her opinion. Every good fraternity member, to whatever national group she may belong, wants the best possible thing for the college as a whole and we certainly hope that a satisfactory solution will be worked out in the end. This is a battleground for the testing of fraternities as organizations and we are trying to use the most admirable qualities we have as Delta Zetas. Wish us "Godspeed" ye more experienced chapters!

March 30

"For, lo, the winter is past;
The rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth,
The time of the singing of birds is come,
And the voice of the turtle-dove is heard in our land; . . ."

So with laughter, music, and gaiety, Beta Eta Chapter ushered in the spring season with a formal dance held at Cynwyd Club, March 19. Five of our alumnæ breezed in to help us appreciate Anderson's orchestra to the full and the chaperons found themselves on the dance floor most of the evening—the music was so "catchy."

At last Swarthmore has solved the fraternity question! Solved is, perhaps, a rather strong term to use. The college at large could not agree upon any of the plans suggested and so a small student committee and the Dean of Women, Mrs. Blanchard, have declared what amounts to a moratorium which will last from now until next spring. There will be no fraternity activities in the fall except regular meetings and one dance during the course of the year, no pledging of freshmen until February or March when the whole problem will be brought up again for discussion. It is hoped that by curtailing fraternity activities in this way there will be a decided improvement in the social life of the college as a whole. At all events we are much relieved to have something definite decided!

News reaches us from Brown University that Margaret Gurney, one of Beta Eta's charter members, has just been awarded a scholarship for a year in Europe. She will take her Ph.D. in some branch of advanced mathematics. Best wishes and congratulations from all of us, Mig! We can boast another ambitious graduate, Mary Betts, '31, who is studying for the bar at the University of Pennsylvania and is most enthusiastic about it all. Not to mention several other of our alumnæ who are engaged in "guiding the mental development of America's youth" and whose pupils range anywhere from nursery-school Indian babies on an Arizona reservation to sophisticated high school seniors.

BETA THETA

PLEDGES: Mrs. Florence Beckworth Miller, Mrs. Marguerite Rathmel Waggoner, and Louise Curtis.

It has been quite a long time since I have had a chat with you, so of course I have heaps to tell you.

First of all, we gave a tea on November 11 for Mrs. Stolz. I believe I told you before that Mrs. Stolz is our faculty adviser. We wanted her to become acquainted with our patronesses, so thought a tea would be a good idea. We held our tea in the living-room of Hunt Hall. Several baskets of fall flowers served as our decorations, and really, they were quite pretty.

November 14 was Homecoming. Quite a few of our alumnæ were back, and it certainly was pleasant to see them again. We had a regular reunion!

November 15 we pledged Mrs. Florence Beckworth Miller and Mrs. Marguerite Rathmel Waggoner. Both of these alumnæ were Zeta Gamma Tau girls, and we were delighted to pledge them to Delta Zeta.

November 24 we held our pledge dance. I believe everyone would agree with me when I say we had a marvelous time. It was an informal dance given the night before we went home for Thanksgiving, and everyone was in a happy frame of mind.

After the dance on November 24 we pledged Louise Curtis, another Zeta Gamma Tau alumnæ.

December 17 our pledges gave us a Christmas party in the chapter room. Each of us brought a ten-cent gift and put it in a basket as we entered the room. Then the basket was placed in the middle of the floor and each girl walked up and took something. We had heaps of fun unwrapping our gift, and showing each other what we had drawn. Refreshments were toasted cheese sandwiches and chocolate milk, and we danced and had a general good time.

Basketball season is opening this week. We have prospects of a good team, so we are looking forward to the season with deep interest.

Gretchen Fisher spent a few days of her Christmas holidays in Toledo, Ohio, where she represented Bucknell at the seventh annual convention of the National Student Federation Association. She said she had a marvelous time, and we are all envying her her experience.

BETA IOTA

PLEDGES: Ruth Stewart, Kathryn McKinley, Evelyn Young, Wilda Ann Siebenthal, Helen Siebenthal.

INITIATES: Lillian Vezzetti, Los Angeles, California; Lillian Wolf and Mary Harper, Tucson, Arizona; Peggy Bigby, Dodderidge, Arkansas.

will take place. We are happy for our new members and proud of our new pledges. Everyone put a good deal of effort and enthusiasm into making our midyear rushing a success, and we feel that we have been amply repaid. Vesta McAllister, former president of Alpha Chi Chapter at U.C.L.A., arrived just before rush week, and both by her helpful suggestions and her charming personality gave us some very valuable assistance. We all fell quite in love with her and wished we might keep her with us, but after a three weeks' visit, she found it necessary to return to California.

Although this is the traditional land of Indians, cowboys, and hold-up men, we of the University of Arizona think little of such persons except when we wish to ape their picturesque costumes at a masquerade ball or other social function. Ask any members of this chapter if the West is still wild and the answer will be an emphatic "Yes!" Late one Sunday evening, one of our girls, having taken a short cut through the desert on her way home, had almost stopped her car in order to turn a sharp curve when a masked man leaped out of a clump of mesquite trees and attempted to jump on the running board. Without stopping to consider results, she put the car into second, gave it all the gas, and swerved directly at him. She knocked him down, but when asked whether she had killed him, she said she didn't know, but she hoped she'd barked his shins anyway.

The excitement of the hold-up had barely cleared away when another event brought a stir to the chapter house. On February 29, Jessie Paddock decided that she preferred the more dignified title of Mrs. J. Ralph Ankham, and so the first wedding in the Beta Iota Chapter took place with rice being thrown in due form! Alumnæ, active members, and pledges all co-operated in showering the bride with lovely gifts, so lovely in fact that two other girls who have been contemplating the leap are very, very sure of their intentions now!

Our president, Margaret Webster, has been very busy with preparation for her recital which will be given March 15. It promises to be a brilliant affair since Margaret is one of the most outstanding music majors in the university. Joyce Blodgett has added her bit by becoming a member of the honorary economics fraternity, Alpha Epsilon. However, the pledges are not far behind the members in honors: Lillian Wolf has won the highest reward given by W.A.A. this semester in the form of an "A" blanket in the Arizona colors of red and blue; Helen Siebenthal is not only a member of the Women's Press Club and the University Players, but she is feature editor of The Wildcat, the campus newspaper, and is on the staff of two other campus publications; and Mary Harper and Wilda Ann Siebenthal are both on The Wildcat staff.

BETA KAPPA

PLEDGES: Carolyn Eichling, Evanston, Illinois; Lenore Hodges, Salt Lake City, Utah; Lucille Tigges, Peterson; Mae Wherry, West Union; Dorothy Simon, Council Bluffs.

INITIATES: Alice Manning, Clark, South Dakota; Nelle Dearmont, Mound City, Missouri; Florence Meyer, Dows; Jeanette Ross, Boone.

We all feel as if we have been Delta Zetas for a long time, instead of just three short months. Miss Woodruff was here last week, and we enjoyed her visit so much, although it was much too short. We feel as if she were one of our oldest friends, because, as you remember, she was here for our pledging last spring, and for installation of our chapter this fall. I think her suggestions at our meeting last week put a new spirit in all of us. She came Saturday morning, and was with us until Sunday noon.

We have all been busy this year, trying to raise our scholarship, and to represent Delta Zeta in activities. At the last report from the registrar's office our pledges were standing second in scholarship among all the sororities.

Dellora LaGrone, our president, was a member of the cast of the all-college play, given earlier in the year, and represents, with Clara Blank, Delta Zeta on the Panhellenic council. Leona McClaran is a member of the W.A.A. council, the Home Economics council, the Y.W.C.A. cabinet, and Women's "I" fraternity, the latter being open only to girls who have won their monograms.

Helen Penrose is editor of the textiles-clothing department of the Homemaker, official home economics publication, and is also a member of the Bomb staff, the college yearbook. Phyllis Heins and Edith Darling are also members of the Homemaker staff.

Florence Meyer and Madeline White are on the varsity debate team, and will make several trips to other schools. Alberta Owens represents Delta Zeta on both the College Health Council and the League of Women Voters. Eva Darting is on the Women's Social Council.

Delta Zeta won fourth place in the Bomb sales contest this year. Marie Budolfson acted as chairman of the sales in the house. We are using the commissions to help pay for our new orthophonic-radio combination.

Once a month we have sorority exchange dinners, with each house sending four girls to some other house. We find that this is an excellent means of becoming acquainted with girls whom we would otherwise not know.

Fraternity and sorority exchanges are also proving successful on our campus. Under this system a sorority is invited to spend the hour between seven and eight at a fraternity house, and then at a later date will act as hostesses to the same group.

We have recently entertained our patrons and patronesses at dinner, and at our last meeting we adopted the policy of having two faculty guests each week.

Iowa State College has just completed Religious Emphasis Week. Dr. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, was the principal speaker during the week. Miss Helen Smith, of the mathematics department, came to our house to lead in our discussion group.

We are glad to have Alice Knudson, Iota, on the campus this year.

MADELINE WHITE, Editor

DELLORA LA GRONE, President

INITIATES: Jeanette Ross, Florence Meyer, Nell Dearthmont.

PLEDGES: Carolyn Eichling, Evanston, Illinois; Anne Hitzhusen, Rockwell, Iowa; Lenore Hodges, Salt Lake City, Utah; May Wherry, West Union, Iowa; Dorothy Simon, Minden, Iowa; Eila Brooks, Whiting, Iowa; Lucille Tigges, Petersen, Iowa.

HONORS: Edith Darling and Marie Budolfson have been elected to Omicron Nu, national home economics honorary, and Jeanette Ross has been initiated into Iota Sigma Phi, honorary chemistry society for women. Phi Sigma, forensic society, has elected Madeline White to active membership.

Eila Brooks, one of our pledges, walked off with all freshman scholarship honors last year. She is continuing to do the same this year. During the past year Madeline White has been on the debate team which has debated with many leading universities and colleges this winter. Recently Alberta Owens was elected secretary of the student health council. Leona MacLaren heads the hiking division of W.A.A. In intramural Delta Zeta placed third in a posture contest, in which we were represented by Dellora La Grone. Dellora has also been chosen on the cast of the night show, No! No! Nannette! which will be given during the week-end of Veishea.

Alice Manning and Jeanette Ross graduated at the end of winter quarter. Alice is at her home in Clarke, South Dakota, and Jeanette is still with us since she is taking graduate work and has been offered a fellowship in the textile chemistry department.

Although we are new Delta Zetas we feel that we know every chapter. Helen Woodruff, our province director, visited us January 23 and 24, and helped us greatly. On Saturday afternoon we honored her at a tea which was attended by the presidents and housemothers of the sororities and fraternities on the campus. Mrs. D. A. Arville, associate professor of French and our patroness, poured for us.

We have mentioned Veishea in this letter. Perhaps we should tell you all about it for we want every Delta Zeta to visit us during Veishea. The college gives over three days every year for an all-college open house. Visitors may then see us at work and at play. This year it will be held May 5, 6, and 7. The name is made up of the different divisions of the college: veterinary medicine, engineering, industrial science, home economics, and agriculture.
