1993 Woman of the Year Luncheon Draws Alumnae, Collegians to the top of her profession, become recognized on a national level, and has been the recipient of innumerable honors and awards in the field of public relations.

When the happy news was received we immediately wanted to celebrate.

To find a convenient date for an event was not easy because Sue is frequently far away —London, Amsterdam or maybe just Boston. Ruth Heineman Walsh, UCLA-Alpha Chi, who had administered the submission of the nomination, was fortunate when Sue cleared Sunday, October 24 as a day for celebration. As president of the Los Angeles alumnae chapter, Ruth chaired the celebration luncheon at the Assistance League of Los Angeles.

Alumnae members from as far as San Diego and collegians from Delta Alpha, Cal State/Long Beach; Theta Rho, Cal State/Los Angeles; Iota Upsilon, Cal State/Fullerton, Xi Omicron, Loyola "But most of all, it's important to recognize women can have it all today — a powerful career, and a family — if we want it!" she added. The Delta Zetas also met Mary Swans Hastings, Sue's mother, who had joined Delta Zeta's Gamma chapter at the University of Minnesota in 1930, and Christine Bohle, Sue's teenage daughter

The Delta Zeta rose was the theme for the decor in the dining room and the program. Bands of pink satin were laid on delicate green tables. The head table had bowls of pink rose buds and white start ary heads of Grecian women. Long stemmed roses in vases graced all the individual tables.

The climax of the afternoon came when President Sandra Nesbitt gave the qualifying facts of the presentation and then ninned the Woman of the Year medallion on Sue. Receiving awards is not new to Sue, but she was deeply moved to receive special recognition from her sorority.

She had a few thoughts for the collegians assembled.

"In hearing of my accomplishments, I hope all of you collegians recognize that women have come a long way since I graduated. Today, we can do almost anything with our careers. I recommend the field of marketing or public relations. This has been a great path for me. I wonder what Corporate America is going to say when it wakes up one day and discovers that women are holding all the sales en and marketing jobs in this country!

SUE BOHLE

1993 WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Woman of the Year Sue Hastings Bohle's life has been a wonder of accomplishments. She is president and owner of a large, nationally recognized public Since Sue pledged Alpha Alpha chapter at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, in 1960, she has demonstrated her leadership and organizational abilities. President of her chapter her junior year, she helped increase membership to its all time high. Her senior year, she conducted a fund raising campaign that financed a new sleeping wing of the house and put the chapter back on a strong financial footing.

The Bohle Company, started in 1979, was one of the first headed by a woman and today, is among the top in size owned by a woman.

In 1991. Sue was named to the College of Fellows, her profession's highest honor. Only 78 professionals had been named before her selection, only 19 women. Recipients must be considered role models in their field. In 1995, she will chair that group.

Sue is also the U.S. delegate to ICO, a world wide organization representing all PR associations.

In addition to all her traveling on business, there is reason to believe that Sue has discovered the 25 hour day and eight day week.

At least one extra week each year is spent with husband John, son Jason, 17, and daughter Christine, 15, when they board their houseboat on Lake Powell. Arizona, where they let the rest of the world drift by no deadlines, no appointments and no telephones.

reach up there and grab the brass ring. More than anything, that's what's made me successful ... being willing to say, 'Yes, I'd like to do that.' 'Sure, I'd be happy to lake over that responsibility.' Be willing to take a risk. You have to spread your wings and be willing to stretch."

A dramatic presentation of the Founders Day Ceremony, led by Linda Bruggemann Seymour, CSU/LA-Theta joined in singing "Delta Zeta Lamps Are Burning," an aura of joy filled the room as all rejoiced in the honoring of Sue Hastings Bohle and the founding of Delta Zeta. A

Delta Zeta's GML: 1893-1993

Just days before her 100th birthday last October, Grace Mason Lundy died gently in her sleep. None of us have lived so long and done so many wonderful things in Delta Zeta as Grace. Even in her last decade with her many cheery notes she would include a sprig of rosemary and remind us, "rosemary, that's for remembrance."

She will live on in the many printed words of her Histories and LAMPs, and in the many collegians, now alumnae, who were recipients of the award named for her. The GML girls are many and gather at every convention.

For those of us who heard her speak, we don't so much remember what she said but the way she said it. She was like the proverbial Pied Piper and gathered rapt listeners wherever she happened to be. Well do we remember a Fireside at one convention where the overflow group spilled out into the hall when she explained the beauty of our Ritual.

Grace loved and appreciated beauty in music, art, books, and in people. She was a favorite guest at State and Province days. A welcome guest everywhere, she even charmed this writer's children with her stories and her piano playing. Show Grace a piano and she would improvise. During many initiations she would sit there unobtrusively in the background and play the accompanying music.

Of course her many offices in Delta Zeta were legend. Way back in 1922 she served on Council as Historian, a job she would do on and off many times, and was honored as Historian Emerita when she could no longer concentrate. She served as Executive Secretary, Traveling Visitor, LAMP Editor, various Vice Presidents with a long stint as National President when the advent of war precluded a convention.

But the words she wrote as LAMP Editor and Historian will ever be there to read. Grace was not the only writer in the Mason family. Her sisters, Rachel Peden and Miriam Swain, were both Delta Zeta Women of the Year, gaining national fame for their many published works. Sister Nina Pulliam worked with her publisher husband on his Indianapolis and Phoenix newspapers.

In her nineties Grace retired to a little house of her own in Phoenix, Arizona, close by her daughter Cynthia McCarty, who also served on National Council, the only Mother-Daughter combination ever on Council. Her granddaughter Melinda McCarty Catchings and her niece Carol Peden were there to care for her in her last years after Cynthia's death.

Grace's joy in serving and working carried over to the little church down the street from her house. She taught children's classes and always shared her music.

In her will she asked Melinda to allate money for Delta Zeta scholarships in her and Cynthia's names. Anyone who wishes could send contributions to the Foundation to add to these scholarships.

Over the years she touched so many our lives. This collegian was recruited her when Grace was LAMP Editor, and like so many others was encouraged and prodded to do for Delta Zeta. Though his stayed at home in her later years, her notes and calls reminded us of our duties.

Rosemary will always bring remembrance of Grace.

One Student's Dream

A Trip to Africa

elanie Jones, a 1991 graduate of Kappa Rho chapter at Kutztown University, is a second year law student at Widener University's Wilmington (Delaware) campus. And this last summer she had the time of her life. She spent eight weeks in Africa as part of a five and a half week international law studies program offered by Widener in conjunction with the University of Nairobi.

Melanie had been at Widener only a short time when she ran across on-campus posters advertising the program. The only requirement, aside from being able to meet the financial requirements, was to have maintained a certain minimum grade point average through one year of law school. She'd been wanting to go to Africa for some time, but just couldn't squeeze in a trip of that length and distance, so the program offered was ideal.

And on June 23, Melanie Jones was off to Africa. She landed in Nairobi a day later and her classes started on June 28.

It really wasn't that easy, however, as she was entirely on her own. Her previous trips abroad while working on her bachelor's degree at Kutztown had been university coordinated. After a lengthy search, she was able to secure student rates on airfare to Nairobi and she booked a hotel for her stay there. Melanie had set a budget but was surprised to find that costs were much less than she had anticipated. A quality hotel cost the equivalent of eight dollars a night and when she dined out, a gourmet meal was no more than five dollars.

Melanie spent more than six hours in class each day, earning six credits for two intensive courses. Her classes covered international environmental law and public international law, the latter taught by a Kenya professor. Her other course was taught by a professor from Washington who may have steered her toward a possible career in environmental law.

The sessions, evaluated by the American Bar Association, attracted students from both of Widener's campuses and from campuses from California to New York.

Weekends were crammed with sightseeing. They took a photo safari organized by the program's professors in the Masai Mara, the region of the Masai tribe. And they used their one legal skip day to take a five-day overland trip to Zaire. A crowded 17-hour bus trip, an uncomfortable ride in the back of a flat-bed truck and an uphill three and a half hour hiking trek found Melanie in the middle of a camp waiting for a guide to take her to her intended destination to see a family of 13 gorillas.

While on safari, Melanie visited a gorilla family.

Melanie wore her Delta Zeta letters to the top of Mt. Kilimanjaro.

When classes ended on August 5, Melanie and two friends spent the next five days in a monumental undertaking. They climbed all 19,340 feet of Mt. Kilimanjaro.

Melanie said "It (climbing the mountain) was amazing. I am really glad I did it, but when you're climbing you're thinking, 'Why did I do this? This is not fun. I've done all these fun things since I've been here. What possibly made me want to do this?' But getting to the top was a really good feeling."

And her final comments were, "This was wonderful. What did I do to deserve all this?" Δ

Face to Face with the Floods

My Experience in the Midwest

BY SUZANNE ANDERSON, AURBURN-BETA XI MONTGOMERY ALUMNAE CHAPTER

Suzanne Anderson sits in an ERV outside a community service center in Galesburg, Iowa had been waiting. I knew it would come sooner or later. On August 4, I finally got it. I got "the call."

But, this wasn't just any call. This call would send me to work in a place where I'd never been, to the flood ravaged plains of Iowa.

As an American Red Cross employee, I'd been trained to work in disastrous situations. But this would be my first experience working a "national job." While I was excited about the opportunity, I could only imagine how many lives I would see devastated by the mighty Mississippi.

My first thought was to call my fiancé, Chuck. Just two months before our wedding, I would have to make haste and plan things that I originally thought I would have weeks to do.

When I got him on the phone, his usually chipper voice became soft as he asked me the questions: when would I leave, what would I need to take, and when would I return.

The rest of that day, and the next, seemed to go by in a whirlwind of activities: call my parents, pay my bills, get my hair cut, rearrange appointments, go shopping, get travelers' checks, pack my suitcase. Is there anything I have forgotten?

Friday morning, Chuck took me to the Montgomery airport. We'd been sitting in the waiting area for 10 minutes when the first of two camera crews arrived. It felt odd being the one interviewed after I'd contacted them to see our seven volunteers off to the Midwest.

I arrived in Bettendorf, the job headquarters, early Friday evening. There, I met two of the other public affairs workers who briefed me on what had been happening. While the initial floods were bad enough, they told me, many areas were being re-flooded. Thousands of people, who thought they would finally be able to salvage their belongings, were once again unable to get on with their lives.

After the briefing, they told me I would be going to Burlington, about two and a half hours south of Bettendorf.

The drive was a mixture of beauty and the beast. In some areas, rows and rows of beautiful corn, untouched by flood waters, lined the highways. But in other areas the beastly river took over.

When I arrived in Burlington, I was greeted by other Red Cross workers, moof whom were volunteers. Each told me where he or she was from and what he was doing there. Some were from Oregon or California. Some were from Maine and Florida. I met people from all four corners of the continental United States, providing every aspect of Red Croservices, including family assistance, ma care and mental health services.

I was part of a two-person team in pulic affairs. My boss, Hattie, had a tremendous amount of disaster public affairs experience, having been at Hurricane Andrew and the Texas tornadoes.

Most of my time in public affairs was spent updating and sending releases and feature stories. It was PA's job to get the word out to the media and the public.

The weeks I spent in Iowa seem like one big blur. The seven days I worked each week were long and hectic. However, the times that stand out most my mind are the times that I came face with those who'd been through the devastation.

The first time I "went out" is my most vivid memory. A film crew from Japan la arrived and wanted to get some footage and interviews for a flood documentary that would be showing later that week in Tokyo.

Hattie and I first took them to our main care center, where they interviewed mental health personnel. This aspect of Red Cross services interested them immensely

Next, we took them out to a flood are in an emergency response vehicle (ERV). Through this vehicle, Red Cross was able to get supplies and food into the affected communities.

We stopped in a little town south of Burlington called Niota. Flood lines mad their mark on the once-inhabited businesses and residences. "Do not cross" banners were everywhere.

The ERV drove to the middle of what used to be the town and parked. People recognized the ERV and came up to child

The camera crew emerged from the ERV to what used to be a precious little town. Immediately, they began filming.

While Hattie worked with the crew, I began my own tour of the town. All around, I saw people picking through their waterlogged belongings, trying to salvage any possible remains. Some were old, some were young, some were inbetween. But, all had one thing in common: Their lives would never again be the same.

As I continued to talk with the residents, they pointed out what "used to be" this and what "used to be" that. One of the businesses they showed me was a diner. As I peered through the glassless window, I was overcome by the stench of decay.

As I made my way through town, I noticed that the crew had started interviewing a family. They were being filmed inside and outside of their home.

I went over to the house. It was in total mins. A flood line, at least 10 feet off the ground, savagely marked the water's presence.

When I went in, I could hear my shoes squish in the water-drenched carpet. I looked down to see the vent that led into the basement. Curious, I squatted down to get a better look. I was greeted by bugs and brownish green water barely one and a half feet from my face.

Standing up, I was welcomed by the lady who owned the home. Jokingly, she asked me to pardon the mess. She normally didn't keep her house looking this way. Amazingly, she still had her sense of humor.

Her husband came into the room. He asked me if I'd been through the house yet. When I told him no, he offered to take me on a tour.

He showed me their son's room where the once cream-colored walls were now spotted green with mildew and mold. Wistfully, the father told me that he'd just finished re-doing it.

Next he pointed to a bathroom. It, too, had undergone a face-lift. But, now, it was past its prime.

Then he showed me his and his wife's bedroom. At one point, he said, their mattress was floating beneath the ceiling. The customary mold and mildew also lined the walls.

The last stop was the kitchen. It looked to be the most devastated of all. Dirt and mud had settled on the stove, in the refrigerator and in the cabinets. The oven, once containing sweet Iowa corn, now contained lumpy mounds of mud and debris.

After seeing the kitchen, we walked outside to watch the crew finish filming his wife and son.

As we stood and watched, he pulled some pictures out of his pocket. One was of him when he was a child. One was of his son. The next was of the three of them as a family. Gently, he rubbed his forefinger over the picture, as if remembering a time when all was well.

When the crew finished, Hattie and I talked with the family, asking them if they'd been to see Red Cross and making sure they had what they needed. After a few minutes, we hugged them goodbye and wished them the best.

That night as I lay in bed, I thought about that family. Despite the devastation and torment in their lives, they seemed at peace. Their courage was of a magnitude I had never seen.

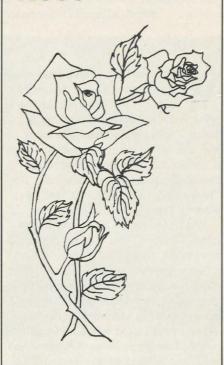

As the following days melted together, it was finally time to go home. After three weeks away, it was good to be on my way back to Montgomery.

Although I've been back for a few weeks, it seems like just yesterday that I was in Iowa. Whenever I think about the Midwest floods, my mind always stops at the day I met that family. They have made a lasting impression on my outlook on life. Never again will I take what I have for granted. It can literally be washed away tomorrow. Δ

Those words are taken right out of the Heritage Rose Gardens Catalog. Interested Delta Zetas may write for a catalog which is $1.50. Write to Heritage Rose Gardens, 40350 Wilderness Road, Branscomb, CA 95417. They will sign you up on the waiting list for the Killarney Rose plants. They produce only about six a year. However, if they could know how many would be requested for the future, they can start producing more. It takes two years to fill the orders. The plants are sold as two-year bare-root stock plants and are $9.25 plus shipping.

Whatever Happened to Taylor Reese?

by Gwen Moss McKeeman

hen Delta Zeta's long-time stenotypist Taylor Reese "resigned to retire" a few years ago, he was presented with his very own "pups 'n hounds" ears for convention counting. After all, he had reported some 11 national conventions. The inscription on the beautifully cross-stitched ears read "Taylor Reese and Delta Zeta" and "A Winning Team: 1966-1987."

And Taylor was so fond of us, he did return one more time to bark with his 12convention group!

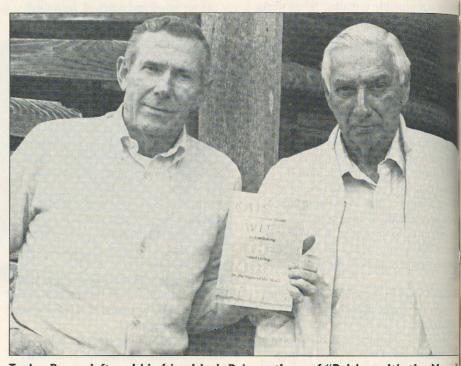

When Florence Miner and I were interested in inquiring about his latest achievements, Taylor replied in part: "As you know, I spent 32 years writing the words of other people, and so when I finally removed the fingers from the Stenograph machine and donated it to an insurance museum in Washington, D.C., I began writing my own words."

And write he did, because he has been published more than 100 times, including poems, humor, essays and short stories. Taylor said, "It sounds like boasting but I attribute some of this success to the many things I learned by listening to some of the country's best women (yes, Delta Zetas)."

His latest accomplishment is the publication of a nonfiction book on planting and other aspects of living. Co-authored with neighbor Jack R. Pyle, the book had its embryonic beginning in 1987. It was submitted to a literary agent who offered each year a $500 award for the best short story and $2500 for the best fiction or nonfiction. Their book was selected. The agent tried to market it for a year, with no success, so then returned it to Jack and Taylor.

They revamped it and in 1992 at a writers' conference at Radford University, Taylor approached one of the publishing companies represented there. As a result, the manuscript was accepted for publication. It was released last spring in time to coincide with spring planting.

"Raising with the Moon" is called the complete guide to gardening and living by

the signs of the moon. Taylor wrote that as a youth he remembered his mother and father, as well as his grandparents, following the Farmers Almanac religiously when it came to planting, et cetera. Jack Pyle's grandfather also was a sign gardener. It must have been then that the seed was planted for both writers. (And this writer also has a mother who has always planted her garden by the signs of the moon.)

Planting "by the signs" is an ancient tradition that is enjoying an unprecedented resurgence, perhaps because people, like Jack and Taylor, explain the logic behind gardening by the signs of the moon and how it works. Farmers Almanacs sell millions of copies in this country, but this book is the first of its type.

Since last April Taylor has led a busy schedule of book signings, TV and radio appearances and speaking engagements. With little time for anything else, he does think about future publications. He just might write a book about his youth.

"Isn't it remarkable what one can do with the pen - and now the computer," Taylor mused.

And that's what happened to Taylor Reese since he left Delta Zeta convention reporting to his nephew, Frank Tayloe. He's very busy, but he hasn't forgotten Delta Zeta. He has his "ears" to remember! Δ

Taylor attended the 1989 Williamsburg convention pups 'n hounds luncheon to support his 12-convention group!

When Lisa Horton was born during her mother's term on National Council in the 1973-75 biennium, the Council sent her abbons and a pledge pin. Mother Sandra Hart Horton, Iowa State University-Beta Kappa, put them in Lisa's baby book. However, she retrieved both this past fall when Lisa pledged Epsilon Nu chapter at Southwest Missouri State University. Proud mom was there to do the pinning!

And speaking of mother-daughter duos, it was my pleasure this fall to attend Founders Day in Greeley, Colorado, where another daughter, Juliet Miner, Arizona-Beta Iota, (daughter of Historian Florence Hood Miner) was guest speaker. Julie delighted her audience of Fort Collins alumnae chapter members and collegians from the host chapter, Delta Xi at the University of Northern Colorado, with remarks about "Role Models." Or, what it's like to be the daughter of the "Living legend." And I must admit, Julie has inherited her mother's gift of gab!

What was equally delightful was to share the pleasant day with my daughter Marianne McKeeman Cravens, Oklahoma

The "in" tray on my desk has overflowed several times in the last several months and several communications struck me as being of interest to LAMP readers. For instance...

Convention in Indianapolis last summer would have been the 10th for Elsie Kuck Bailey, Brenau-Alpha Omicron, but doctor's orders forbade the trip. It was disappointing to Elsie since she was to receive her 65 year Order of the Pearl medallion. However, Province Alumnae Director Linda Ratkus Packham and several Gold Coast alumnae chapter members visited Elsie for a very special presentation.

Jean Nelson Stockham, Eureka-Pi '39 has the unusual distinction of serving as president of two alumnae panhellenics. Installed last spring as president of the Oklahoma City Alumnae Panhellenic, Jean also served as president of the St. Louis Alumnae Panhellenic in 1963-64.

Lou Jean Brown Fleron received a prestigious Alumni Achievement Award last fall from her university, Fort Hays State. A member of Delta Omega chapter, Lou Jean received her degree in 1962.

Visions, the Iowa State University alumni magazine, reported on the role Trudy Huskamp Peterson, ISU-BK, plays as an archivist digging through Russian history for clues to the fate of POW/MIAs. Trudy is no expert on military affairs or Kremlinology. She doesn't speak Russian. It was her fluency in a quasi-universal language - archival studies - that landed her on the high-profile Joint United States-Russian Commission on POW/MIAs.

The American contingent consists of senators, congressmen, a former ambassador to the Soviet Union, deputy cabinet members and Trudy, who is the United States' assistant national archivist. She is past president of the Society of American Archivists and current secretary of the Roundtable of the International Council on Archives.

Trudy views her role as archivist - protecting the documentary heritage of the United States government - as a task

Adopt-A-School Unites Communities

The National Interfraternity Conference (NIC) recently announced it will be piloting a new national community service project called "Adopt-A-School." The NIC will be targeting 85 campuses across the U.S. this fall to implement the program. The purpose of Adopt-A-School is to pair fraternity and sorority communities with local elementary schools in an effort to provide role models and individual attention to grade-school children.

Based on highly successful models of this program at Miami University (OH), Auburn University (AL), and San Diego State University, the national Adopt-A-School effort will be funded by a $99,500 grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Michigan. The program will be sponsored by the Association of Fraternity Advisors, College Fraternity Editors Association, Fraternity Executives Association, National PanHellenic Council (NPHC), National Panhellenic Conference(NPC), as well as the NIC.

Three full-time staff members have been hired representing NIC, NPC, and NPHC. Jennifer Wilber, Alpha Phi, serves as Adopt-A-School Coordinator, and Todd Ledingham, Sigma Tau Gamma, and Shaletha Mitchell, Delta Sigma Theta, serve as Adopt-A-School Representatives. They will be traveling to pilot campuses this fall assisting Greek leaders in starting the community service program at elementary and middle schools in their area.

"Adopt-A-School volunteers can truly make a difference in the lives of children, and the program will also have a positive impact on the fraternity and sorority members who participate," Ms. Wilber said. "Individuals will be rewarded by the effect they have on the future of these young students."

The goal of the program is to foster personalized relationships between undergraduate volunteers and gradeschool children in schools that are often burdened with funding cuts and understaffing and may not be able to provide individual attention. Taking instructions directly from teachers, undergraduates act as mentors, coaches and friends, establishing relationships with children that may increase self-esteem, attendance and grade performance.

In an effort to reach out to the thousands of fraternity and sorority alumni, an Adopt-A-School Alumni Program will be piloted in Indianapolis this fall. Three public elementary schools will implement the same program as the collegiate model, with the assistance of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity and Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority Headquarters. The alumni program also provides volunteers for schools that are not in close proximity to college campuses with undergraduate fraternity or sorority members. Approximately 50 Adopt-A-School Alumni Programs will be instituted throughout the U.S. in 1994.

The NIC is currently seeking a threeyear grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to continue Adopt-A-School. One hundred campuses will be added to the program next year, with a long-range goal of impacting one million school children annually.

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation was established in 1930 to "help people help themselves." As a private grantmaking foundation it provides seed money to organizations and institutions that have identified problems and have designated constructive action programs aimed at solutions. A majority of the Foundation's grantmaking is focused on the areas of youth; leadership; philanthropy and volunteerism; community-based, problemfocused health services; higher education; food systems; rural development; groundwater resources (in the Great Lake area); and economic development (in Michigan). Programming priorities concentrate grants in the United States, Latin America and the Caribbean and southern Africa.

Undergraduate fraternity and sorority members or alumni interested in starting an Adopt-A-School program in their area should call the National Interfraternity Conference office at 317/872-1112.

Cynthia Winslow Menges Earns CAE Designation

Cynthia Menges

Washington, DC, August 2, 1993. Cynthia Winslow Menges, Executive Director, Delta Zeta Sorority, was one of 68 individuals who earned the Certified Association Executive (CAE) designation from the American Society of Association Executives (ASAE) in June.

Prior to certification, applicants are rated on their experience and accomplish ments in association management and must successfully complete a comprehensive one-day examination which tests general knowledge of the association management profession.

The 1993 Class brings the total number of association executives who have earner the CAE designation to over 2,000. Among association professionals, "CAE" is an indication of demonstrated skill in leader ship, activity in community affairs, and expertise in association management.

The American Society of Association Executives, Washington, DC, is an individual membership society made up of morthan 20,000 association executives and suppliers. Its members manage leading trade associations and professional societies across the country and also represent suppliers of products and services the association community.

Friends and sisters through the years

Harriett Ostlund, Northwestern-AA '44 was a member of the chapter's alumnae board when Ruth Milner pledged Delta leta in 1946. It was Harriett's responsibility to speak to the pledge class about the fiscal obligations of the sorority. After the meeting, Harriett told Ruth that she taught hird grade at a small school in Wilmette, Illinois.

Four years later, Ruth signed a contract to teach sixth grade at the small school in Wilmette. She hadn't seen Harriett for four years, but was delighted to learn that they would be teaching colleagues.

They became friends and began to travel together in 1957. Each summer they took a trip, usually driving to distant parts of the country or to Canada. They visited Alpha Alpha sisters in many states. Europe was the destination for eight summer trips.

Both Ruth and Harriett became principals in the district where they began their eaching careers. Harriett headed the primary building and passed the students along to Ruth for their middle school years. When they retired in 1987 they had, together, 79 years in the same district.

Now their time given to traveling is not limited to summer but they still find time

Ruth and Harriett invited Alpha Alpha sisters Lorraine Kucera Aichinger '43 and Lois Bronder O'Neill '45 to join them in a trip from Chicago to the Greater Cincinnati area for an Elderhostel. While touring the campus of the University of Northern Kentucky, the four paused at the Delta Zeta bench given by Kappa Beta chapter. Standing are Lois and Lorraine. Seated are Harriett and Ruth.

for being board members of their local retired teachers group, for church activities and for leisure time activities. Last January they volunteered their foodserving skills to Alpha Alpha chapter during rush. And they smiled graciously when a collegian introduced them to a rushee as "fifth year seniors."

"worth giving your life to."

And one last story. The *Chico*Enterprise-Record told a story of one of our Delta Chi alums, Jeanne Byerly Leube. Jeanne, 66, the recipient of a heart transplant in 1986, recently won gold and silver medals in tennis in the World Transplant Olympics in Canada. Jeanne competed with more than 1000 athletes from 35 countries and as the oldest person competing from the United States (she beat out a man by just two days), got to carry the U. S. flag in the opening ceremonies!

And just a note about the "What happened to you after college?" questionnaire in the winter issue. Response has been wonderful and it's fun hearing from so many of you. The information sheet did ask for you to type or print your reply. Only a very few have come in this manner. Please, help your editor's aging eyes. Print legibly! And yes, we'll carry as much of this information as space permits. Look for it elsewhere in this issue!

Delta Zeta on Campus

BY DIANE JONES SKELTON

With the NPC rush resolutions discouraging elaborate rush parties and costumes, chapter editors are beginning to write more about diversity and sisterhood and less about clever rush parties. Detailed descriptions of chapter dresses, costumes and choreographed skits have been replaced with interesting accounts of living and loving in Delta Zeta.

From campus to campus, one of Delta Zeta's greatest strengths may be the ability to function effectively regardless of living accommodations. The diversity in housing ranges from suite to lodge to quad to chapter room to apartments to chapter houses. Some urban chapters fret about renting a closet or moving chapter materials from one president's home to the next, while on more traditional campuses, chapters worry about occupying as many as 50 living spaces in the sorority house. Cheri Nowlin writes how fee increases and decreased interest in sororities placed new challenges on rush and how Gamma Lambdas at San Jose needed 19 new members to fill the house. Gamma Lambda's efforts, especially in continuous open bidding, have made it the largest chapter on campus.

Xi Deltas at Radford have non-traditional housing. Delta Zetas share quarters in Hunter's Ridge Apartments, forming their definition of Greek housing. Sororities at Northwest Missouri once all shared Roberta Residence Hall as a central meeting place and residence. When renovation of Roberta began, sorority women moved into apartments around town. Editor Tracey Booth writes, "With the sorority being so spread out, this semester could have been a disaster. Instead, we've become better organized and we communicated better than ever." This dispels the belief that "house" chapters have it easy communicating. Commuter, metro and urban institutions have long valued commitment to communicate and wondered if "house" chapters had it easier.

Editor Sharla Klich of Ohio Wesleyan writes of a very special event...a house dinner... "special because we don't live in a house." Delta Taus at Temple celebrated Thanksgiving dinner at the Newman Center on campus, while the cook for Zeta Psi at Stephen F. Austin prepared for 80 instead of the regular 42 when the chapter celebrated Thanksgiving dinner at the house!

Delta Thetas at University of Houston are having "house parties" to plant flowers and hang pictures at their first house! And, Pis at Eureka bid farewell to their housing in Jones Hall.

As Jennifer Zuccaro reports, "We had three days to vacate the building that has been our home for the last seven years. Fire safety codes had been ignored for years, but when we expressed our concerns in writing, we were forced to move the entire contents of our house, take roommates, and move into leftover freshmen housing during our mid-term exam week...the sorority really pulled together and became closer."

There must be strength in diversity, in good times and in bad.

ALABAMA

Auburn, Beta Xi- The chapter welcomed 53 new pledges with a whirlwind of activities including a skating party, a big sister-little sister banquet, a bonfire, a homecoming tea, a block party, and a pledge formal. The enthusiastic pledges captured first and second place honors for spirit in parades. Tara White was named most outstanding Panhellenic delegate, and Dolly Campbell was among the Top 20 for Miss Homecoming. Robin Taylor and Angie Pate were both among the Top 20 in the yearbook pageant. Shawn Ransom is a majorette. Jennie Reffitt works for the campus radio station, and Kimmy Wright is Step Sing chairman. Nine Beta Xis earned perfect 4.0s. Melissa Hannan will study in France spring quarter, while Angie Tatum is working for the U.S. Senate in Washington.

Auburn-Montgomery,
Lambda Nu—At the preference party during formal rush, Lambda Nus emphasized the theme, Delta Zeta for the Rest of Our Lives, and explained the marvelous aspect of sisterhood in Delta Zeta. Eighteen (quota!) rushees chose that Delta Zeta sisterhood, and the chapter numbers 57 — the largest sorority on campus! Members celebrated Founders Day with International President Sandra Nesbitt and other area alumnae. Campus and community service participation topped the chapter's volunteer calendar for summer and fall. Lambda Nus greeted visitors and distributed programs at the arts and crafts Festival in the Park; raised over $1,300 for the American Cancer Society at the Athletic Club's Dusk till Dawn Relay; waited tables for the Lion's Club booth at the Alabama State Fair; assisted at the AUM Book Harvest during the Alabama Shakespeare Festival; created Christmas stockings for Milton Road Residence for people with cerebral palsy; and co-sponsored a family at Christmas. Delta Zetas assisted a fraternity with a clean-up day at Dalraida Elementary School. Lambda Nus returned the next week to paint the children's faces for Halloween. Sixteen of the 40 peer leaders for Freshmen Early Orientation were Delta Zetas. Lambda Nu captured the Greek Intramural Football trophy, and five members (Michelle Jones, Amanda Thomson, Shea Sears, Kristie Johnson, Stacey Baker) won individual intramural trophies. Lambda Nu also won both the second and third place trophies in a charity volleyball tournament for the Brantwood Children's Home. Michelle Jones and Michelle Rolling were tapped for Order of Omega. Tammy Bartley was named outstanding member of Alpha Sigma Epsilon and was tapped for Golden Key.

Samford, Alpha Pi-Delta Zeta more than doubled its size by adding 26 new members in fall formal and open rush bringing membership to 43. Members collected over 100 teddy bears for St. Vincent Hospital in conjunction with Teddy Bears on Patrol. The program is designed to put a teddy bear in every police patrol car and ambulance in the city for children in emergency situations. Members also raised money for Campus Ministries summer missions with a fall carnival booth. Other chapter activities included a hayride and marshmallow roast, a new member retreat, a trip to the National Peanut Festival in Dothan, a pumpkin carving contest, and a homecoming open house. Members sold mistletoe for a chapter fundraiser. Ashlev Baker is a baseball Diamond Girl. Beth Long chaired the Step Sing Committee.

ARKANSAS

Central Arkansas, Epsilon Xi—The chapter added 32 new members (quota!) in fall formal rush. By mid-term grade reporting time, Delta Zetas (initiates and new members) had earned the highest overall sorority grade point average. Delta Zeta also earnel the top score in fall sorority intramural competition. Delta Zeta's "pledge car" entry won first place in homecoming, and the chapter float won third place. Alumnae were entertained with a chapter video in the chapter room prior to the football game. Sherri Tidwell, who is Sigma Tau Gamma's National White Rose, was homecoming maid of honor. Members assisted in establish ing a Drug Free Program and Dinner at UCA during Red Ribbon Week. In another community service project, each member brought a can of food to the chapter meeting prior to Thanksgiving. Members also cleaned the adopted highway and baked goods for a comm nity cake walk. At every home football game, ten or more Delta Zetas chaperoned elementary-aged children during the game. Special bleachers were designated in the Jr. Bear Backers program, which is designed to teach younger children about college life. Brandi Bradshaw is a UCA Cheerleader, and Erin McFalls is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota music honorary. Melinda Massengill, Kelli Boone, Charla Chastain, Tammy Hight, Renee Rorie, Carmon King and Amy Wiedower won first runner-up honors in a local chili cook-off.

Arkansas Tech, Lambda Alpha—When describing the chapter service project of babysitting for abused and neglected children, Chapter Editor Maria Rector writes, "These children were very loving and just wanted someone to pay attention to them and show them some love and affection. Every member who helped babysit these children wanted to take a child home with her." Delta Zeta also sponsored a basketball team for the Boys and Girls Club and adopted a mile of highway. Several chapter car washes also benefited philanthropy. Delta Zetas won the football spirit competition twice and were recognized for participation by the president of the University. Jeannie Harrell was a homecoming maid. Members learned more about each other as they munched on popcorn and watched movies during a PJs and Popcorn sisterhood sleepover.

CALIFORNIA

California State-Chico,
Delta Chi—Delta Zeta added
27 new members in fall rush.
The new members were initiated in mid-October to bring the chapter total to 85! Alumnae were on hand to help members celebrate Delta Zeta Founders Day and the chapter's 70th birthday, which coincided with Homecoming-Alumni Weekend. Fundraising and philanthropy events included car washes, cake raffles, bake sales, pumpkin carving with the deaf and speech impaired students at Mesa Vista Elementary School, distributing Halloween candy at the mall, and decorating the campus with red ribbons during Red Ribbon Week. For excellence in football, soccer, basketball, volleyball and softball, Delta Zeta captured the coveted Women's Greek Cup last spring. At presstime, members, who are working hard to defend their Greek Cup title, were ranked first in vollevball and second in football. Order of Omega tapped Michelle Birtja, Sabrina Chan, Christine Gonzales, Wendy Murphy and Jenifer Jostedt. Jenifer also won a Panhellenic academic scholarship.

California State-Fullerton, Iota Upsilon-Delta Zeta added a quota-plus new member class of 18 in rush, placing the chapter at campus total of 70! Rush ended with a bid day hayride to Irvine Regional Park where all gathered around a campfire and sang. Members teamed with fraternity men to perform 20 minutes of Singing in the Rain in a charity fundraiser that netted $13,000 for Make-a-Wish Foundation. The 70 members are enjoying a newly decorated house. Members painted the exterior, while an interior designer decorated the inside. Panhellenic leaders include Penny Wolfe, secretary, and Mayumi Sato, public relations and assistant rush officer. Eve Efries won the South Orange County Panhellenic Alumnae Association Scholarship. Sandy Slota was tapped for Order of Omega, and Allie Barrett was elected representative for the School of the Arts.

California State-Los Angeles, Theta Rho-Family and friends were invited to share the chapter's annual Thanksgiving dinner. Throughout the summer and fall, Delta Zeta participated in activities which included a fraternity exchange, a rush sleep-over, house clean-up, a party for alcohol awareness week, a pumpkin carving party, a Founders Day luncheon, and a Bring Your Own Banana Sundae Party. The chapter placed first in intramural football competition. For community service, members collected canned goods for philanthropy, and donated food, money and clothing to fire victims who were left homeless. Evelyn Lo is runner-up to Ms. Monterey Park.

Loyola Marymount, Xi Omicron—The chapter initiated 19 new members at the California State-Long Beach chapter house in midNovember. Other fall activities included the black and white formal, a rose buddy bid day picnic, and an initiate retreat. Chapter President Kriege Barham serves Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity as vice president. Judy Petix, Jolee Reed and Frances Young were fall orientation leaders. Lisette Perez is leader of the LM Community Task Force; Frances Young is serving her second term as Associated Student Body president.

San Francisco, Xi
Lambda—A busy fall calendar included fraternity mixers and parties, pumpkin carving with another sorority, an All Greek Dance, cleaning up Golden Gate Park, painting the Hamilton Family Shelter, and selling Boo Grams to benefit Gallaudet. Members enjoyed a surprise fraternity serenade on Founders Day.

San Jose, Gamma Lambda—Chapter Editor Cheri Nowlin writes of the challenges of fall rush-"fee increases and low interest in the sorority system. We also needed 19 new members to fill our house." However, she also reports that the chapter met the challenges by adding six new members in formal rush and 11 more in open rush to become the largest sorority on campus. For the second consecutive year, Delta Zeta won first overall honors in homecoming competition. Members also collected the largest number of canned good (over 600!) in the canned food competition. Philanthropy events included participating in a Halloween carnival at San Jose Medical Center and assisting with the San Jose Shelter Foundation's 8th Annual Soup Kitchen dinner. Members also worked at a San Jose Sharks game and donated wages to a non-profit agency. Stephanie Blasi was honored by Panhellenic as sister of the semester. Several members also earned Panhellenic honors for academic achievement.

COLORADO

Denver, Rho-Amy Schneider, Rho's new chapter editor, reports from a special perspective: she's a fall rush new member and new initiate! She writes from personal experience on formal rush—"[at the Delta Zeta house] I was expecting a barely endurable interviewing session full of judging eyes and hard faces. Instead as I entered...I found smiles and laughter...acceptance and diversity were huge parts of the Delta Zeta program during rush. I felt like I could open up and talk to them like I would my own sister...one thing was certain, there were no fakes at the house of Delta Zeta." For the second consecutive year, Rho pledged quota in formal rush. As a pilot chapter for the new member program, Rho is experiencing a feeling of both pride and importance, as each member strives to make a noticeable difference on the campus and within Delta Zeta. Delta Zeta's Second Annual Volleyball Tournament earned over $2,000 for Gallaudet. Homecoming activities filled a weekend with house tours, a barbecue, and the hockey game on Friday. Over 70 Delta Zetas were seated en masse to see Grace Meraz crowned homecoming queen. Carin Pollock chaired the campus homecoming committee. Alumnae and collegians celebrated Founders Day with a brunch at the Ramada Midtown. Members of Denver Days staff are Elizabeth Cortese, Amy Allen and Kathy Matestas. Amy Schneider is secretary-treasurer of the Freshman Class. Carolyn Jackson and Sarah Johnston captured leading roles in campus opera productions. Kristine Danburg is a representative to the DU Business Advisory Committee.

CONNECTICUT

Connecticut, Gamma Beta—Delta Zeta added 20 (quota plus two!) new members in formal rush. Since Gamma Beta is one of 12 collegiate chapters piloting Delta Zeta's new member program, the 20 new members were initiated after six weeks of new member education. Gamma Beta celebrated its 50th year on campus with a formal Founders Day banquet; on hand were Past National President Marvona Taylin and Province Collegiate Director Kari Larson, Delta Zeta teamed with a fraternity to win first place overall honors in homecoming competition. Victoria Hawkins won first runner-up honors in the homecoming queen competition.

ILLINOIS

DePaul, Theta Theta-Delta Zeta added seven new members following fall formal rush, scheduled the last week of September and first week of October. All prospective members (rushees) were honored with an All-Sorority Dinner in the commons. Delta Zeta teamed with other Greeks to sponsor an all-campus dance for incoming freshmen and transfer students. At presstime, Theta Theta powder puff football team was in first place. Members assisted with a food drive for St. Vincent DePaul, and enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner hosted by new members. Sonia Sanchez spent fall quarter studying in Spain. Laura O'Connell is a fraternity sweetheart.

Eastern Illinois, Gamma Nu—The women of Gamma Nu broke a chapter tradition this Christmas — intentionally. Instead of gathering together the week before finals to open gifts from their parents, members decided to recognize the needs of area families that cannot even afford to send their children to school, Gamma Nu collected more than $1,200 and members opened their hearts to two adopted families. At Thanksgiving, Delta Zeta teamed with a fraternity to collect 300 pounds of canned goods. The undefeated Delta Zeta intramural football team won their division, and the chapter has its sights set on the overall intramural trophy. Diane Brown was a member of homecoming court. In recent Panhellenic elections, Delta Zeta won the maximum number of positions that a single sorority can have. New officers are Rachel Gudeman, president; Maureen Leary, first vice president; and Stephanie Crase, secretary.

Eureka, Pi—Chapter Editor Jennifer Zuccaro reports "On Tuesday, November 16, the Dean of Student Development informed our chapter that we had three days to vacate the building that had been our home for the last seven years. Fire safety codes had been ignored for years, but when we expressed our concerns in writing, we were forced to move the entire contents of our house, take roommates, and move into leftover freshmen housing during our mid-term exam week." Executive Board member Tina Yordy had drafted a letter with the support of the chapter claiming that the building [Jones Hall] did not provide adequate protection from fire and detecting fire. She continued her research. attempted dialogue with the university, and eventually notified the State Fire Marshall "During the whole time there was no contact between all of us. We weren't upset about leaving, we were upset because no one ever talked to us about it...we had no idea what was going on." Delta Zeta received both campus and community support and feel the sorority "really pulled together and became closer." The Pi team won the ping pong division of intramurals. For philanthropy, the chapter sponsored the annual Pumpkin Patch Walk for Children at the Maple Lawn Home for the elderly. For a fund raiser, Delta Zeta sponsored a cheer-a-thon in which community residents spon-

DePauw. Delta-Delta Zeta added 23 freshmen during fall formal rush. The new members were honored at the formal dinner dance at the Walden Inn. For a fall philanthropy, members organized a Frisbee golf tournament, which raised $200 for the speech and hearing impaired. Alumnae treated collegians to a sloppy joe supper the Sunday night before exams. The meal was especially appreciated since the house does not provide Sunday evening dinner. Community service, according to Chapter Editor Anne Reller, is an important part of the DePauw community. She adds that Jenni Stokes, Tricia Robinson and Shannon Smeelink all exemplify the DePauw spirit of serving the community through volunteerism. Shannon, a diver on the varsity swim team, served as chief of construction for a recent mission trip to El Salvador and coordinates DePauw Community Service for Indiana Boys School. Because of her exemplary leadership, Shannon was awarded a Westerman Fellow scholarship. Tricia Robinson, also a Westerman Fellows scholarship recipient, is captain of the debate/forensics team, worked with a mission trip to Florida and handles public relations for the Chaplain's Council. She is also committee chairman of the Bonner Scholar program. winner of the Indiana State Governor's Cup debate tournament, and a member of the Media Fellow Honor Program. Tricia's involvement with the Bonner program is quite an honor. It is a community service-oriented program where students volunteer at local placements in exchange for scholarships. Jenni Stokes, a project officer for the mission trip to Florida, serves as vice president of registration for DePauw Community Service, student coordinator for students volunteering at a nursing home, and is a Westerman Fellow scholarship recipient. "Bid Day was surely the most important event of this semester. The joy of our success in our first year cannot equal the feeling we had on Bid Day. No award can take the place of a strong sisterhood. The chapter had achieved a completely successful rush and met both total and quota. The 45 new members helped rekindle the flame of Omicron Lambda." Bid day activities included a barbecue, hayride and jumping in the airfilled Moonwalk tent at Shank Forest Park. The successful rush followed 1993 Work Week, where Omicron Lambdas completed decorations, listened to a guest speaker talk on motivation and teamwork, practiced rush conversation. and enjoyed a welcome back cook-out. Old and new members traveled to Camp Rockfish near Fayetteville for a retreat. Here they got to know each other by participating in a rope course, canoeing, and late night campfire. New members learned the identity of their big sisters by following a spider web string, unraveling until they found the end of the string and their big sister. Collegians gathered with alumnae to celebrate Founders Day at the Velvet Cloak Inn. They returned to the Inn for another brunch and chapter awards, this time with parents on Parent's Weekend. Members enjoyed a trip to Busch Gardens in Williamsburg, Virginia, and a semiformal at Oscars. In Pennies for Gallaudet, members drop their spare change in a decorated jar. To assist the RSVVP project, members contact restaurants to donate 10% of their proceeds to the Food Bank. Members also clean the highways on Sunday mornings, wash cars to raise money for Gallaudet, collect canned goods and recycle. Order of Omega tapped Sabrina Peake, Kristin Burke and Laura Pate. Opal Warning Denman Opal Warning was attending Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, when, in 1914, she was selected by Dean Harvey Minnich, along with six other young women, to found a new sorority on campus, Delta Sigma Epsilon. Subsequently Delta Sigma Epsilon was founded on September 23, 1914.

In August of 1956, Delta Sigma Epsilon became a part of Delta Zeta. Opal, who had married Edmund Leo Denmarers after teaching public school music for six years, lived in the Cincinnati area at the time of the merger with Delta Zeta. As a member of the Cincinnati Delta Sigma Epsilon alumnae chapter, she was initiated into Delta Zeta.

Active as an alumna member for years, she affiliated wherever she lived. In 1964, after her husband's death, she moved to Albuquerque to be near her daughter, Betty. She remained a member of the Albuquerque alumnae chapter was long as she was able.

Opal was a shining example of the love and loyalty given to Delta Zeta by the wonderful members of the merged groups.

Want to Organize an Alumnae Panhellenic?

PURPOSE OF AN ALUMNAE PANHELLENIC:

TO INFORM FRATERNITY WOMEN OF CURRENT TRENDS

TO PROMOTE THE FRATERNITY SYSTEM

TO IMPROVE THE PANHELLENIC IMAGE

TO STIMULATE A CONTINUING INTEREST IN PANHELLENIC AFFAIRS

BENEFITS OF AFFILIATION WITH NPC:

- ASSISTANCE IN ORGANIZATIONAL PROCEDURES

- AFFILIATION PACKET OF INFORMATION ON NPC PUBLICATIONS AND PROGRAMS

- PERTINENT INFORMATION AND FRATERNITY EDUCATION THROUGH REGULAR PUBLICATIONS, INCLUDING "NPC NEWS — DEDICATED EXCLUSIVELY TO OUR ALUMNAE"

- AN AREA ADVISOR AVAILABLE FOR INFORMATION AND NETWORKING

TO ORGANIZE AN ALUMNAE PANHELLENIC:

CONTACT THE ADVISOR TO PROSPECTIVE ALUMNAE PANHELLENICS: Virginia Stafford, 2044 Pinehurst Drive, Ames, IA 50014, 515-292-1528

Guidelines for Prospective Alumnae Panhellenics offers step-by-step information about forming an alumnae panhellenic to fit the needs of your community.

Once an Alumnae Panhellenic is organized, bylaws are approved, charter members are listed, a nominal fee is charged ($10.00) plus annual association dues ($15.00).

Re-affiliation of an Alumnae Panhellenic follows the same procedure as forming a new Alumnae Panhellenic. The cost is the same: $25.00 which includes the affiliation fee plus annual dues.

FOREIGN COLLEGE STUDENTS study and work more—and sleep less—than American counterparts, according to a survey by the University of Delaware college of business and economics. (Wall Street Journal)

NEARLY TWO DOZEN law schools in the U.S. require pro bono or public service work before graduation, says the University of Dayton.

HUNTER COLLEGE students fluent in foreign languages "from Turkish to Tagalog" will serve as interpreters at hospitals and child care clinics in N.Y. City.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIPS at $30,000 are the nation's highest leadership award. Each year the Truman Foundation presents 80 scholarships to outstanding juniors who plan to pursue a graduate degree and a career in public service. Arizona State ranks third behind Harvard and Stanford in the number of Truman scholars in the last three years.

HISPANIC ENROLLMENT in higher education grew 84% in the past decade from 472,000 in 1980 to 867,000 in 1991.

A BUSINESS MANAGEMENT course sponsored by Dean Junior College is taught on a commuter train to Boston. "Classroom on wheels" was pioneered by Adelphi on the Long Island Railroad.

FOUR TIMES a year, groups of business executives from the former Soviet Union are learning Western-style management at Duke University's Fuqua School of business. 45

THE LOVE IN DELTA ZETA

When you see the colors of Rose and Green, You only begin to see the beauty of Delta Zeta.

> When you wear the Crest, You only begin to feel the pride of Delta Zeta.

When you grasp a thornless Killarney Rose, You only begin to discover the uniqueness of Delta Zeta.

When you catch the sparkle of a Diamond in a Badge, You only begin to share the lifetime friendships in Delta Zeta.

When you touch the Lamp, You only begin to walk in the lighted path of Delta Zeta.

When you first experience Sisterhood, You only begin to imagine the love in Delta Zeta.

....Amy Gamble, Zeta Psi

Amy, who was initiated at Stephen F. Austin-Zeta Psi, wrote the above after her transfer to the University of Texas. She's now, at age 23, a member of the Denver Alumnae Chapter.

IT'S EASY!

Take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to help yourself and your sorority at the same time! You'll receive a beautiful, custom Delta Zeta Visa Card and a low fixed interest rate. And remember, Delta Zeta will receive a percentage of every purchase you make.

Just fill out and mail the attached postagepaid application.* Because you're a Delta Zeta, all we need is some brief background information. You can also receive a second card at no extra cost.

*Credit approval required.
