SHARING the Mission

Dr. Denny Roberts

As a member of the university community where Delta Zeta has its chapters, we want to be a part of serving the mission of the institution. We have asked school officials to share with us their thoughts about what Delta Zeta and other Greek organizations can do to make a positive contribution to that end. Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs for Miami University, Dr. Denny Roberts, discusses the importance of Greek organizations on Miami's campus and their crucial role in leadership development.

"Developing leadership potential among students begins with Miami's historic commitment to engaged liberal education," Dr. Denny Roberts, Assistant Vice President of Student Affairs, says. Because Miami has a large Greek system, and because Greeks are traditionally nurtured as leaders within their organizations, Miami's guiding philosophy has been to support fraternities and sororities as much as possible, and to support leadership development within these groups.

Miami believes in the concept of "contemporary leadership," which incorporates the characteristics of traditional leadership, such as organization, efficiency, definable goals, and organized reporting, and also involves shared responsibility (not a hierarchical model). The talents of each individual are utilized, reinforcing the idea that each person adds value to the organization.

"It's the leadership model for the 21st century" Dr. Roberts says. "We need to discover what purposeful, unique contributions these potential leaders can make to the university, and how they can go on to meet the needs of society in the complex world we face today. Leadership is changing rapidly and one of the greatest contributions Greek organizations could offer higher education is to model the new kind of leadership we will see in the future. We believe Greek organizations can provide the opportunities for individuals to see and experience leadership that will make them better workers and citizens in all their communities."

Miami's Leadership Commitment (MLC), Miami's comprehensive leadership development model, is founded on the values of: active participation in the learning community; awareness and development of potential (personal values, strengths, and abilities); critical thinking and reflections; appreciation and respect for human dignity and diversity; dialogue through active listening and civil discourse; flexibility and openness to change; purposeful risk taking; responsibility and accountability for one's actions; and to challenge and support others to live and lead by these values.

Miami's leadership initiative was very successful last year, with 12,559 students participating university-wide. Current leadership programs for Greek students include:

- Foundations, an emerging-leaders program for sophomores and juniors.
- Greek Leadership Conference, designed to enhance leadership skills and expose student leaders to contemporary issues.
- Senior Success Seminars, which provide students with the necessary tools to translate the Leadership Values Framework into their alumni lives.
- Women's Leadership Series, which provides opportunities for students to learn about leadership from a feminine perspective.

In contemporary leadership, the structure is broadened—everyone has a responsibility. "The idea is to push responsibility down to all members. It's a new way to look at leadership, and tougher in many respects to attain," Dr. Roberts explains. Greek organizations are finding this model a challenge. Likewise, alumni advisors find that they must reeducate themselves, as contemporary leadership is very different from the traditional model.

Dr. Roberts believes that Greek organizations must reassess leadership within the chapter. "Fraternities and sororities have an incredible potential to live this new model. It will require critical analysis to determine how to do this, and how to develop programs to implement this model in their chapters," he continues. Miami's positive experience in broadening leadership has given rise to conversations among several campuses and inter/national headquarters regarding a "Greek Leadership Transformation" initiative. The idea is to work toward a unified approach to leadership development and then provide ways for all the inter/national organizations to convey their own unique messages about leadership and the values and qualities acquired by its members during membership.

"Through real intention and reflection, Greek organizations must understand leadership and sell it in recruitment. Advisors need to have this same understanding. Finding leaders means setting the bar high during recruitment."

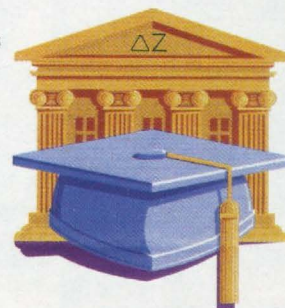

Dr. Roberts points out that recruitment is often highly competitive, and that the process needs to be approached as a collaborative effort for the good of Greek organizations as a whole. "It's harder at larger institutions where competition can be more intense," he says. "If Greek organizations took the responsibility of helping each other out—referring potential members to other groups when the person wasn't a match for their fraternity or sorority—this spirit of collaboration would make the Greek system stronger."

It is crucial that the inter/national organizations work with the universities to reconceptualize the recruitment process. At the same time, Greek chapters need support from their inter/national organizations. Recruitment should also be a collaboration with the Panhellenic. Miami recently sponsored an informal recruitment activity to assist Greek chapters on campus, and found it to be a cooperative venture.

One of Miami's most recent successes in collaborating with the Greek world was when the IFC and NPC drafted a joint policy with the university on alcohol, using part of Miami's model for alcohol abuse prevention. The policy was passed in three months—a record approval time. Dr. Roberts says, "The policy has proven successful from Miami's point of view, although we are learning as we go."

ABOUT MIAMI UNIVERSITY

Miami University was founded in 1809. Located in Oxford, Ohio, Miami University is rated among the top national universities for teaching undergraduates and is recognized as providing an excellent education at an affordable cost. Total enrollment averages 16,000 students. Often referred to as the "Mother of Fraternities," five current international fraternities and sororities were founded at Miami, including Delta Zeta. Miami has 21 sororities and 27 fraternities.

LEADERSHIP IS HER LEGACY

Brigadier General Barbara Campbell Fast
Delta Zeta's Woman of the Year for 2000

"I met Barb when I was just 14 years old," says Meryl Lin McKean EF, former Central Plains Area Public Relations Chairman. "My older sister had become a new member of the Epsilon Gamma Chapter, and Barb was her 'pledge mom.' Barb so impressed me with her friendliness, enthusiasm, and intelligence. She was clearly someone you wanted to follow."

Meryl's thoughts were indeed prophetic, for today Brigadier General Barbara Campbell Fast EF, Delta Zeta's Woman of the Year for 2000, is one of the United States' top military leaders, and brings distinction to the Delta Zeta badge. She is the National Security Agency (NSA) Associate Deputy Director of Operations, Military Support (ADDO(MS)). Barbara holds a key position in preserving the security of American troops, and, ultimately, all Americans. Only nine women hold the rank of Brigadier General in the U.S. Army.

Barbara carries an extraordinary responsibility in her role as Associate Deputy Director of Operations in Military Support, and has earned the trust and respect of her colleagues in the military, yet she views this role modestly. "My sense of duty and responsibility is to serve the nation, first and foremost. It's a humbling experience to have the privilege to be of real service to my country."

The Northern Virginia Alumnae Chapter hosted the Woman of the Year ceremony. Five of Barbara's collegiate sisters came from Missouri to attend the event, including her pledge mom and pledge daughter, Meryl Lin's sister. Even her matron of honor, who is currently stationed in Hawaii, is a Delta Zeta. Barbara's husband, Lieutenant Colonel (Retired) Paul Fast was also in attendance.

Initiated into the Epsilon Gamma Chapter at Central Missouri State University in 1972, she graduated in 1975, then did post-graduate work at the University of Missouri, and received her MSBA from Boston University in 1980.

"Barbara reflects the high standards of our sisterhood in her professional and personal life. As Delta Zeta's 2000 Woman of the Year, she inspires each of us to provide leadership in all areas of our lives and to always appreciate the richness and strength of our sisterhood."

Karly Burns, National President

She was commissioned into the Army in 1976 as a Military Intelligence Officer. Throughout her career, she has held a variety of command and staff assignments in the United States and Germany. These assignments include being the first woman to ever command a Tactical Exploitation Battalion in a combat corps and being the first Senior Intelligence Officer (G2) in a combat-ready division (2nd Armored Division). Prior to her assignment at NSA, she served as Commander of the 66th Military Intelligence Group, with over 1,000 soldiers and civilians, in Augsburg, Germany, as the Army concluded a successful 53-year mission there. Throughout this assignment, her soldiers were deployed to Bosnia in support of NATO's peace-keeping mission.

Barbara has received several major awards and decorations during her military career, including the Legion of Merit, the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Army Commendation Medal, the Army Achievement Medal, and the German Armed Forces Gold Cross of Honor.

Her father, now retired, was a Chief Master Sergeant in the Air Force, and her mother was in the Air Force before leaving to have children. But that wasn't Barbara's inspiration to move into a military career. After graduating from Central Missouri State University, she wanted to obtain a graduate degree, and looked into the GI Bill to help her do so. "Military Intelligence was the most interesting area, and where I felt I could contribute the most. With my undergraduate degree in German and Spanish, it seemed a good fit," she says. The armed forces provide great opportunities for women to advance into positions of power and responsibility. Barbara has moved into positions which were previously restricted to men only in the Army.

Still, women have to prove themselves. Barbara says, "Honesty and competency are your best assets in any job. You build your credibility through years of valuable experience. You can break the glass ceiling." She emphasizes that her success proves that "the Army provides wonderful educational and career opportunities. You develop highly marketable skills and a strong work ethic."

In addition, she has accomplished outstanding achievements at a relatively young age. Of her accomplishments, she says, "I've always viewed myself as an officer first. I am an officer who happens to be woman. I meet many people, and I know they look to me as a role model. It is most rewarding to see that you've been a positive influence—to look in the mirror and realize that you have made a difference to someone. The most important point I can communicate to others is that real success is to know yourself and be comfortable with who you are. While I strive to be the best that I can be, everything I am today comes down to that philosophy."

Barbara credits Delta Zeta as an instrumental part of that success. "When you're in school, you join a sorority for a sense of belonging, but at the same time, membership helps you learn about yourself. You learn how to become an individual, while being part of a team. You learn to be strong. You carry the values of the Sorority with you for life." Military life, she explains, has a lot of parallels to Greek life that may not at first be obvious. "There is a bond—the military becomes your family, just as Delta Zeta does. You can be of service to the nation and work for the whole of the team. Whatever the mission, people are the strength of the team."

One of Barbara's most memorable experiences were the years she served overseas as Senior Tactical Commander in Augsburg, Germany. When the Army's mission there concluded in 1989, Barbara recalls the emotion of that departure. "The residents of Augsburg were close to the U.S. presence there," she says. "I was struck by the emotion they displayed at our leaving, and by the mayor's words at the farewell ceremony. He said, 'Our children are the worse for this departure. They have known a special friendship with Americans, they have been a part of restoring democracy, and they will be the poorer because of their absence.'"

Barbara remembers that her arms were black and blue from all the people who hugged her and cried after the final ceremony. "It's always amazing to me to think that I was representative of America to those people," she says. "It was an emotional experience."

With her demanding career, she says she couldn't have accomplished it without the support of her husband, Paul, a retired Lieutenant Colonel. "We've been married 21 years," she says. "There have been many times during our careers when we've been separated by geographical distance. Now that Paul is retired, it's easier, because he can move where I need to be for my career. He is truly my partner in everything I do. My job is seven days a week, and it's hard to balance priorities at times. He understands my lifestyle and the demands of the military, and gives me the support I need. I always remember, however, that striking the balance between family and career is so important. Your career is only for a certain period of time, but your family is forever."

She laughs as she continues, "I met Paul in a parking lot when I was stationed in Munich. I was there to greet a man who was arriving, at the request of my boyfriend's university professor, and I thought Paul was the person I was supposed to meet. It turned out that he was the wrong person! We married in Munich in a civil ceremony, then later had a church ceremony and took each other down the aisle together to the same music Princess Diana and Prince Charles later selected for their wedding."

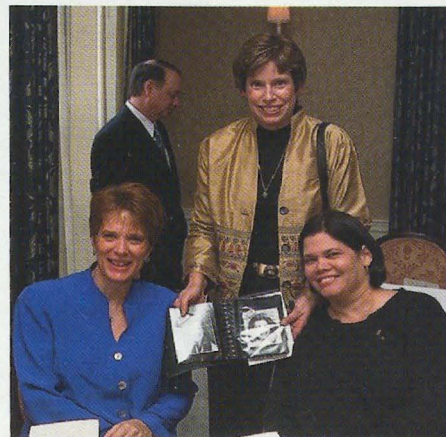

Today Paul is a consultant for private industry. He also enjoys golf, fly fishing, and works with stained glass. The Fast family share their home with their dog Murphy, an Australian shepherd. Barbara enjoys flower gardening and is an avid cross country skier.

Her military associates praise her extraordinary accomplishments, her professionalism, and her generous spirit. Claudia J. Kennedy, Lieutenant General, U.S. Army Deputy Chief of Staff for Intelligence, says of her colleague, "General Fast is an extraordinary person and a true pioneer in the Army. I can think of no one who possesses a higher standard of professionalism, leadership and commitment to our nation."

What is most impressive is that Barb has been able to balance the demands of a 24-year Army career with the most important things in life—Paul, her husband of over 20 years, and her many friends."

A respected leader of many, Barbara reflects on what she believes makes a great leader. "Leadership is inspiring others to follow you, to help you realize a common goal. There's a difference between management and leadership. Management is when you orchestrate something very successfully. But leadership is when others look to you, when you have the courage and conviction to do the right thing. It's inspiring and mentoring others. Your legacy is those who follow you."

Delta Zeta Sorority is proud to honor Brigadier General Barbara Campbell Fast as our Woman of the Year for 2000. She embodies the values of Delta Zeta, and is an outstanding leader and mentor for our members and women everywhere. She has met the challenges of her life and career with courage, and continues to inspire all whose lives she touches. "You can't be afraid to do what you want to do," she says. "All of us need to reach for our dreams."

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR RECRUITMENT?

The Challenge of Recruitment on Today's Campus

Today's campus is very different than it was fifty, twenty, even ten years ago. Colleges and universities have hosted the Depression-era generation, the post-war generation, the baby boomers, the Gen-X-ers, and Generation Y. Yet many things remain the same—studying for exams, fitting everything you own into a tiny dorm space, and walking to class as leaves crunch under your feet on a crisp fall day.

Like the campus, the Greek system at many schools remains the same, but is different today, too. While members of Greek organizations feel invincible because of their long history on any given campus, fraternities and sororities have come under intense scrutiny, policy enforcement, and even closure by school officials, especially in the past decade. National organizations are responsible as well for not tolerating at-risk behavior from their membership.

Delta Zeta Sorority recognizes the cross-roads Greek organizations are facing on today's campuses. The key to our longevity, and that of other Greeks on campuses across the country, lies in a simple premise: To recruit quality members—members who believe and whole-heartedly embrace the values our Sorority was founded on nearly one hundred years ago. But here we face another dilemma—with new recruitment guidelines, deferred recruitment, Continuous Open Bidding (COB), and shorter recruitment periods, many Greek chapters feel pressured to meet quota without scrutinizing the integrity of that new membership. A dilemma, yes, but one that is by no means insurmountable, for within the new challenges of recruitment today are many options to discover the best and brightest students who have the potential to become tomorrow's new members and Delta Zeta's future leaders.

The Team Effort

We often say recruitment is a team effort, but that doesn't mean that the college chapter members are the only ones on that team. Within Delta Zeta, that team includes the College Chapter Director, the Regional Collegiate Coordinator, and most importantly, our alumnae. Alumnae provide crucial support in all phases of recruitment, from giving references on potential members of quality to assisting in recruitment events to mentoring members during the recruitment process. Beyond the Delta Zeta team, we have the Greek life or student affairs advisor, campus administrative staff, and university officials who can give guidance to the chapter based on the school's characteristics.

Nationally, the NPC is the partner of all women's Greek organizations, providing recruitment guidelines and support through the college Panhellenics. As a "Conference," not a "Congress," the NPC gives recommendations and advice, and oversees the observance of unanimous agreements voted upon by its member organizations.

One partnership that is often overlooked in the recruitment process is between members of different Greek organizations. Many Delta Zeta collegiate members attest to the fact that partnering with other sororities and/or fraternities for campus events strengthens their recruitment efforts. Erin Lail of the Lambda Sigma Chapter at Winthrop University says, "All of the fraternities help us in one way or the other. Through word of mouth, Tau Kappa Epsilon has helped introduce us to many potential and new members (now initiates). In turn, we helped TKE during their recruitment and chartering process last spring."

Dr. Kevin Kruger, the Associate Executive Director of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, stresses the importance of these partnerships. "Together, Greeks can be an important voice for institutional policy making," he says. "The administration is more likely to pay attention to that voice if it is a cohesive one."

Greek men and women have a unique opportunity in the campus setting to build such partnerships. When fraternities and sororities come together for positive activities such as community service, they have a valuable chance to learn from other organizations and their members. Networking with other organizations may result in referrals of potential members by that organization to Delta Zeta.

Dr. Kruger points out that this partnership is just as valuable when high-risk behaviors such as alcohol abuse, hazing, and violence against women affect Greek organizations. "Greek men and women have an unrealized potential for partnership in these cases," he says. "The women can help the men understand where the sororities stand on these issues, and work with them to improve communication between Greek men and women. The challenges the men face are different than the ones women face, but they certainly aren't unrelated."

Are Academic Excellence and Ethical Behavior Outdated Ideals?

One of the keys to building these partnerships, Dr. Kruger continues, is in academic excellence. "Sororities traditionally have higher grades on campus than the average," he continues. "If Greeks value academics as much as they do the winner of Greek Week, fraternities and sororities can work together to foster academic excellence, which is a common bond for them, and an indication to the institution that they are serious about their education."

The Greek system is at risk today, not only because of the issues facing its members, but also because of "pure demographics," according to Dr. Kruger. "College students have a decreasing interest in joining a Greek organization," he says. "This ought to be a wake up call to all Greeks. They need to find out what is not appealing to students today." Dr. Kruger believes that students see the inconsistency between the behavior of some Greeks and the values their organizations are founded upon.

Dr. Alan Berkowitz is an author and consultant who assists colleges, universities, and communities in designing programs that address health and social justice issues. He agrees that the majority of college students possess ethics and accountability. "Research shows that college students are more healthy and responsible than we give them credit for. The risky behaviors that are often publicized are the behaviors of a 'silent minority' on today's campus. Greek members must have courage to confront the problem minority—an unwillingness to do so will spell the end of the Greek system."

During recruitment, Greeks are tempted to recruit people who don't match the values of their sorority or fraternity. "It starts with the quality of the member," he says. "Greek groups must remember that a new member class made up of quality members is better for the organization and the members."

The effects of recruiting less than the best has far-reaching consequences that many members don't realize. When the chapter lowers its standards, it has more difficulty attracting the high-caliber women who believe in the integrity of Delta Zeta. These standards include campus involvement, good grades, a neat, well-groomed appearance, leadership potential, and the sincere desire to improve the chapter. By recruiting women who don't meet these standards, not only is the chapter negatively affected today, but future recruitment efforts will fail to attract quality members. The recruitment of each member who is below the standard compromises the future of Delta Zeta as a whole.

Providing the Support Our Chapters Need

As mentioned, alumnae provide vital support to the college chapter and the perpetuation of the Sorority. Providing quality references to chapters is one of the most important ways to do this, yet one that takes little time. By participating in this process, alumnae are fulfilling their personal responsibility to the future of Delta Zeta. Alumnae can also assist in advisory and mentoring capacities. Dr. Berkowitz emphasizes the importance of alumnae support. "The campus atmosphere may have changed a great deal from when alumnae attended school," he says. "They must hear what's really going on in the chapter and on the campus from the collegians, not be judgmental, and be ready to help in any way they can. Collegians need more informed, ongoing involvement from alumnae."

He also points out that collegians do look to alumnae as role models. "Alumnae should never promote inappropriate behavior, and just like the collegians, be willing to stand up to those alumnae who do so when interacting with students."

Jean Nelson Stockham II, a member of the Oklahoma City Alumnae Chapter, advises, "Give voluntary references to the chapter. Give them the benefit of your personal knowledge about a woman, and let them know about legacies. Call the chapter and ask if you can bring a meal or snack during recruitment activities. If they say they are okay for the moment, leave your phone number and ask them to call back if they do need help. Go to the house to visit."

Greek advisors and student affairs staffs are another valuable, sometimes underutilized, resource. "These people are dedicated to Greek values, and committed to advancing the system," Dr. Kruger says. Fraternity and sorority headquarters have a responsibility to nurture a relationship with these and other school officials. "Greek organizations must lead with the idea that sharing information is beneficial. For instance, if a chapter is in trouble, the university and the Greek organization can work together to reorganize it instead of closing it. I'm seeing significant progress on campuses in re-engineering Greek life, and more emphasis on focusing on values."

Dr. Berkowitz reminds us that programs, which are designed to encourage members to follow the values their organizations were founded on, must "go deeper than a statement. They need to be followed through in everyday practice by the collegians and the alumnae. We have a responsibility to provide the guidance Greek organizations need today."

In Delta Zeta, the national organization is implementing new recruitment education programs, such as the National Recruitment School to be held in February of 2001. National President Karly Burns says, "We must constantly examine our programming, our training, our policies, and chapter practices which may not be meeting the needs of our changing collegiate population. Delta Zeta will be prepared to deal with these changes through all facets of our national, regional, and local operation."

The Partnership Between Leaders Enhances Recruitment

Perhaps one of the best ways to strengthen the Greek system and ensure successful recruitment is to partner with other Greek organizations in the many facets of Greek life: community service, campus activities, and social interaction. "When we participate in community service together," says Grace Lynch of the Beta Gamma Chapter at the University of Louisville, "we proudly wear our sorority letters, as do the other sorority women. This helps the community to see what we are all about."

Rachel McQuown of the Zeta Rho Chapter at William Jewell College affirms, "We united with other Greek women and Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity to reach out to the needy in our community. We learned more about the other chapters through friendly competition, fun activities, and shared service. This partnership enhances recruitment, because it demonstrates to the rest of the student body and the community as a whole that our Greek organizations live up to the ideas of generosity, philanthropic work, and compassion."

Angela Roberts (Delta Beta Chapter at the University of Tampa) says Greek unity attracts potential new members. "During theme weeks on campus, there are different competitive events that everyone attends. Everyone wants to win first place, but by the time that we all get together at these events, everyone is cheering each other on. If it weren't for the different letters that we all wear, it's hard to believe that everyone is in a different fraternity or sorority."

"The Greek system plays a significant role in preparing leaders," Dr. Kruger says. "Sororities provide leadership opportunities for women in a unique setting, but a good one—one in which they're not competing with men, but working with them."

Through connecting and working with other Greek organizations, offering alumnae support to collegiate chapters during recruitment, finding ways to partner with Greek life and student affairs advisors, and joining with universities and colleges in the common goal of academic excellence, we will recruit the best members for Delta Zeta, groom leaders for the Sorority and the world community, and assure the continuation of the Greek system for future generations.

WHAT KEEPS OUR ALUMNAE COMING BACK

The Beta Delta Chapter and the Columbia Alumnae Chapter have enjoyed a healthy partnership since the alumnae group formed in the early 1980s. The alumnae members provide both financial assistance and encouragement to the chapter. Regardless of the chapter/school affiliation, the alumnae members see themselves as true Delta Zeta sisters who are fortunate to have a college chapter in their own backyard.

The alumnae do much of the behind-the-scenes work for recruitment: handling the paperwork, running errands, fixing the food, cleaning up, and all the hundreds of little jobs that go into a successful recruitment. Beta Delta member Joy Faircloth Manley '91 is the current president of the local alumnae chapter and has remained active with her college chapter since she graduated. Joining the alumnae chapter was a natural progression for her following her college days.

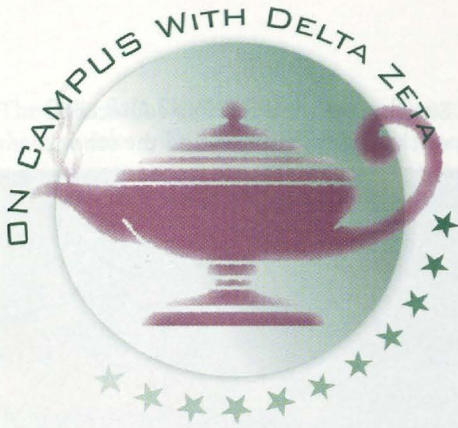

"This unique partnership has been encouraged and fostered through the years by strong support of the CCD role in Beta Delta," says Jamie Hammill Pyne BA '80, National Vice President of Alumnae Affairs. "The chapter advisors have always been involved with the alumnae chapter, maintaining their membership, attending meetings, and inviting alumnae to be involved with the collegians. Without the CCD support, both groups acknowledge that it would be more difficult to maintain their relationship."

Jaylene Phelps Braxton  $\Xi\Theta$  '88, from the UNC/Wilmington chapter, is the CCD for Beta Delta. She became involved with the local alumnae chapter as soon as she moved to Columbia, which provided that connection to her role as CCD.

Approximately six months ago, Beta Delta alumnae members were invited to join an e-mail chat group—a listserve—currently supporting about one hundred alumnae members. Started by collegian Jessica Lentini, the listserve has resulted in even greater support from the alumnae for the collegiate chapter. Through the power of the internet, the alumnae members recently contributed $500 to buy the lavaliers for the newest members in the chapter, a large group of alumnae members attended the USC Homecoming pageant to cheer on the two Beta Delta contestants, and the alumnae have planned a large reunion for the spring. Collegians have gotten to know the alumnae who preceded them, have shared ideas for successful recruitment and even details such as ideas and places to hold special events. The alumnae have offered their homes to the collegians for both new member and officer retreats and also helped to raise money for philanthropic projects. The two-way exchange between alumnae and collegians has been rewarding for all.

Jamie Pyne says, "These strong bonds between the alumnae and collegians prove that, despite the years and generations between them, and even with busier-than-ever lifestyles, one fundamental never changes: Staying connected with your Delta Zeta sisters is not an option—but rather a requirement—and one that is still shared with much love for our sisters."

On Campus with Delta Zeta

Delta Zeta's collegiate chapters share news of recruitment success, partnerships with other Greek organizations in philanthropic and campus events, and chapter involvement in other facets of campus life.

The Alpha Alpha Chapter at Northwestern University works with the Delta Chi Fraternity each year to organize the philanthropic event and the competitive game "Earthball." The money raised goes to the Foster Reading Center to help tutor children. President Brooke Hatton says, "When we do events with other groups, we combine publicity efforts, so more people are likely to attend."

The Alpha Beta Chapter (University of Illinois/Urbana) won first place for its Homecoming float, a joint effort with Sigma Phi Delta. Three members were elected to Homecoming Court: Megan Nowicki, Kara Benson, and Lori Hedberg. The New Initiates/Dad's Day banquet and the first annual Academics Award banquet, organized by Academics Chair Maribel Hernandez, were two special celebrations for the chapter.

Alpha Gamma Chapter (University of Alabama) members received several awards at the Order of Omega banquet. Most Outstanding awards went to Jessica Brooks, Emily Roberts and Suzanne Clem. The University's Greek Woman of the Year was Alpha Gamma's own Michelle Crum. Many new members were chosen for the top two freshman honors on campus: Freshman Forum and Emerging Leaders.

The Alpha Gamma Chapter on Bid Day.

The Alpha Pi Chapter (Samford University) had a successful recruitment effort during formal recruitment and Continuous Open Bidding (COB) which brought 21 new members to the chapter. New members are involved in other campus activities such as cheerleading, soccer, and varsity tennis. The chapter began a new annual event called "Turtle Splash," a fundraiser for speech and hearing in which other fraternities and sororities on campus will participate.

Leading the Way, Sharing the Vision Highlights from the National Panhellenic Conference 2000 Interim Meeting

Delta Zeta representatives gathered at the DFW Lakes Hilton Executive Conference Center in Grapevine, TX, October 20-22 for the 2000 Interim Meeting. Attending on behalf of Delta Zeta Sorority were: Karly Klemp Burns, National President; Sandra McAlister Nesbitt, Past National President and Delegate; Jamie Hammill Pyne, National Vice President of Alumnae Affairs and First Alternate; Lynnda Wolf Hoefler, Second Alternate; Denise Williams McCullars, National Vice President of Membership Development and Third Alternate; Cynthia Winslow Menges, Executive Director; and Nancy Brewer, Director of Communications and Editor of The LAMP.

Sandra Nesbitt serves as the Chairman of the NPC Housing Committee; Jamie Pyne serves as the NPC Area Advisor for Eastern North Carolina on the College Panhellenics Committee, and Lynnda Hoefler serves in the same position for the state of Michigan and part of Canada; and Denise McCullars is the Alumnae Panhellenics Area Advisor for Georgia and Alabama.

Chairman Marion Williams, Kappa Kappa Gamma, opened the meeting with the theme, Leading the Way, Sharing the Vision. Noting the continued concern on campuses of the misuse and abuse of alcohol, Marion stressed that the time has come for new initiatives requiring NPC's vision, leadership and courage to create change in the culture on the college campus. She challenged all fraternity and sorority members to use the vision, the ability to communicate and collaborate, and the leadership to address the concerns and help accomplish needed change.

Tim Burke, NPC Legal Counsel, stressed the need for everyone to protect and advocate our Constitutional First Amendment rights. Other legal issues discussed included preserving the single sex status of NPC organizations.

A panel headed by Lissa Bradford, Co-chairman of the Alcohol Free Task Force, gave an Alcohol-Free Housing Initiative update. Many positive steps are being taken on campuses around the country to change the perceived alcohol-centered culture, and more Panhellenic women are stepping forward to take responsibility for addressing substance abuse.

Jean Scott, Chairman of the NPC Foundation reported the success of the Centennial Endowment Fund. In honor of NPC's upcoming centennial in 2002, this fund was established in October 1999 to support the educational and leadership programs of the National Panhellenic Conference.

Adopted resolutions included developing programs entitled, "Focus On Confrontation" and "Focus On Self-Esteem" to assist college women in risk management situations; and a resolution that the National Panhellenic conference sponsor the National Alcohol Screening Day in the years 2001, 2002, and 2003.

THE MISSION OF THE
DELTA ZETA
IS TO ADVANCE
THE SORORITY'S
LEADERSHIP,
SCHOLARSHIP,
PHILANTHROPIC
RESOURCES.

Our first year in the new century has proved to be a successful one. Delta Zeta Foundation had over a 15.5% increase in donations for the fiscal year ended June 30, 2000 as compared to the previous year. The Foundation also received a generous donation from Fifth Third Bank to establish an endowment for the Continuing Education Scholarship.

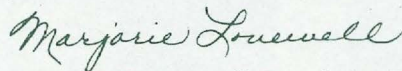

The Foundation welcomes these wonderful contributions, which open the door to quality programming and an exciting future. Our members and friends have shown that they believe in the values and programs the Foundation supports by their generous gifts. Our donors are the reason for our success over the past year, and Delta Zeta is grateful for their support.

At the same time, it's more important than ever that the Delta Zeta Foundation continue to provide:

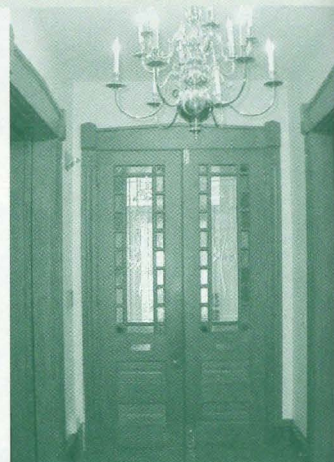

- The quality programs and scholarships that support scholarship assistance.
- Leadership and educational programs.
- Education about and support of our national philanthropy for speech and hearing.
- Preservation of our National Historical Museum and archives.

The real importance of these funds is how they are used, and the Foundation works to use donations to the best advantage possible. The Foundation Trustees are vigilant in their stewardship of donations and bequests.

Thank you for your support over the past year—another year that brings us closer to the Sorority's Centennial, a milestone in Delta Zeta's history. Your donation says that you believe in the Foundation's mission, and in the values for which Delta Zeta stands. Each donation received has helped someone finish her college education; become a better leader in her chapter, on campus, or in her community; educate her about helping speech and hearing impaired individuals communicate and learn; and preserve our heritage for future generations. With your support, we will continue to make a difference for our membership, and they, in turn, will continue to make a difference in their communities.

Marjorie K. Lovewell, Foundation President

"When I applied for the scholarship through Delta Zeta, I was already appreciative of the many aspects of my life that have been influenced and improved through DZ. I never thought that something I enjoyed participating in so much would also be responsible for getting me through school and for my future success as well. Thank you, Delta Zeta, and to the Founders for whom my scholarship commemorates . . . without them, I would not be here today."

Leah Flake EB
Eastern Kentucky University

An economics major, Leah is planning to enter law school, and become a corporate attorney specializing in cases involving the internet.

How Can You Double Your Donation?

Many of us wish we could give more to the Delta Zeta Foundation. There is a way to double your donation, with no additional cost to you. Several hundred corporations and organizations match all or part of charitable gifts made by their employees. All matching gifts are credited to you, and your company is provided receipts for tax purposes and matching gift requirements.

If your company requires that a special form be completed, send the form to the Foundation Office, preferably at the time you send your gift. We will complete it and return it so you can be assured that your gift has been matched. For a complete list of companies that match gifts, contact the Delta Zeta Foundation at 513/523-7597.

Ask your employer about matching your donation to the Delta Zeta Foundation today!

Display cases in the Museum depict Delta Zeta's symbols, the Caryatides, and the Creed.

The Value of Leadership

Craig Little of the Ohio State University Alumni Association leads a workshop on risk management.

Each year, leadership conferences and seminars funded by donations to the Delta Zeta Foundation help women become strong and confident leaders within their college chapters, on their campus, and in their communities. After graduation, these women become exemplary citizens and strive to make a difference for others.

Leadership education enhances the alumnae experience in many ways. Delta Zeta prepares alumnae to become leaders in their professional lives and can help them advance in their careers. Alumnae can take the lead in Delta Zeta at a local or national level, or within other areas of the Greek world as volunteer advisors or in other Panhellenic positions.

Employers cite the fact that they are more inclined to hire those who have been a member of a Greek organization because of their leadership skills, so funding for the Foundation's programs helps women in their professional as well as their personal development.

Contribute to inspiring the leaders of tomorrow with a gift to the Delta Zeta Foundation today!

Delta Zeta and Me

*Vicki Hendershot Flynn EM
CEO/CFO of VHF Audiology Services*

Were it not for the Delta Zeta Foundation, and the education it provides to members and communities about speech and hearing, VHF Audiology Services would not exist. The primary reason for my entering the field of speech and hearing was my exposure to our national philanthropy.

I studied under Dr. Julie McBroom Davis EB, who encouraged me to pursue my work with the hearing impaired. I was Chief of Audiology and professor of otolaryngology for the University of Mississippi Medical Center, and today am CEO/CFO of VHF Audiology Services. I have developed the concept of "Contact Audiology" and provide services within a 200-mile radius of Houston, Texas, working with physicians, rehabilitation centers, medical centers, and audiologists.

The patients are happy to have speech and hearing services close to their homes, and I still have the love of working with those who need help in communicating because of their physical challenges—all because of Delta Zeta.

*Vicki Hendershot Flynn,
MS, CCC-A*

Preserving the Past to Ensure Delta Zeta's Future

With the milestone of Delta Zeta's one-hundredth anniversary in 2002 on the horizon, the preservation of our National Historical Museum and Headquarters, which house the Sorority's remarkable history, is even more important today.

For every challenge the Sorority and her members face in today's society, the answers can be found in the Constitution of Delta Zeta, originally authored by Elizabeth Coulter Stephenson A, and adopted at the 1908 National Convention. The values upon which our Founders established Delta Zeta Sorority in 1902 have not changed, and are even more relevant in today's world.

Preserving our archives is important not only for our history, but to enlighten our path as we move into the future. You can be a part of our history. Please consider making a gift to the Delta Zeta Foundation to keep our precious heritage strong.

The Continuing Education Scholarship

In September 2000, the Delta Zeta Foundation announced that Fifth Third Bank had provided $50,000 toward the establishment of an endowment to fund scholarships for Delta Zeta members, based on financial need, who are interested in continuing their education.

The first scholarship will be awarded in the year 2001. But donations are needed to help the endowment grow and earn income to award future scholarships to deserving Delta Zetas.

Lawra J. Baumann, Ph.D., Vice President of the Foundation Office of Fifth Third Bank, says, "The Delta Zeta Foundation addresses a great need for women today. Due to the increased cost of education, this scholarship will assist women and allow them the opportunity to continue their education."

Your donation to the Delta Zeta Foundation continues to fund these important scholarships, and helps women continue their education, whether they are college-age, graduate students, or alumnae returning to school. Won't you make a difference in someone's future with your gift?

Foundation-sponsored Workshops Build Leaders for Today

At Delta Zeta's 44th National Convention in Phoenix, Arizona, the Delta Zeta Foundation was proud to sponsor many of the leadership and educational workshops our delegates and visitors attended.

Topics included: "Building Excellent Scholarship Programs," "Effective Communication: The Key to Great Committees," "Your ARE Your Sister's Keeper (Risk Management)" "Visionary Leadership," and "Recruitment for Undergraduates."

Workshops such as these provide training on important issues facing collegians, and educate our alumnae who support them. Communications and recruitment programs concentrate on ways to bring quality members to Delta Zeta, women who will enhance the sisterhood and become future leaders in our Sorority. Leadership and scholarship programs strengthen the skills of collegians in leading their Delta Zeta chapters and in concentrating on the importance of study and maintaining good grades.

All of these programs build leaders for today. Collegians and alumnae benefit from the valuable programming provided, and return to their chapters and communities with renewed enthusiasm and new ideas to perpetuate Delta Zeta. Donations, like yours, are crucial to supporting this important educational effort.

AN INTERACTIVE FOCUS ON LEARNING: THE HARPER ENDOWED LECTURE FUND

The generous gift of Carol Sharpe Harper BF established an endowment to bring distinguished speakers/lecturers to Delta Zeta Sorority's national leadership conferences and conventions to present educational topics. The lectures/topics stimulate discussion among the participants and provide learning opportunities beyond the lecture itself.

Leadership and educational program offerings are coordinated with the topic, giving participants a chance to interact with the speaker. The benefits of the lectures/topics are not exclusive to Delta Zeta Sorority, but can encompass many aspects of fraternal life for all Greeks.

Delta Zeta Sorority is committed to providing educational programs to enrich the lives of young women who will become the civic leaders of tomorrow. These programs are an investment in everyone's future. Your donation to the Delta Zeta Foundation ensures that we can continue to provide this quality programming to our members.

"Because of the scholarship I received, I have been able to maintain a high GPA and donate my time to activities on campus and within the community. Being freed from having to work a full-time job has allowed me to gain experience in many areas of nursing. I have volunteered at a victim support crisis center, drug and alcohol treatment facilities, and other areas in the hospital."

Sarah Ingraham ΔΣ
Truman State University

Sarah will work as a nurse in neonatal intensive care after graduation. She also plans to further her education with a Master's degree in nursing after a few years of nursing experience.

HEARING HELP GRANTS GIVE HOPE

The Delta Zeta Foundation awards Hearing Help Grants each year to our alumnae chapters who work with speech and hearing facilities. Hearing Help Grants provide funds to hearing centers, schools, clinics, hospitals, and for education and projects in speech and hearing.

The Foundation was pleased to award the following Hearing Help Grants for the year 2000.

- Metropolitan Detroit Alumnae Chapter: Deaf, Hearing and Sign Language Center
- Wichita Alumnae Chapter: Deaf and Hard of Hearing Services, Inc.
- Chicago Far West Alumnae Chapter: International Center on Deafness and the Arts
- St. Louis Alumnae Chapter: St. Joseph Institute for the Deaf
- Houston Alumnae Chapter: The Center for Speech and Hearing
- Atlanta Alumnae Chapter: Atlanta Area School for the Deaf
- Arlington Alumnae Chapter: Arlington Regional Program for the Deaf
- Omaha Metro Alumnae Chapter: Omaha Hearing School Early Childhood Center
- North Philadelphia Alumnae Chapter: The Pennsylvania School for the Deaf
- Tulsa Alumnae Chapter: Happy Hands Educational Center, Inc.

Won't you be a part of this important mission, and give someone the opportunity to communicate, learn, and lead a productive life when faced with a speech and hearing impairment? Your support to the Delta Zeta Foundation provides opportunities that those who are speech and hearing impaired may otherwise never have.

A VISION FOR THE FUTURE OF DELTA ZETA: THE FLORENCE HOOD MINER COMMUNICATIONS DEVELOPMENT FUND

An endowment established by Florence Hood Miner AB, Delta Zeta's "Living Legacy," provides funding for program development to strengthen various communications efforts within the Sorority's college chapters. Because of her dedicated service to the Sorority, her work as Editor of The LAMP and in other communications positions, she is committed to meeting the need of providing programs for Delta Zeta's collegians in this important area. Public relations efforts are vital to the Sorority in fulfilling its mission to support Greek life and higher education. Positive publicity encourages college students to become members of the fraternal world. Strong communications programs also expand Delta Zeta's philanthropic work and improve public relations.

The Communications Development Fund provides many programs to support these efforts. By making a donation to the Delta Zeta Foundation, you continue the important work of publicizing Delta Zeta's message of service, philanthropy, campus and community leadership, and the commitment to the core values of the Sorority.

Kim Koepeke, Arlington Independent School District's Deaf Educator, accepted the Hearing Help Grant which the chapter won at the National Convention. Members also assisted the Iota Psi Chapter (University of Texas/Arlington) with their recruitment events.

The Austin Alumnae Chapter has adopted the Texas School for the Deaf as its new philanthropy. The oldest operating public school in Texas, it serves over 500 students a year. Funds raised will be used to purchase technology equipment for career training and adaptive equipment to support learning. The chapter also assisted the Iota Alpha Chapter at Southwest Texas State University with repairs to the chapter house before recruitment began.

CONNECT WITH A CHAPTER ASSOCIATION!

An easy way to connect with your sisters in Delta Zeta is through Chapter Associations. Alumnae who belong to the same college chapter can organize a chapter association. It's really just a chance to meet whenever you want to—chapter associations don't have the formal structure of an alumnae chapter, but give alumnae the opportunity to connect with sisters from their college chapter at their convenience.

If you'd like more information about organizing a chapter association in your area, you can contact:

Delta Zeta's National Historian,
Florence Hood Miner,
presents our readers with another installment of her "LAMPOST" column, which ran in The LAMP during her tenure as editor from 1969-1981.

When you are watching old shows on cable television, you never know what familiar faces may come up and surprise you! A very early segment on American Movie Classics called "Gail Patrick's Enchanted Cottage" was a real surprise. It showed a very young Gail and her children's shop.

Among her little models were Candace Bergen, Mia Farrow, and Maureen and Michael Reagan, plus their adoring parents.

Margaret Fitzpatrick won a movie contest while she was a senior in Alabama's Alpha Pi Chapter. The first thing the studio did was shorten her name. She went on to make movies with the likes of Cary Grant, William Powell, and Gary Cooper. She told us once that she wasn't that great an actress, but they kept her at Paramount because she was a lady and could serve as hostess for visiting celebrities at the studio. (A college education and rushing do prepare you for life!)

A weeklong showing of The Munsters for Halloween let us see Pat Priest as the pretty blonde cousin. Pat and Nancy and their mother Ivy Baker Priest were all initiated into the Alpha Chi Chapter. Ivy was U.S. Treasurer under President Eisenhower and signed all of our paper money.

In the biography of Hollywood columnist Hedda Hopper (who wore all those hats), we were reminded of the time her son Bill came to the 1960 Convention in Pasadena. Betty Agler and I, in big hats, were doing a luncheon depicting provinces as part of a Rose Bowl parade and wanted a celebrity judge. Our Gail came up with her friend Hedda, who at the last minute couldn't come, and sent son Bill instead. He was Paul Drake on the Perry Mason show of which Gail was then producer.

Anxiously trying to put things together, President Evelyn Costello found me and said, "There is a gorgeous man at the desk asking for you." It was tall, blonde, and gorgeous William, who was the hit of the show just by being there and smiling.

When Candace Bergen grew up and was the Murphy Brown on her show, her only perfect secretary on one episode was Marcia Wallace ΔN, Bob Newhart's secretary on his show, come to retrieve her. Marcia was president of her chapter at Parsons College in Iowa, was in The Music Man on Broadway, and thence to television. You can catch her now as she participates on panels for early breast cancer detection (see "Alumnae News," this issue). And of course, you can't miss Florence Henderson AX on many commercials and the reruns of The Brady Bunch as the perfect mom.

But the frosting on our TV watching cake was the hour-long biography of Edith Head on A&E. Edith was the first female head of studio design in a field where men dominated. Surprisingly, she had graduated with two degrees in French, which she later taught. But she had ideas and got a lowly design job at Paramount, distinguishing herself by doing the sarongs for Dorothy Lamour in Jungle Princess. This started a rush for sarongs around the country. Next were gowns for voluptuous Mae West. Her careful designs for Barbara Stanwyck made that actress a sex symbol, and Edith was on her way. She won eight Oscars, the last of which was for the Newman-Redford delight, The Sting.

Edith was always available to help with Flame Fantasies for the California Delta Zetas, and not only was she our 1968 Woman of the Year, but was named one of ten outstanding Greeks at the Bicentennial celebration in 1976 along with Presidents Reagan and Ford.

This last October, we attended three Founders Day celebrations and an initiation. Try these sometime with a collegiate chapter and you will feel years younger. It's sort of a renewal watching those beautiful new Delta Zetas. The initiation ceremony was at the Delta Xi Chapter at Northern Colorado of our granddaughter Danielle, so we are a three-generation Delta Zeta family. Big sigh!
